Election Race Down to Wire

New Issues Injected By Pearson

By ALEX YOUNG

BRANTFORD, Ont. — The Liberal election campaign ended with a bang Friday night.

Fireworks, brass bands and majorettes provided the obvious political climax to the eight-week battle for power of Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson.

But the most significant elements of the finale were the crowd he drew in his last election rally, in Tory western Ontario, and the new issues he brought by word into the dying campaign.

Between 5,000 and 7,000 people jammed Victoria Park, just so they could hear Pearson.

The riding has been Conservative since 1953.

The new issues were a warning by Mr. Pearson that re-election of the Conservative government would mean further devaluation of the dollar as well as a new tight money spell, resulting from devaluation.

"I ask you tonight at this wonderful final meeting of the campaign to work for this country so we can lift up our heads and work for the destiny and pride that is ours," Pearson said.

"After Monday we will begin to work to restore both."

One of the most newsworthy quotes of Mr. Pearson's day campaigning was his statement in Woodstock about how the campaign wasn't over until the last vote was counted on Monday.

"This isn't an election," he said with a smile, "that is going to be determined by President Kennedy or by Premier Khrushchev . . . although they seem to be the prime minister's chief supporters at the moment."

ON DEFENSIVE

Mr. Pearson said the Conservatives have been on the defensive from the beginning of the election; they started with a "vague" five-year plan, then switched to a new five-year plan, then began attempts to martyr themselves with their charges that the

His Vote Really Important

VANCOUVER (CP) — Distance is nothing to Dan Campbell, 83, when it comes to an important matter like casting a vote.

Mr. Campbell moved here from Whitehead, Sask., in May to stay with his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Knowler.

Then he found out he wouldn't get a vote in Monday's federal election unless he cast it in Whitehead. So he took a train there Thursday night.

"We tried to talk him out of it," said Mrs. Knowler. "But he'd voted there over the last 45 years and that was where he was going to vote.

"You might call him stubborn. We sure do."

Thompson Blasts Taxation

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The national leader of the Social Credit party ended his active campaigning for Monday's election with some broadsides Friday night at the Conservative and Liberal parties.

Robert Thompson flew to Ontario for a one-day visit to the Niagara Peninsula, where party officials believe Social Credit has its best opportunity to elect a member from this province.

He joined Herbert Heppner, national secretary of the party and candidate in Lincoln riding, and other standard-bearers for a motorcade-tour through communities in Lincoln and neighboring Welland constituencies before coming on to a final rally here.

Although visibly tired, he stepped out of character with an hour-long denunciation of the campaign tactics of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson, interspersed with a call for fiscal reform and an end to spiralling taxation. The audience of some 500 almost filled the high school auditorium where he spoke.

Mr. Thompson took particular exception to an announcement earlier in Welland by Mr. Diefenbaker that tolls on the

'Forward To Victory' —John D.

(Special To The Times)

HAMILTON — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night wound up his national campaign for a new mandate for his Progressive Conservative government with this call: "Forward to victory on Monday next."

The prime minister rang down the curtain on the election drive he started unofficially April 26 in Moose Jaw and set formally into action May 5 at London, Ont.

The Prime Minister left by air today for Prince Albert, Sask., his home riding, where he will await the results of Monday's general election.

He spoke for 52 minutes to about 2,200 persons in the Palace Theatre Friday night.

It was a typical, familiar speech—with some hecklers but no incidents.

FAR AND WIDE

Mr. Diefenbaker ranged far and wide, touching dollar devaluation, unemployment, Soviet imperialism, disarmament, the government's record in office and its Confederation platform for the future.

"We've got Canada rising in the most tremendous economic surge in history," he told his standing-room-only audience in the 2,007-seat theatre.

"Give us the opportunity in the days ahead to march forward together—to carry out our great program for Canadians."

Exuding confidence and smiling his delight at the Tory show of strength, Mr. Diefenbaker delivered a lively speech.

It was interrupted over 50 times by applause and cheers, a record for the prime minister during the eight weeks of campaigning that saw him make more than 150 speeches.

Outside the theatre in Hamilton there were picketers carrying aloft a paper mache caricature of the prime minister's head.

"See the John Diefenbaker show featuring many new promises," one placard read.

Another carried the message, "Put the right to work in your Bill of Rights, John." Another declared, "We want jobs, not sobs."

One read, "Grief with Dief".

Hillcrest Back At Work Monday

Logging operations at Hillcrest Lumber Co. Ltd. Mesachie Lake claim west of Duncan will start up at full blast Monday morning for the first time since Jan. 2.

A formula offered to 88 loggers, who have stayed away from work because free transportation was cut off at the beginning of the year, was accepted in a noon-hour vote today.

The formula was worked out at a conference in Vancouver Friday, called by Percy Clements, newly elected president of IWA Local 1-80 in Duncan, and attended by other IWA officials and company representatives.

U.K. Doctors Will Come

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of British doctors announced today they will offer their services to the Saskatchewan government if doctors in that province carry out their threatened boycott of the provincial medical insurance plan to become effective July 1.

A spokesman for the group said the British movement was launched when doctors in Saskatchewan who support the plan appealed to friends in England for help.

Douglas Predicts 'Upset'

REGINA (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas put the seal on his national election campaign Friday night with a declaration that Monday's voting will produce "a political upset."

The former Saskatchewan CCF premier told an overflow audience of about 3,000 at a rally in his home riding that the Conservatives now are "almost certain to go flown to defeat."

Earlier in a paid political telecast, he forecast there would be a change of government with the NDP playing "an important role" in the next Parliament. He did not estimate the number of seats the 218 NDP candidates would win.

Today, he was scheduled to put the finishing touches on his own personal campaign to win election in Regina constituency, where he has to overturn a large Conservative majority recorded in 1958.

Tonight he drives 70 miles southeast to Weyburn to speak at a rally in support of NDP candidate Cecil Bailey, who is seeking to replace former CCF-NDP House Leader Hazen Argue as MP for Assiniboia

WILL ATTEND PICNIC

Mr. Douglas, 57, who used to represent the old Weyburn riding federally and also provincially, is to speak at a picnic Sunday afternoon at Fife Lake, about 60 miles south of Moose Jaw.

At Friday night's meeting he had to make two speeches because of the size of the crowd, as he did Thursday at Vancouver.

He first mounted a soapbox to deliver a 70-minute address before a crowd in the 2,200-seat Exhibition Auditorium's bullring. Several hundred persons stood along the walls and in the entrances.

Then he climbed onto a barrel in the adjoining stables section to give a brief second talk to about 500 persons, who had listened to his first address by loud-speaker relay.

The principal rally also was attended by Saskatchewan Premier Woodrow Lloyd, members of his cabinet and provincial CCF members of the legislature.

Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's administration "now is almost certain to go down to defeat as one of the

On Page 14 today is a final summary by correspondents of papers in F-P Publications on how the election looks across the nation.

The various geographical regions have their special reports on prospects for Monday's voting and reach the conclusion that the election race is a close one.

Record Voting Likely

By FRANK RUTTER

Record numbers are expected to vote Monday in Canada's election.

Vancouver Island will elect four members to Parliament.

There are 94,343 registered voters for the two Greater Victoria constituencies — 51,671 voters in Victoria and 42,671 in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Polls open at 8 a.m. local time, close at 7 p.m.

Business establishments must allow their employees at least three clear hours in which to vote.

MULTIPLE POLLS

There are 264 polls in Victoria; 174 in Esquimalt Saanich.

Victoria returning officer Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre says he expects to have his ballots counted and a result known by 9.30 p.m.

In Esquimalt-Saanich, with widely-scattered rural polls the result won't be known until at least 10 p.m., probably later, says returning officer Jack Davies.

There are 17 candidates for the four Island seats: Conservative, Liberal, New Democratic Party and Social Credit each have a man in Victoria, Esquimalt-Saanich and Nanaimo and Comox Alberni; the Communists are running a candidate in Comox.

All eligible voters are supposed to have received from returning officers a printed list of electors and location of their local polling station.

Only people whose names are on the list can vote.

Advance polls for people out of town Monday were held

'Every Seat Counts'

By The Canadian Press

Canada's big political guns fired their last salvos of the campaign Friday.

By Monday night it will be all over but the vote-counting to decide who will form Canada's next government.

Some 9,800,000 Canadians are eligible to pick the 264 MPs who will be chosen Monday from a record 1,012 candidates. Voting for a 265th member has been deferred until July 16 in one constituency, Stormont in Ontario, because of the death of the Liberal candidate there. Polls will be open Monday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. (Daylight time in B.C.)

From now on the sole campaign sounds to be heard will come only from the hustings. Partisan appeals on radio and TV—or even broadcast reports of such appeals—were stilled by law at midnight Friday night.

Every seat counts, but to form the government a party has to count on Ontario and Quebec—one or the other or both—for the bulk of its Commons representation.

With 84 seats at stake Monday in Ontario and 75 in Quebec, the two provinces combined will be electing 159 members to Parliament. A minimum of 133 seats is required by one party to form a majority government in the 265-seat Commons.

In 1957, when the Progressive Conservatives ended 22 years of Liberal rule, they were able to form a minority government by winning 61 of the Ontario seats while taking only nine of the Quebec constituencies.

It was only the fifth time in 24 general elections since Confederation, that a party formed the government without carrying Quebec.

SWEPT COUNTRY

However, in the Conservative sweep of 1958 they won the majority of seats in all provinces except Newfoundland while capturing every seat in four provinces—Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Alberta. Meanwhile, the Liberals failed to win anything in two other provinces as well Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

The 1958 voters gave the Conservatives 208 seats to 49 for the Liberals and eight for the old CCF. It was the largest representation ever accorded a Canadian government, the lowest number of seats to which the Liberals had been reduced and the second-lowest number for the CCF. Social Credit, which had hit a peak of 19 seats in 1957,

New Bid for Peace In Scorched Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—New fires broke out in Algiers in the Secret Army scorched-earth campaign today even as Europeans were reported making a final compromise peace bid to Moslem nationalists.

Word of the peace contact came as a surprise. The Secret Army said in ordering a new campaign of destruction Thursday that secret contacts with the Moslems had failed.

Few believed the Moslems would agree to the Secret Army demands for additional guarantees for Algeria's European minority. But well-informed sources in Paris said an all-night session in Rocher Noir, the Algerian administrative capital, brought the possibility of a Moslem amnesty for the Secret Army when Algeria becomes independent.

In return for a general amnesty, the Secret Army would halt its scorched-earth policy aimed at destruction of buildings and facilities the Moslems will inherit when they achieve independence.

DYNAMITE CAUSED AIR CRASH

Passenger Bought Explosives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics board said today that a dynamite explosion definitely ripped apart a Continental Airlines 707 jet over Centerville, Iowa, last May, killing all 45 persons aboard.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An unemployed cosmetics salesman bought explosives shortly before he and his blonde business partner were killed with 43 other persons aboard a Continental Airlines jet that blew apart over Iowa, according to an FBI report.

The report said Thomas G. Doty, 34, of Merriam, Kan., who was facing an armed robbery charge—bought the explosives at a hardware store in the Kansas City Mo., area.

Doty also was described as having studied the use of explosives in the past.

A dynamite-like explosive planted in the rear restroom ripped apart the Continental 707 jet about 39,000 feet over southern Iowa on the night of May 22.

Killed aboard the Chicago-to-Kansas City flight were Doty, Mrs. Geneva Fraley, Doty's petite business colleague in a planned home furnishings firm, and all 43 other persons aboard.

Doty was reported to have carried at least $275,000 in flight insurance, naming his pregnant wife Naomi as beneficiary. Mrs. Fraley was insured for $75,000.

Doty had been scheduled to make a court appearance three days after the crash on an armed robbery charge.

The FBI interviewed hundreds of persons in an effort to determine whether any federal law was violated.

CLERGYMEN ASK DELAY OF PLAN

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—A group of six Prince Albert ministers and priests issued a statement today calling on the Saskatchewan government to delay its compulsory medical care insurance plan.

The statement suggested that the government present a plan which is more in keeping with traditional Christian thought.

It said the medical care insurance act in its present form "allows for the possibility of the denial of any degree of freedom of choice not only to a doctor but to each citizen."

The group was accepting the challenge of M. J. Coldwell, former CCF leader, to "stand up and be counted" on the medical care issue in the province.

The statement said the clergy were in complete agreement with the desire of the government to provide a medical service but said there were sound reasons for doubt that the present act was best suited for the purpose.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Alfred A. Knopf, the New York publisher, writes us that he is considering formation of a citizens' committee to investigate Congress—because there are so many congressional committees investigating citizens.

ALFRED KNOPF
. . . investigators investigated

Lately these committees have been bearing down on expense accounts, so next time the tax man calls, he is going to have on his desk a news report which discloses that Rep. Richard E. Lankford (D—Maryland) made some kind of history by spending $95 a day—not counting his plane and train tickets—on a 38-day trip around the world last fall.

Mr. Knopf also notes that four Senate committees spent $56,791 last year and four House committees spent $119,303.

Before we point the finger of scorn at the Americans, I'd like to know this:

Who paid for the election junketeering of Premier Bennett and half a dozen other cabinet ministers in the past two weeks, ranging as far east as the Maritimes?

How much did those trips cost? Were our cabinet ministers on vacation, paying their own way, or were they working for us?

Ha!

The latest issue of TCA's lively magazine, "In Flight," devotes a section to Canada's Treasure Island and contains this gem:

"If you know England, you'll feel right at home (in Victoria), for here are helmeted 'bobbies' like those in London . . ."

Should we tell them? Or leave it to the policemen's union?

America was there:

The ubiquitous U.S. tourists announced their presence at the opening of the Law Courts by the Princess Royal on Friday in their usual friendly way.

Leader of a group of Girl Scouts turned to her charges and said: "All right, all those who want their pictures taken with a Mountie, this way."

And two city detectives moved conspicuously among the crowd.

The thinner of the two mimicked his counterparts in the president's bodyguard with a casual remark to his colleague:

"Guess we'd better see if there's any snipers in those trees."

And two American tourists were wandering through Alf Pettersen's Wooded Wonderland at Beaver Lake the other day, not knowing that Alf was skulking in the woods trying to hear what his visitors had to say about the place and its plastic scenes from fairy tales.

As they came alongside Jack cutting down the Beanstalk, Alf crept closer just in time to hear the lady burble: "Isn't that cute, dear? George Washington and the Cherry Tree!"

TOLLS LIFTED ON 3 BRIDGES BY NEXT YEAR

KELOWNA (CP)—Premier Bennett announced Friday that tolls on three bridges will be removed next year.

He announced that as of April 1, 1963, the beginning of the next fiscal year, the Nelson, Rosedale-Agassiz and the Okanagan Lake bridges will be toll free.

In a television broadcast in support of Okanagan federal election candidates he made no mention of the tolls on the Deas Island throughway, near Vancouver, but repeated an earlier offer he had made regarding the two bridges across Vancouver Harbor.

He said recently that if the federal government will subsidize two lanes of the Second Narrows Bridge the provincial government will handle the rest of the cost of the $23,000,000 bridge and take the tolls off.

The First Narrows Bridge would be handed over to the City of Vancouver, which could remove the tolls if it desired but could not increase the tolls past their present level.

ELECTED Friday in Vancouver as president of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. was Victorian W. Gordon Holms, partner in the firm of Bailey, Monteith, Holms and Co. There are 1,203 qualified and 586 student members of the Institute register.

and another, "You'll be sorry if you vote Tory."

PICKETS ORDERLY

In an orderly fashion the picketers patrolled the sidewalk outside the theatre. At one point a group of placard-carrying Conservatives mingled with them and continued the march, back and forth. There was good natured jibes and laughter, some pushing and shoving, but nothing serious.

Police were on hand to keep order.

The picketers were unidentified. Asked who they were, they refused to say. One declared, "We're independent, we're out of work."

"Across the country," said the prime minister, "this party is securing tremendous support and will be the government of the day after Monday."

"We've got Canada rising in the most tremendous economic surge in history. Give us the opportunity in the days ahead to march forward together—to carry out our great program for Canadians."

Once more, he flayed the Liberals, challenging them to take a stand for today, not for tomorrow.

But his stiffest words were directed against Russia and Soviet Premier Khrushchev in the wake of Thursday's Russian note to Canada protesting "preparations" for nuclear armament.

"I warn you," he said, "we don't want Mr. Khrushchev on our side."

He accused the Soviet leader of trying to "coerce" Canadian voters into defeating his government at the polls.

'WE MET THE PROBLEM'

On unemployment, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"We met the problem. It was difficult. We faced tremendous odds. We did not ask for sympathy. This problem has been met by this government."

Reciting some of his uture plans, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"Everyone of us here has a mission in life . . ."

"To remove you from office," said a heckler.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke in support of the four Hamilton-area Conservative candidates, one of them Immigration Mininster Ellen Fairclough.

The wind-up speech came at the end of a day that started with a cabinet meeting in the prime minister's special coach on a CPR train travelling from Toronto to Welland.

On local topics, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"In keeping with our policy of improving the transportation facilities of this country the government has reached the conclusion that it should proceed as quickly as possible, with the twinning of the locks of the Great Welland canal," he said.

"It is acquiring the property that is necessary for this huge project. In the meantime, the payment of tolls on the canal is to be suspended immediately," he added.

The project is estimated to cost between $150,000,000 to $200,000,000.

. . . THOMPSON

Welland Canal would be lifted, a move long sought by Niagara businessmen.

He asked whether the prime minister made the announcement now "because he thought it could get votes." Similarly, he said, the government announced an increase in old-age pensions only a few weeks ago to attract votes.

"The Liberals have done the same thing. Why? Because there are 900,000 old people in Canada whose votes both parties would like to have. It amounts to political bribery."

He said the attacks by the two major party leaders on each other constitutes a "disgraceful" demonstration and make a shambles of democracy.

Nor did he neglect the New Democratic party. He said the NDP platform of a "planned economy means, as far as I'm concerned, a controlled people."

SAYS HOLDS BACK

In Saskatchewan, the CCF government "has done a reasonable job of keeping the provinces from going ahead with the other western provinces," he said. "The flow of people out of East Germany is second only to the flow of people out of Saskatchewan."

On the economic front, Mr. Thompson said if Mr. Diefenbaker can convince Canada that all is well "he will have pulled off the greatest confidence trick since the days of Mackenzie King."

"And if Mr. Pearson can blot out the record of the tight-money, high-cost-of-living Liberal regime he will have proved himself a magician of stature."

What is needed, he said, is a Social Credit government committed to a reduction of the national debt, a lowering of taxes and an end to high interest rates.

The party leader returns by air today to his home riding of Red Deer for Monday's voting was eliminated from Parliament.

. . . ELECTION RACE

All of the four major parties are fielding more than enough candidates this year to form the government.

The Conservatives have a full slate of 264, the Liberals 263, Social Credit 229 and the New Democratic Party, the CCF's successor, 217. Among the other 39 candidates, there are 12 running under the Communist label.

In 1958, a total of 7,287,297 out of 9,131,200 eligible voters went to the polls for a 79.8 per cent turnout — also a record. The last-minute interest in the campaign indicates a record will almost certainly be set this time.

Members of the armed services in Canada and overseas, their wives and persons in veterans' hospitals cast ballots this week, from Monday to Saturday. A total of 139,183 persons were eligible to vote.

This armed services vote likely will not be announced until Saturday, June 23.

COULD BE DIFFERENCE

If Monday's civilian vote is close, the service votes could conceivably mean the difference between victory and defeat once they are added. The service vote changed the result of the election-day civilian vote in one seat each in 1957 and 1958, and in 1945 it cost former Prime Minister Mackenzie King his Saskatchewan seat of Prince Albert.

The parties also have been wooing the Indians—given the franchise for the first time by the 1960 Parliamentary session. An estimated 59,000 to 60,000 are eligible to vote.

Just how many Indians will exercise their new right is a question mark. Despite government assurances that they were given the franchise with no strings attached, some bands have remained suspicious and some chiefs have instructed their members not to vote.

In addition, 3,000 to 4,000 residents of the far-north districts of Keewatin and Franklin are receiving the vote for the first time through Parliament's action earlier this year of enlarging the old constituency of Mackenzie River and renaming it Northwest Territories.

most inept, inefficient and incompetent governments in Canadian history."

CRITICIZES PC RECORD

Its record was one of economic stagnation, record unemployment and depressed farm income.

The NDP chief criticized what he called the government's "slow but steady strangulation of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation" and the "undermining" of Canada's national airline service.

"The Diefenbaker administration has steadily whittled away the power, prestige and the potential for public service of the CBC."

He charged that the government's surrender to pressure from the Canadian Pacific Railway to introduce a privately-owned competitor on transcontinental routes has resulted in both Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines running deficits.

It was his defence of his party's medical care platform and the program due to come into force in Saskatchewan July 1 that drew the loudest and most prolonged applause of the evening.

Mr. Douglas said one of "the worst campaigns of attempted intimidation" he had ever seen has been waged in Saskatchewan.

"A small group of doctors, well known as supporters of the Liberal party, joined hands with the Sifton press and Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher and are trying to kid the people they are concerned with the doctor-patient relationship."

The NDP leader arrived earlier in the day from Winnipeg. He was driven in a motorcade from the airport to a downtown committee room — avoiding on the way another motorcade organized in protest against the provincial health care plan.

last Saturday and Monday.

This is the first general election in which Indians have been allowed to vote. There are several hundred in Esquimalt-Saanich, mostly on the Saanich peninsula.

Most recent local federal voting was May 29, 1961, when 27,642 people cast ballots in an Esquimalt-Saanich byelection.

Conservative George Chatterton won that by 544 votes over Liberal Davild Groos. They're fighting it out again this time.

40,818 LAST TIME

In the last full general election 40,818 people voted in Victoria in electing Conservative A. deB. McPhillips. Liberal Geoff Ellis was second, 16,239 votes behind. Mr. McPhillips is the only candidate from 1958 running again.

At Nanaimo 24,446 people voted in 1958, electing Conservative W. F. Matthews, with a majority of 705.

In Comox-Alberni 24,916 voted in '58, electing another Conservative, Harry McQuillan by 1,876 votes.

RAPS FLEMING

Vicious Attack Pearson Charges

OTTAWA (CP)—A "ferocious" Fleming speech Friday night in Toronto indicates the Progressive Conservatives are desperate about Monday's election results, Liberal Leader Pearson said today.

"He called me a Communist," Mr. Pearson said of the Toronto address by Finance Minister Fleming. "When they descend to that level, believe me, they are desperate."

Mr. Pearson was addressing about 200 people in the Carleton constituency committee room.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Fleming dropped to the "depths of smearing" and violated truth, integrity and decency.

Mr. Pearson's statement referred to the Finance Minister's remark that the Russians in their statement Thursday—accusing Canada of preparing for nuclear armament — indicated they wanted Mr. Pearson to win the election because he had said "much as he later regretted it, that he'd rather be Red than dead."

The Liberal leader's statement in full:

"Mr. Fleming is a man who talks much about truth, integrity and decency. In his vicious attack on me last night he has violated all three."

"He has uttered a pitiable falsehood, in a last desperate effort to get votes.

"I will let the record speak against Mr. Fleming's slander—my record, in war and in peace, as a fighter for freedom and security. That record includes the honor of having been twice vetoed by the Communists for the highest office at the United Nations.

"It is sad to see a minister of the Crown descend to such depths of smearing. The Canadian people was fair-minded. They will decide on Monday; and in deciding, they will not be duped by Khrushchev or deceived by Fleming.

"They will decide for themselves who can best serve Canada in the years ahead."

'BETTER RED THAN DEAD' ISSUE REVIVED

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming said Friday night the Soviet government wants Liberal Leader Pearson to win Monday's federal election because it fears Prime Minister Diefenbaker's anti-Communist program.

"The man they want," he said, "Is the man who said—much as he later regretted it—that he'd rather be Red than dead."

He indicated the Russians had shown their preference Thursday in issuing a statement accusing the Canadian government of preparing for nuclear armament.

The rather-Red-than-dead remark was coined after Mr. Pearson appeared on a television program. He said he would rather live under communism and try to change it to democracy than risk a nuclear world war.

Later, he modified the statement.

Election Fund Queries Hurled at Candidates

By FRANK RUTTER

The four federal candidates of Esquimalt-Saanich Friday night were quizzed about their campaign funds as a Brentwood crowd of 150 gave them a boisterous sendoff to the polls.

A meeting in Brentwood Women's Institute Hall was the last of the campaign and both crowd and candidates were in a good humor.

All the candidates got a heckling and there was keen questioning.

It was another old-time campaign meeting like last week's at Strawberry Vale.

It had a folksy touch: Social Credit candidate Reginald Pring told a story about ants; Liberal David Groos told one about his wartime experiences in the navy; Conservative George Chatterton related one from Howard Green's joke book.

Mr. Pring threw a peppermint at a heckler.

"You're getting a little hoarse," he said.

"Give me a different one; I didn't like the flavor," complained the man later.

High point came when a man asked each candidate to tell who paid for his campaign and how much.

New Democrat Geoff Mitchell was the only one to give a figure. He had spent $900, he said, and his organizers were arguing whether to spend another $50 or $75 on a newspaper advertisement.

'Few Dollars' Contributed By People

Mr. Pring said funds were "mighty scarce." He said he picked up a few dollars here and there "from the people."

"I bet I spent less than these other candidates though," he added.

Mr. Groos said: "I don't know where my funds come from and I want to keep it that way, because if I do there's a chance somebody would try to tell me what to do. Nobody answers for me and nobody answers for the Liberal party, which is more than I can say for other people around here."

He and Mr. Chatterton clashed on unemployment.

Mr. Groos quoted a report used in the campaign by the Liberals predicting 750,000 unemployed by 1964.

Mr. Chatterton said if Conservative policies were continued, by the end of the year there wouldn't be an unemployment problem; it would be "a problem of employables," of finding enough skilled men to fill jobs.

Mr. Groos recalled that 14,000 skilled workers lost their jobs when the Conservatives cancelled the Avro Arrow jet interceptor, cut up the six models in production with acetelyne torches and sold them to a Toronto junk dealer. He said many of these skilled workers had been forced to go to the U.S. to find jobs.

Mr. Chatterton attacked the Liberals for "spreading doom and gloom."

Grits Failed to Hand Power Back

"The Liberal government did not recognize the war was over and it was time to hand over their rights to the people."

Mr. Groos said he found a general feeling in Esquimalt-Saanich that the Liberals could have done a better job than the Tories in the last five years.

He said there had been newspaper stories in England that the British Tory government hopes the Canadian Tories will lose the election Monday. There have been stories that the U.S. government hopes the same. Now Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said the Russians hope he loses.

"Monday night he will find even the Canadians don't want to have the Conservative government returned."

Mr. Mitchell said he was amused at the "backchat" between the Liberals and Conservatives.

"It's a case of the pot calling the kettle black and it's all very unfortunate for us Canadians," he said.

"The only reason the NDP is free to act is because it is not bound by any outworn economic theories and is not dependent on campaign funds from big corporations."

But a woman in the audience disagreed:

"We wouldn't be able to think, plan or do anything for ourselves," she shouted and got a big round of applause.

Mr. Pring said anybody voting for the Liberals or Conservatives "ought to have their heads examined," because their policies would only increase the burden of national debt.

He also took a poke at the newspapers: "I get a great kick out of reading the newspapers; sometimes they're so funny I don't even bother reading the funny papers."

... PEARSON

Liberals were behind all the heckling of Tories.

He repeated his earlier charge that the government, in claiming unemployment was licked and displaying figures showing a 150,000 drop in unemployment, was playing a "cruel hoax" on Canadians.

The Conservative government, he said, was not facing problems, but a Liberal government would.

In addition, he said, the government was a victim of its own mismanagement, with its expenditure of $600 million from the exchange fund over five months and with its five years of deficits.

He claimed companies were changing Canadian dollars for other currencies, because they lacked confidence in the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Pearson quoted Friday's issue of The Toronto Globe and Mail, "a Conservative newspaper," in support of this argument.

This was interpreted to be a reference to a recent claim by the prime minister to the effect that the U.S. was "howling" about Canada's devaluation of its currency, as well as to Premier Khrushchev's diplomatic attack on what he called Canada's preparation for nuclear armament.

In an elaboration on this theme at his Brantford gathering, Mr. Pearson said: "We have the government talking about the U.S. howling against devaluation and about how the Tories are going to defend us from the U.S.

PEOPLE WILL DECIDE

"The issue will be defended by the Canadian people. And I think it doesn't matter what Mr. Khrushchev thinks about it. It's what the Canadian people think that matters in this election."

The Liberal leader said the Government didn't hesitate to provide the latest figures before the election, on unemployment. By the same token, they should not hesitate to give the latest figure on the exchange fund.

"Why don't they give the facts on the dollar?" he said.

Mr. Pearson declared that a "crisis is bound to explode into further devaluation if the Tory government is allowed to continue after June 18."

"The damage has been done," he said, "and we have to start in and repair the damage."

WON'T TELL

Mr. Pearson tied in the devaluation with a new tight money development. The central bank interest rate had gone to four per cent, he said, when a few years ago it was considered to be good at two per cent.

"What will be the result of devaluation and tight money?" he asked his audience. "Mr. Fleming is the only one who knows and he won't tell us. But it will mean higher prices in store. I ask you to help me stop this on June 18."

Mr. Pearson said the Liberals would "get people working again . . . and once we get the economy moving forward again then we can put into effect further social security measures."

These would include a contributory old age pension scheme and a system of federal university scholarships, both of which would require co-operation with the provinces.

NDP Wants Power Plans Re-Examined

The New Democratic Party feels that the Columbia River power plans should be completely re-examined, because "we strongly object to this province and this country being thought of as a reservoir for exploitation by private interests."

Harry Fanthorpe, NDP candidate for Victoria in the June 18 federal election, charged that the plans had been worked out "for purely political reasons, and not, I know, with the sole interest of the residents of B.C. and Canada in mind."

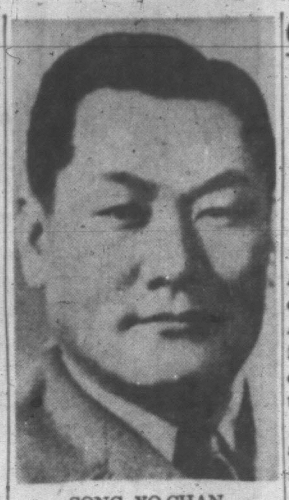

ABOLISH SENATE

He was speaking at a house meeting in the home of Newton White, 1841 Crescent Road.

"The NDP is firmly opposed to any plan for the sale of downstream benefits until it is established that this power cannot be used in Canada and by Canadian industries."

When Senate reform is debated, said Mr. Fanthorpe, "abolition of the Senate is the only answer."

Describing the Senate as a plum for political patronage, Mr. Fanthorpe said that mention by the present government that it will institute Senate reform is "very commendable . . . but . . . will revert back to packing the Senate with more of their own members."

SONG YO-CHAN

Korean Leaders Resign

SEOUL (AP) — Pro-Western Premier Song Yo-chan quit his post today and South Korea's military government announced the resignation had been accepted.

A statement by the ruling junta also announced acceptance of the resignation of Finance Minister Chun Byung-kyu.

The rest of the cabinet ministers had said they were stepping down too, but the junta's announcement mentioned only Song and Chun.

The junta statement said the premier and finance minister had resigned for "personal reasons."

There have been reports that Song and Chun had been in sharp disagreement over economic policy, one of the toughest issues the military government has faced.

The junta issued its announcement after an emergency meeting under strongman Gen. Chung-hee Park.

On March 24, President Yun Po-sun quit in protest over black-listing of former Korean politicans and Park took over that position.

Song, 44, was expected to call a press conference after the council decision is announced to explain his resignation. He was reported to have been feuding with Finance Minister Chung Byung-kyu.

The premiership, like the presidency, is mainly a figurehead post. The real power rests with the junta.

Song became premier July 4, 1961, when Park ousted Lt.-Gen. Chang Do-young.

French Pianist Dies

LAUSANNE (Reuters) — French pianist Alfred Cortot died in hospital here Friday night, the Swiss news agency reported. He was 84.

Cortot, one of the greatest pianists France has ever produced, was world-renowned for his playing of Chopin, and other such romantic composers and Liszt and Schumann.

Plumbers Vote

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Plumbers Union in B.C. are voting today on whether to accept a 28-cent increase in the hourly wage over a three-year contract. The offer made by employers is for an eight-cent immediate increase in the $3.14 basic hourly wage with increase of 10 cents an hour in each of the following two years.

CITY HALL BLASTED

'Remote Control' Levels Algeria

ALGIERS (AP)—The Secret Army was feared today to be capable of destroying much of Algeria by remote control in its terrorist scorched-earth campaign to reduce the territory to a wasteland.

Secret Army commandos shattered Algiers' massive city hall with explosives Friday night hours after heavily damaging a municipal hospital and destroying a big power dam. And European terrorists put the torch to private property throughout the capital.

The explosion in the city hall killed at least six soldiers and wounded 43 others.

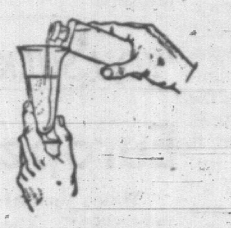

Police officers said the Secret Army had planted an estimated 200 pounds of explosives in the city hall weeks before a company of soldiers moved in to guard the building. They said the charges apparently were set off by someone who had only to enter the building, light the fuses and walk away. Police feared similar charges are planted in other facilities throughout the territory.

DESTROY PAVILIONS

Terrorists blew up three surgical pavilions and the modernistic laboratory of the 2,500-bed Mustaphan Hospital. No one was injured, but officials feared the $100,000 damage could not be repaired under present conditions.

Europeans fleeing the territory by the thousands heeded Secret Army orders to burn everything that might be of use to the Moslems. Stores and office buildings were burned to the ground in scattered parts of Algiers. Automobiles were set afire in the streets where they were abandoned.

The Choice Before Us

NOT MANY CANADIANS will be entirely satisfied with the alternatives facing them at Monday's polling booths. Only a handful of extreme partisans can believe that the Diefenbaker government is blameless or that the Liberal Party has all the answers to the nation's critical problems.

But the only practical alternatives before the nation are to re-elect the government or elect the opposition. The third possibility of a stalemate in Parliament with the splinter parties holding a balance of power until another election is called, cannot be excluded but it is not practical.

In a democratic system there is never any perfect choice, any government free of mistakes, any faultless opposition. A free society must choose the best alternative available, knowing that it will fall far short of that perfection which is reserved, in theory, for slave societies.

Between elections most people in this country are dissatisfied with government and opposition alike, as they have every reason to be. When the polls open, however, neutrality becomes impossible. The citizen must vote for one candidate or another. If he refuses to vote he is not truly a citizen and does not deserve the freedom which only the democratic process can provide.

The choice on Monday, then, must be a Conservative government led by Mr. Diefenbaker or a Liberal government led by Mr. Pearson. Which could best manage the nation's business at a time of much graver crisis than the public yet realizes? For all the lofty talk on both sides that is the single issue of the election.

No magic need be expected from either side. The problems now immediately ahead of us will not be solved simply, painlessly or quickly. They are far too deep for that.

As the reader knows, this newspaper believes that the Diefenbaker government, despite some worthwhile achievement, is a failure on the whole, its failure demonstrated by the total disorder of national finance, by the alarming weakness of that key index, the Canadian dollar, by the state of the national economy, and by the high level of unemployment.

On the other hand, we have never disguised our dissatisfaction with some aspects of the Liberal Party's policies or some of Mr. Pearson's mistakes. But like the individual voter, a newspaper must choose between the materials at hand and, all things considered, the best available choice, we think, is the Liberal Party.

We say that not because we suppose that the views of any newspaper are likely to affect the voters much but only because a newspaper, like a voter, has an obligation to make up its mind on public policy. Unlike a voter, whose vote is private, it is bound to say what it thinks about an election while impartially reporting the views of all parties and candidates, as we have tried to do in the news columns. So-called "independence" in editorial columns at election time can only mean that the newspaper is unable or afraid to say where it stands.

At this late date it is useless to go over all the arguments of a campaign distinguished mainly by its confusion, double-talk and impossible promises on all sides.

Nevertheless, the campaign has served a useful purpose. Beginning as a contest of bland irrelevancies, it has finally persuaded the nation that something is very wrong with its affairs, that the dollar devaluation of May 2 revealed not a passing difficulty but an organic trouble which must be attacked by some government without further delay.

The single question worth considering now is whether the government which brought Canada to this crisis can cure it; or whether the cure requires stronger hands. Every citizen worthy of the franchise must consider that question before the polls open on Monday. Every Canadian family must accept the consequences one way or the other.

The Problem Remains

FEDERAL STATISTICS REveal that the divorce rate in Canada during 1961 was 35.6 per 100,000 of the population. It was the lowest figure since 1944, even though it represented 6,486 divorces.

As a basis of comparison, the rate in the United States runs about six times that in Canada, and Britain's percentage is about the same as ours. Most divorces represent a failure, a tragedy, a disappointment of high hopes. But there are many marriages which, for one reason or another, should be dissolved at the request of one or both parties to the union.

At present, the situation in Canada is far from satisfactory, particularly in the provinces of Quebec and Newfoundland where special legislation by Parliament is required for each divorce. The solution to the divorce rate is not to make divorces difficult to obtain—thereby dooming many an unfortunate marriage partner to a life of sorrow and wretchedness—but to ensure better preparation for marriages so that fewer of those completed will prove disastrous.

The final answer is not, of course, an easy one to find. But it is not likely to be found through our present method of handling divorce.

Studying Like the Dickens

THIS MONTH THE DICKENS Fellowship held its 56th annual conference in the Parker House, Boston, gratifying a hope that its members might some time meet in the United States and honoring the city which Dickens found the only one friendly to him on his two visits across the Atlantic.

The occasion marked the 150th anniversary of the writer's birth, the 120th anniversary of his first trip to the United States and the 95th anniversary of his second.

By all accounts the conference sessions were a success, but to some admirers of the English social writer one phase of the gathering might have caused worry.

The membership, one authority assured the conference, is changing "to a more scholarly organization interested in the serious study of Dickens." All well and good for the scholars.

But Fellowship or no Fellowship, may we still keep Dickens as a writer whom people read for enjoyment and entertainment? As long as he remains such the social crusade he conducted will be understood by readers. Make him an object of too serious study and he could lose that appeal.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AN interesting hour or two can be spent at Ardmore Beach, near Sidney.

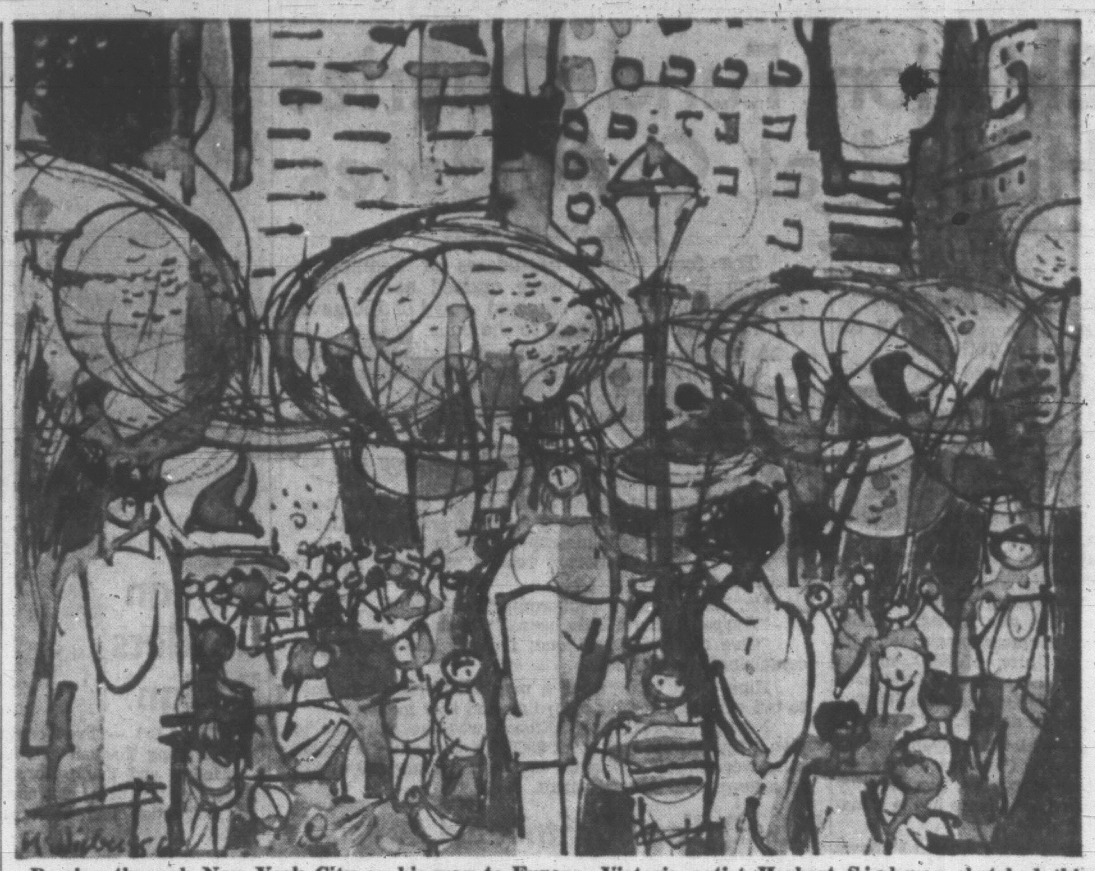

There amongst the tide pools many fasinating creatures can be found. You can find the Sea Lace, one of the animals that clings to a rock and looks as if it were some delicate etching. Or perhaps you will find it on one of the algae. You must look very closely to find this colony of minute sea creatures.

Turn over a stone and see how many different-colored little shore crabs you can see. Be sure to put the stone back in its place so the little animals can find shelter again.

You will find some stones with what looks like the shell of a kind of worm. Watch a while and you will see emerging from this curled shell what resembles the tiny red stamen of a plant. This will be the feeding tentacles of this animal.

Barnacles do not seem to be very spectacular to most of us, but examine one and see how it is made. See the wonderful "trap door" that keeps the animal secure and moist when the tide is out, watch when it is open and its fine tentacles sweep the water for its food.

Look into the crevice of a rock where you may find one of the many star fish clinging. Perhaps it is clinging to some helpless mussel or an oyster, which the star fish can open by steady pressure.

Passing through New York City on his way to Europe, Victoria artist Herbert Siebner sketched this scene, which he describes: "Central Park in the afternoon is like a meeting place of the children of all races and nations. With all the human and animal voices contending, I got the feeling that the youngsters had burst out of their small city rooms to 'live it up' in the open on the lawn and among the trees."

'YOU SULKED IN YOUR TENTS'

Europeans are Dumbfounded by Canada's Stand on Trade

Times Special Correspondent

BRUSSELS: The Canadian government, it is widely believed by leading Europeans here, is at most lukewarm, or according to some, actually hostile, to President Kennedy's trade expansion act.

The Europeans are dumbfounded. They realize that Canadian exports are likely to be hurt, in the short run at least, if Britain joins their Common Market. That is precisely why they expected Canada to be the first nation to jump on the Kennedy Atlantic bandwagon.

"It's crazy," a senior official of the Commission of the European Economic Community told me: "Your people surely must have prayed for a major attempt to get the tariffs of your Atlantic trading partners down. But when the Washington administration, the only government with the power to get results, proposed just that, they sulked in their tents."

Explaining, he said: "Your people were mad about President Kennedy's historic speech launching his campaign. Why? Because he failed to mention Canada. Imagine. Forgetting 18 million Canadians for 180 million Europeans."

Canadians here have tried to counteract the impression that the Diefenbaker government opposes the Kennedy initiative. Unfortunately, conversations with Europeans show, texts of Canadian ministerial speeches have not done the job. They apparently cannot because the guarded language of Messrs. Diefenbaker and Fleming just does not square with what the Europeans not unnaturally expected.

The Common Market, I was assured here, takes the Kennedy program very seriously indeed. Studies of all sorts about what it could mean are being made by the Commission.

If the legislation passes Congress and Britain joins the Common Market, negotiators from the two sides of the Atlantic should be able to get down to their historic talks in 1964. Tariff reductions agreed upon will be phased out over a five-year period, meaning, if all goes well, the emergence of a new trading world by 1970, the year when the Common Market, under the Treaty of Rome, is to be completed.

What are the prospects for a wholehearted European response to the American initiative? No one here can yet say with certainty. The opportunity, it is appreciated, is immense; but equally great is the challenge for statesmanship.

Before the Atlantic can be bridged the English Channel must be crossed. Europeans appreciate the crucial importance of Commonwealth reaction to the British government's final decision. All they ask is that countries like Canada weigh long-term desirabilities with short-term dislocations before jumping on the anti-Common Market scale.

If the Brussels negotiations are brought to a successful conclusion the Europeans can promise no sudden all-embracing free trade pact with North America. They will first have to settle their own internal debate round the question: how much cement do you need for the solidity of your own house?

Some insist they will need a good deal. Common Market thinking, as shown by the refusal to form a free trade area with other European countries, has always been that the abolition of tariffs and tariff quotas is meaningless without other measures. Domestic social legislation must be harmonized, rules of competition accepted.

Because political association is ruled out by both sides, all-embracing Atlantic free trade is out of the question for the present. But, many sources here believe, the gradual freeing of trade President Kennedy has in mind is very much in the European as well as in the world interest.

As long as the gap between North American and European wage levels remains there should be no need for the Community to over-emphasize harmonization of competition provisions. Psychologically, it will probably be important to the community that some tariffs remain but often at levels which have little practical effect.

Such generalities from Europeans, Canadian skeptics will be quick to point out, scarcely offer the rest of us a panacea. The answer from sources here is abrupt: from the point of view of Canada what is the alternative?

Should Britain not join the Common Market, should he present American administration's historic campaign for world trade liberality be strangled at birth, the likelihood predicted here is a return to protectionism in the world's two largest markets.

For the United States, where trade as a percentage of gross national product is low, there is no guarantee that the thinking of the present leadership must always prevail. Nor is there for the Common Market where the natural movement is to self-sufficiency.

A reversal of the present trend would bring to Canada the worst of all possible worlds. That is why forward-looking Europeans expect Ottawa to be the foremost advocate of the thinking now voiced by President Kennedy. That is why they await Canada's election result with unprecedented interest.

SPENCER THE MAN AND SPENCER THE PAINTER — By TONY EMERY

He Moved Simply and Certainly in a World of His Own

A LITTLE while ago I commended to your notice Mr. Harold Town, painter and wit of Toronto. I really need not have feared that he would not otherwise be brought to your attention, since the following weeks saw his name and views spread over almost every periodical in the land: Maclean's, Weekend Magazine and Canadian Art all featured Town-talk of one sort or another. Some of this was every bit as hilarious as the original diatribe in Canadian Homes and Gardens, which I hope you didn't miss, and all of it was stimulating and provocative; but there were one or two rather sweeping assertions which, while they may well be true for Mr. Town, are not necessarily true for everyone.

Emery

He poured scorn, for instance, on Joyce Cary's portrait of an artist in The Horse's Mouth. He doesn't believe in Gulley Jimson because Jimson goes around thinking about painting all the time, and this is not the case with Mr. Town, who says that he only thinks about painting while he is actually painting.

Of course I do not have to point out to all you well-educated people that this is a fallacious argument. "Harold Town is a painter: Harold Town only thinks about painting while he is painting; Therefore painters only think about painting while they are painting." The fallacy has a name, even, and if you know it you get a couple of marks in English 100 examinations.

Actually there is no need to fall back on the useful machinery of formal logic in order to refute Mr. Town's assertion: apart from the commonsense view that probably not all painters act and feel in precisely the same way, I can offer some more relevant evidence in the case of Gulley Jimson, by citing Maurice Collis's recent biography of Stanley Spencer, the English painter who died eighteen months ago.

The character of Jimson was put together by Joyce Cary out of materials borrowed from the legendary lives of four outstanding artists who worked in England in the first half of this century: the sculptor Epstein, and the painters John, Sickert and Spencer, four men of marked individuality, to put it conservatively.

Gulley's actual painting, and his passion for the poetic mysticism of Blake, bring Stanley Spencer to the mind of the reader of "The Horse's Mouth" at every turn of page: so much so, that when I saw the film, which borrowed the hand of John Bratby to body forth the visions of Gulley Jimson, I was more than a little disappointed.

The description by Cary of the Lazarus mural, and of the final, fatal work which was literally the death of its creator evoke visions of masterpieces that only Spencer could have painted.

Whatever may be Harold Town's experience, there can be no doubt whatever that for Spencer painting and living were indissolubly bound together as two aspects of one—the only possible—mode of existence. Every one of his best canvases breathes the strange air that informs also the work of William Blake.

For these two originals there was only one world, which was at once the same everyday world that they shared with their contemporaries and also something quite different, something which contained as well all their visions and fancies seen with a more than hallucinatory clarity.

For Spencer everything that was real or important happened in Cookham, the Thameside village in which he passed fifty of almost seventy years on earth. The Last Supper took place in a Cookham barn; Christ carried the cross along the south end of Cookham High Street; The Centurion's Servant was healed in Spencer's Cookham bedroom, vividly remembered from his childhood; and the Resurrection was unthinkable anywhere else than in Cookham churchyard.

Where other people might speak of an "inner world" as well as the world around them, the expression would have held no meaning for Spencer, who moved simply and certainly in a world which he created for himself on one large canvas after another.

We are in a position to know a great deal about the way that Spencer thought and felt: we have not only his 450 paintings and several thousand drawings, but also about two million words that he wrote in the form of a daily diary-cum-love-letter to his first wife, Hilda, who died insane.

We owe a gigantic debt to Maurice Collis for having sifted through this mountainous pile of faintly-pencilled jottings, and yet another for having cast the result of his researches into an immensely readable biography, which imposes order and shape on what would otherwise be unreadably chaotic and amorphous.

And this order is not itself factitious. There was a shape in Spencer's life, imposed on that life by his early awareness that the divine was to be seen in the familiar, and by a later discovery that "sex was all-important . . . and that sacred and profane love were identical."

It is only in the light of this belief that his later paintings make any sense at all, and it also explains the strange affair involving Sir Alfred Munnings, the ex-President of the Royal Academy, who tried, in the most dishonest way possible, to get Spencer prosecuted for exhibiting obscene paintings.

The extent to which Spencer lived in a world entirely his own is reflected in an unposted letter to Hilda (he went on writing to her for years after she died, incidentally) while they were being divorced. He suggests that she should come and live with him and the second Mrs. Spencer.

"As you know," he says, "I dislike the idea of mistresses. I have always cherished the idea of marriage, but not marriage to one person."

Collis's biography explains all that it is necessary to know of Spencer the man in order to understand Spencer the painter. I hope you—and Mr. Town—will read it.

The Dollar—Troubling, Baffling, Exciting the Voter—Has Ruled the Election

By Maurice Western, From Ottawa

BY the will of the Canadian voter, the election of June 18 will go down in the records as the dollar election. No political leader willed it so. The prime minister, so far as one can judge from his public utterances, planned a two stage campaign devoted in the first weeks to the sins of liberal "bureaucrats" and in the second to his "confederation program." Mr. Pearson concentrated at the outset upon Conservative deficits and Liberal policies for national growth and expanding trade. Mr. Douglas sought, it seems, to make a national issue of Saskatchewan medicare.

Western

But the devalued dollar, in the past week, has dominated public discussion as decisively as the reciprocity issue dominated the election of 1911 or conscription that of 1917. It is not, of course, the only national issue but in a curious way it has submerged the others or come to symbolize them.

It is the theme of most speeches, of most hand-outs, of all parties and of the last appealing advertisements.

The voter, bending the politicians to his will, has brought order out of a confused debate. It was the dollar which troubled, excited or baffled him. So the dollar, strangely divorced from monetary policy (which interests only economists and crackpots), has ruled the election.

This is an astonishing development for in the usual "either . . . or" sense, the dollar is not an issue at all. No party has come out for a free—in opposition to the fixed—rate, and no party has committed itself on a return to parity.

But all three opposition parties have assailed the manner and timing of devaluation. All have expressed alarm about prospective price increases and the documentation has been effective enough to impose a defensive action on the Diefenbaker government.

This, clearly, is not what Mr. Fleming intended. Expansion was the pre-election budget theme, with devaluation merely one of the necessary means to a ministerial end.

What upset Conservative calculations was the psychological impact of the second round of devaluation coming in the very middle of the election campaign. Mr. Fleming has denied heatedly that he was forced into anything but such a move at such a time was bound to create uneasy suspicions that the ministers are captives and not masters of events.

Mr. Diefenbaker thundering against "greedy" persons, attempted last weekend to restore the position in the manner of Mr. Kennedy in the United States. Eastern Conservative newspapers, in an effort to give substance to the prime ministerial threats, have reported that Mr. Diefenbaker has talked by long-distance telephone with Mr. D. H. W. Henry, director of the combines branch and that Mr. Fulton, the minister of justice, has ordered an investigation.

This is dramatic but scarcely convincing because there is no law against price increases. The crimes against which the act is directed are those of conspiracy and combination. Mr. Henry himself has pointed out in public speeches that even identical tenders cannot be taken, in the absence of other evidence, as proof of illicit agreement.

The government, responding to appeals from various business groups, has, of course, amended the act to strike at "loss-leaders" and "unfair" business practices but these sections have to do with prices so low as to threaten competitors. They are useless weapons against price increases threatening the consumer.

It might be possible for the government to retaliate against some companies by withdrawing tariff protection. This would be unpalatable for the Conservatives, who are in fact arguing that devaluation offers industry all the benefits of the tariff. In any event, the government can obviously do nothing about items now on the free list including not merely products such as tropical fruits but whole categories of essential imports including farm machinery.

"A full dollar at home. A trading dollar abroad." The trouble with this conservative split personality dollar is, however, that it appears to be rejected alike by Conservative editors and by the business community. Obviously it will be something less than full if price increases are permitted and there seems to be no way of preventing them.

The Globe and Mail, supporting Mr. Diefenbaker, has in fact welcome devaluation as the prelude to a more austere and financially respectable national life. "Devaluation," according to that newspaper, "is specifically designed and intended to raise the price of foreign goods in our market to a point at which Canadians will be more selective in their purchases."

For the Liberals, and indeed for all the opposition parties, the 92.5 cent dollar (whether stable or not) is the symbol of Conservative mismanagement and springboard for attack on heavy spending, unbroken deficits, accumulating debt, unemployment and all the other sins attributed to the Diefenbaker regime.

It is perhaps the final irony of the campaign that the Conservatives are being attacked as the "funny money" party by the Social Credit heirs of Mr. William Aberhart, who rode to power in Alberta on the A plus B theorem.

Less noticed, perhaps, is the curious reversal of the Socialists. In the 1930s the CCF, then closely allied to producer interests, attacked Mr. Bennett's "sound money" policy and expressed admiration for Australian devaluation. Mr. Douglas, leading the NDP—which is much more closely linked with the trade unions—has shaken off this particular prejudice and yields to no one in virtuous condemnation of monetary blunders and the depreciated dollar.

The dominance of the dollar in the election campaign appears from this vantage point to be challenged only in the offices of the Ottawa Journal. For reasons which are not altogether clear the Journal, in the last week of the election, seems to have abandoned economics in favor of astrology.

While the message of the stars is expressed in somewhat delphic language, the editors interpret it as favorable to Mr. Diefenbaker, unfavorable to Mr. Pearson and disastrous for Mr. Douglas. There is nothing from outer space about Social Credit, which seems an extraordinary omission.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

Vote Early, Vote Often

The day after tomorrow we all go to the polls to select those who will represent us in Parliament for the next four or five years. The politicians tonight, as the campaign officially ends, will be wondering what Monday will bring. The hopefuls, some few no doubt, are anticipating the great joy of using the magic letters M.P. after their names. Others are simply glad all the nonsense is over, and wait with little more than mild curiosity.

SILENUS

Now that it has but a few short hours to run, we can look back at the election campaign with a measure of detachment. About all that can be said about it is that it was necessary, Parliament having run its customary course. The last session accomplished little; the members spent the last few months hurling challenges at each other and dissolving Quebec marriages. When the election was called, nobody doubted but that it was time to get it over with.

So the creaky and expensive machinery of universal suffrage clanked into action, and a mort of money has been spent by one and all in attracting us common people to one cause or another.

This election, as they all are, is essentially a scrap between the ins and the outs. It took quite a while for the outs to find a bone of contention; and eventually, as so often happens, they were obliged to resort to their imagination. The ins, as they must do, stood pat and pointed to what they had achieved. Around the ring the hopeful minorities skirmished, snapping first at this one and then at that.

And the voters went quietly about their business, paying, one guesses, little attention to the political tumult and shouting.

Truth to tell, the contenders have had a hard time engendering any enthusiasm. There has been very little for anyone to get steamed up about. It has been an axiom of politics ever since people took part in them, that governments are never elected in a positive fashion. They win, as it were, by default; as the Conservatives won in 1957. The 1958 election result was simply a confirmation of the defeat of the Liberals the year before, a strong popular voice telling the new administration to stop fiddling about and get on with the job.

Whether the country is ripe for another change after so short a time remains to be seen, and any opinion is as good as another in making forecasts. Vox populi, vox dei.

The only thing certain is that Sunday is for us all a day for electoral reflection. No Paid Political Announcements will afflict our eyes and ears. No unretouched photographs of candidates will appear for all to see. No one will make speeches, no one will promise, no one will display public indignation. The day is all ours to sit down and consider whether the ins have been bad enough to make way for the outs; and whether the outs, should they find themselves in, will be as different as they say they are.

Ho hum.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA — It's been quite an election campaign, no matter how you slice it. And I do mean the bologna.

Four and five years ago John Diefenbaker was the most promising politician to hit the hustings in a generation. This election he's been the least promising. He's learned how embarrassing election promises can be when the voters demand that you carry them out.

But despite his pot-black record on promises, he ringingly denounced as unrealistic and insincere the promises made by Liberal leader Pearson—119 promises, the PM said, that would cost $1.5 billions and would boost taxes 50 per cent.

For his part Pearson sliced the bologna thin with his 3-D denunciation of deficits, dollar devaluation and dollar reserve depletion. A Liberal government the last five years would have had deficits too—economic slowdown demanded deficit financing. The Grits themselves (viz., Walter Gordon) favored dropping the dollar to 90 U.S. cents. And Pearson's claim that the government's efforts to support the dollar at 95 U.S. cents had "cost" the country $500 millions is sheer nonsense. As Diefenbaker correctly pointed out, all that was involved was the sale, or exchange, of U.S. dollars in the treasury for Canadian dollars.

Perhaps it is the measure of Pearson's metamorphosis from statesman to politician that he could declare that "Canadians have been hurt in purse and pride" by dollar devaluation, without once repudiating Gordon's precampaign advocacy of a 90-cent dollar.

Similarly on the issue of freedom of speech. Pearson had plenty to say about the Conservatives' treatment of the former Bank of Canada governor, James Coyne, but not a word in public about the way Liberal Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland denied freedom of speech to Finance Minister Fleming.

But on the other hand, both leaders pleased me by their frank admission that further welfare measures such as increased pensions depend on increased national economic productivity. This means we've gone about as far as we can go on the basis of the present fruit of our labors. If we want more welfare we'll have to work harder to earn it. To which I say amen.

Anyone who hasn't been cynical about the great competition as to which leader had the greater drawing power in various cities is, I suggest, a little naive.

These jam-packed forums, auditoriums and theatres across the land were supposed to prove that the people cried out for John or Mike to lead the nation. But really what they mainly indicated was which party had the best organization in the area for filling halls and getting out the vote next Monday.

There also were some indication of which party had the more enthusiastic supporters—but not necessarily the largest number of supporters. And finally, large crowds are good for morale—the leader's morale, the organnzation people's morale and the morale of party supporters generally.

Both Grits and Tories used free entertainment and free transportation to pack their meetings. But none went so far as Socred deputy leader Real Caouette in Quebec. He had such a large entourage of Creditistes following him from meeting to meeting that he was always assured of an audience of a thousand people.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS — Relatively clear skies prevailed over southern interior regions of B.C. this morning and partly cloudy skies over the southern mainland and southern Vancouver Island. However, rain was falling over the northern coast and cloud cover extends into the central interior in advance of a disturbance centred just west of the Queen Charlottes. Increasing cloudiness is likely to spread to southern coastal regions this evening with shower activity tonight. It will be cooler in the southern interior Sunday.

ADLAI URGES 'SUMMIT MEET' ON PAKISTAN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) —United States Ambassador Adlai Stevenson called Friday for a high-level meeting between India and Pakistan "to ascertain the precise areas of disagreement between them" over Kashmir.

British delegate Sir Patrick Dean also called for negotiations and suggested the two countries avail themselves "of the good offices of some third party acceptable to both."

Single Army Plan of New Laos Premier

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Souvanna Phouma, prime minister-designate of the Laos coalition government, said this week his regime will try to establish a single national army, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The Laotian leader, talking to a Tass reporter in Laos, thanked Soviet Premier Khrushchev for the assistance Russia has given Laos since December, 1960.

Neutralist Souvanna said his new government "intends to establish special commissions in the very nearest future."

The commissions, he said, would "study and resolve the questions of merging all military formations into a single national army and setting up a single government and state machinery."

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE IN MOSCOW NEXT MONTH

'Peace Meet' Signal for Trouble?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP News Analyst

The Kremlin is preparing a major propaganda offensive. It will be launched July 9 in Moscow when a "world congress for general disarmament and peace" opens under sponsorship of the Moscow-directed World Peace Council.

World Peace Council conferences have been going on since the postwar years. Each meeting has been the forerunner of a new Soviet cold war move.

NEWS ANALYSIS

It is reasonable to suppose the forthcoming meeting will have similar results.

The council says the congress will attract representatives from 100 countries around the world. Most are Communists and Communist suporters. Many will be Communist-leaning artists, writers, professional people, public figures.

Artist Pablo Picasso has designed a new "peace dove" for the occasion—a dove hovering over a heap of destroyed weapons. It is supposed to dramatize Premier Khrushchev's proposals for disarmament.

Some probably will believe sincerely that going to the meeting strikes a blow for peace. They include members of Parliament from left-of-centre parties around the world.

Meetings like the one scheduled have preceded such actions as the Berlin blockade, the Korean invasion and other major moves. In 1958, a peace council drive was a prelude to Premier Khrushchev's sudden offensive against West Berlin.

Such operations often have double purposes. Frequently a propaganda drive is used to obscure trouble on the home front.

The Soviet people, paying 30 per cent more for meat and butter, have been told they must live with the idea of nagging shortages because of agricultural failures. Food shortages plague the rest of the Communist bloc.

Indications are ample in the Soviet press that the food price increases were a bitter pill for the Soviet public after years of hoping for abundance. Apart from violent daily propaganda against U.S. nuclear tests, much publicity is given to the peace congress.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

With this article Robertson Davies discontinues Writers Diary. Demands on his time by the organization of Massey College and his teaching at the University of Toronto are such that he finds himself no longer able to devote sufficient time to the preparation of a weekly column.

Graham Greene makes me feel foolish. I admire his work and read everything he writes, but always with the uncomfortable sense that I am a goggle-eyed youth listening to the wisdom of a being vastly more mature, more penetrating in his view of life, than I can ever be. I think I know his secret: his dogmatic religious belief diminishes those who have small appetite for dogma, and his conviction that life is a dreary swindle makes those of us who have frequent spells of cheerfulness feel naive.

I know what it is about his work that makes me feel a fool, but the trick works every time.

Consider his essay "The Lost Childhood", in which he talks about reading. "Perhaps it is only in childhood that books have any deep influence on our lives," he begins, and goes on to say that the books which have most influenced him were those he read before he was 14.

This is directly contrary to my own experience and makes me feel that I am rather a hick to enjoy reading so much at my advanced age. But then I do not believe, as Mr. Greene does, that life grows more intolerable the more you know about it. And I recall that Sean O'Casey described Green's attitude to life as "a snot-sodden whine".

Life Wasn't Running Downhill

The books I read before I was 14 were influential, in some cases. One of them was "Pickwick Papers", which I read at 12; it took me about 10 weeks, as I remember, and much of it was weary work.

But after 14 I really got into high gear. "The Old Wives' Tale" was a revelation, and so was "Mademoiselle de Maupin", both of which I read as a schoolboy. At 17 I discovered "Antic Hay" and rushed on to "Point Counter Point"; they, too, were landmarks for me.

I read most of Shaw at school, which won me a quite unmerited reputation as a dangerous thinker; it was the plays and the jokes I liked, not the political argument. "The Way of All Flesh" was another violent explosion in my life. Up to 20 life was certainly not running downhill for me.

Nor did it take a downward turn between 20 and 30. I had my defeats as a reader. I could never get through all of "War and Peace", though I hope to have another tussle with it in a few years. I never read a novel by Dostoievsky until I was 35, and then "Crime and Punishment" opened up a new world of sensation and introspection.

People who write about what they read in youth rarely fail to put me to shame, because they seem to have read so much, so young. But like most of the world's population, I had a living to earn, and a life to lead, and my reading was eager but spotty.

To Know Author Read All of Him

What I really liked was gnawing my way through all the works of a single author. I am one of the not very large group of people, not engaged in psychoanalysis, who have read the whole of Sigmund Freud's collected works; it was amply worth while, if only for the astonishment I feel when people attribute ideas to Freud which he never expressed, or categorically dismissed. I am chewing my way now through all of C. G. Jung, whom I find a more congenial thinker, but a less engaging writer, than Freud.

I have read all of Dickens—much of his work many times—and am amazed at the people who express extravagant admiration or condemnation without having taken this elementary step.

There is no writer within my experience who responds so well to this treatment as Shakespeare. To read his complete works, in the order in which he wrote them, seems a small tribute to pay to the greatest of dramatists, but many people shrink from it.

Reading Shakespeare, of course, is hard work—not because it is difficult to understand, but because it is so emotionally demanding. Not brilliant intellect, but profound feeling, is demanded.

It would grieve me to think that my best reading was already over—not to speak of having lost one's delight in it at 14. People who have read enormously in youth do not call forth my envy: I have heard them talk about the masterpieces they gobbled at 18, and it is clear that they brought an 18-year-old understanding to the work of mature giants. So often they have missed the point.

A great book—or just a good book—contains some of the best of a perceptive, sensitive, perhaps inspired writer's life. It cannot be encompassed by a hasty reading.

A truly great book should be read in youth, again in maturity and once more in old age, as a fine building should be seen by morning light, at noon and by moonlight. We all read too much, too fast.

I am taking the summer off to work slowly through several books that are due for a second reading.

ART IN REVIEW

By ARTHUR CORRY

A Remarkable Program Encourages Child Artists

Too often, we of the "artistic" world, are inclined to overlook the pure creativeness and power in children's art. Their basic and simple approach to a subject is something many mature, adult, artists strive for years to achieve.

Corry

In recent years India has done more than any other nation to encourage children's art and to create a common understanding among children of all creeds and nationalities.

Shankar, a weekly newspaper in New Delhi, holds an International Children's Art Competition annually. Through this program, now in its 11th year, a record entry of 70,000 writings, drawings and paintings were received for the 1961 contest from all over the world.

The prize-winning entries, some 412, are reproduced and published in "Shankar's Children's Art Number 1961," and show the results of the inexhaustable energy of the judges.

High artistic quality is quite evident in the black and white, and colored reproductions. The sheer delight of creating can also be noted, particularly in the younger age groups.

Exhibits and competitions, such as Shankar's, create, in themselves, a greater understanding among nations and India with its vast and ancient cultural background can well lead the world with such projects. Our admiration and appreciation should gratefully be extended along with sincere congratulations.

For information on future competitions, interested parties should write to Shankar's International Children's Competition, Odeon Building, P.O. No. 218, New Delhi, India.

Promotion of children's art locally is supported and encouraged to a great extent by the Victoria Art Gallery. At present registration is being accepted for the Children's Summer Art Classes, which begin in July.

Canadian art is once again a feature of an international exhibit. As a part of the Bordeaux Music Festival, in France, "Art In Canada" is being shown in the Beaux Arts Gallery.

This exhibit includes a great number of Canadian paintings signed by the most famous names of every period, as well as Indian and Eskimo art.

The majority of the paintings are on loan from the National Gallery, together with pieces of silverware, furniture and sculpture, from Quebec museums and several churches of that province. Some famous European paintings will return home for a while thanks to the courtesy of the Museum of Arts in Montreal and the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto.

Private collections were also called upon in Ottawa, Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

These will complete "the brilliant array resulting from the most magnificent effort ever attempted on the old continent to present to the public the artistic treasures of Canada, either acquired in the course of its history or created on its own territory."

Tongue-in-Cheek Humor Illumines First Novel

WHY ROCK THE BOAT, by William Weintraub. Toronto: Little, Brown and Co., 1961. 218 pages. $3.95.

Reviewed by G. S. McCaughey
Canadian Services College, Royal Roads

A first novel, particularly by a Canadian author, usually poses a moral dilemma for the reviewer. Should critical principles be abandoned in the interests of encouraging (1) aspiring young novelists, (2) Canadianna, (3) publishers' readers in to looking at more Canadian offerings?

Fortunately William Weintraub's first novel, Why Rock the Boat, poses no such dilemma. Setting out to be a rather lightweight "picaresque," Why Rock the Boat achieves its end of humor most enjoyably, with many a satirical cuff at newspapers in general, and at one thinly-disguised Montreal paper in particular.

Here, in a quickly-read tale, we follow the early adventures of a poor man's Citizen Kane, Harry Barnes (19) newly arrived in the big city of Montreal and, incredibly (to Harry), a reporter for the Montreal Witness, whose employees "were proud of the massive boredom their paper was able to achieve."

SERIES OF THRUSTS

We first encounter Harry attending a midwinter hautmonde Montreal funeral, taking down names of the "guests" and with his quick "imaginative" flair filling in with Mr. and Mrs. Huckleberry Finn, Karl Marx, Q.C., Senator John Dillinger, mainly to keep his fingers from freezing.

From here we follow him to a Bellringers' luncheon, a delightful series of thrusts at the cliches of the Service Club, then on through a hilarious adventure with the Great Outdoors Association which turns out to be a Nudist club, barricading itself in the Hotel George the Third (Montrealers, guess which?) followed by a riot, fire, capture of a spy, etc.

"Too bad it had to happen at the George the Third," said the City Editor. "It might have made a nice little story for the paper."

Mr. Weintrub has developed a colorful cast of characters including old Al Sullivan who has worked on practically every paper across the country and who teaches Harry how to "smith out" a funeral "guest list" ("creative journalism"); the Military Editor who on Wednesdays is a Captain in the Queen's Very Own Canadian Fuseliers, on Fridays a Flight-Lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Air Force, occasionally a Sub-Lieutenant in the Navy, and is finally led away, handcuffed, in the scarlet glory of the Mounted Police;

("It doesn't matter about the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force," Sergeant Moloney was saying, "but this is one uniform you don't fool around with.")

And, of course, Ronny Waldron, an idea man who conceives of the grand notion of the abolishment of Canada.

"Every other country has only one ambition: to be strong, obnoxious and different. It's called patriotism. But we'll show them what the truly moral position is. And what country is in a better position than Canada to be the first to stage the disappearing act? We're halfway there already. We have no flag of our own, we have no national anthem, we have no distinctive personality like the Americans or the Australians—unless it's that we're a little more pompous than most. Why, we're so forgettable we're centuries ahead of our time, ahead of all those old-fashioned flag-wavers. Now we have to have the courage to take the next step, and Abolish."

It will be thanks to the appearance of Canadian writers of Mr. Weintraub's calibre that we may not have to do anything quite so drastic.

Annual Poetry Contest

Canadian poets are reminded that the 33rd consecutive annual Alberta Poetry Contest, sponsored by the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Authors' Association, is now open for entries.

First, second and third-place awards are offered for poems in each of four classes—sonnet, short poem, humorous verse and a poem by a juvenile, 16 years and under (any form).

In addition, there is a special award of $25, offered for the best poem of more than 42 lines and not more than 300 lines. Any theme and any form may be used.

The competition closes on Sept. 1, 1962. All entries or inquiries must be addressed to Mrs. June Fritch, 11227 63rd Street, Edmonton, Alta., from whom copies of the rules may also be obtained.

As Seen Up Close

RUSSIA IN MY LIFE, by Thomas P. Whitney (Reynal).

The author, a Soviet affairs specialist, spent nine years in Russia as an American diplomat and journalist. He married a Russian woman and fought a long battle to get permission for her to leave the country. This is lively, easy-reading autobiographical narrative.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Sooner or later every young man or woman arrives at that turning point in life when his foot is placed more or less irrevocably in the way that will shape its destiny.

For some it is deliberately and knowingly put forward; for many more it is a blind, involuntary movement; for others there is no question, no choice but simply a pre-ordained direction.

The same thing happens to communities as they grow up into towns, then cities. They are born of a meeting of circumstances and they prosper or languish according to the nourishment they receive.

Some are a long time a-growing—some shoot up into adulthood with jet speed. But sooner or later all take on either deliberately or accidentally, the character and purpose that is to make their shining or shoddy destiny.

There are company towns and factory towns; ports and railheads; hub cities, agricultural communities, mill towns and college towns.

Canada has cities like Stratford that have vegetated along for a number of years until its brains (enlightened citizens) have seen a star and had the courage to follow it to a new and richer life.

Fine Arts Was Banff Booster

And it has cities like Victoria, B.C. and Banff, Alta. Cities that have followed the volatile and teetering career of tourist and holiday resort because bountiful nature made it the obvious and easy way.

A number of years ago Banff was presented with an opportunity through the University of Alberta's Dr. Don Cameron. The township in the clouds grasped the opportunity and out of it developed increased stature, vitality and stability through an ever-expanding fine arts industry.

There is no need for me to itemize the various parts of Victoria's career. Since she outgrew her childhood as a Hudson's Bay trading post, served a brief adolescence as port-of-call en route to the goldfields and her young adulthood as a Royal naval station and major Pacific seaport, she has concentrated on being a tourist centre.

She has also looked longingly, but with less success, at the remunerative career of "convention city."

I am a mere onlooker in these matters, but it does seem to me that, unless they are strongly reinforced, tourism and conventions are poor stuff upon which to build a city's future and her prosperity.

Weather, the stock markets, world conditions, can and do strongly affect such "industries."

All of which is why, as I see it, Victoria now stands at a crossroads. The time has come when the leaders must make a decision—one that could boost the city into a new and more illustrious career, if taken courageously or, if not, condemn it to the slow decay of a vegetable existence.

The suggested development of a liberal arts university is the writing on the wall. Let it be seen and appraised intelligently so that its significance is realized and in order that every facility and every factor may be utilized toward such a development.

Individuals working in groups over the past two decades have fore-shadowed the event by evolving major fine art organizations. Exploratory roots have been sent out and have found the ground fertile.

Now it is time to send the tap-root deep to assure the capital city not only a sturdy and healthy, but a glorious future.

Two Annual Meetings Scheduled

Greater Victoria Art Gallery, serving the artistic community in still another practical way, will be the setting for two annual meetings within a week of each other.

Next Tuesday, Victoria Musical Arts Society will elect officers and executive and report on the year's activities at the Gallery.

A musical program will precede business, beginning at 8 p.m. The meeting is open to anyone interested. Members should note that, originally scheduled for Monday, it was changed due to the general election taking place on that day.

On Monday, June 25, the annual general meeting of Victoria Symphony Society will be held, starting at 8.

As one objective of the meeting is to give members and the interested public an opportunity of "looking behind the scenes" at the complexities, problems and achievements in operating a symphony orchestra, it is hoped that many people will make a point of being present.

It is probable that the question of a junior symphony, for which the society has received a financial grant, will be discussed.

GOES COLLEGIATE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The 33-year-old Brooklyn Paramount Theatre, second largest in New York City, will go out of business Aug. 31 and be incorporated into the downtown Brooklyn facilities of Long Island University. The theatre is in a building which the university purchased in 1950. The orchestra section of the house will be retained as an auditorium.

"MARCO POLO" PREMIERE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The world premiere of "The Adventures of Marco Polo," starring Rory Calhoun and Yoko Tani, will be held July 4 at the Warner Theatre in Memphis, Tenn.

The film was made in Rome and was directed by Hugo Fregonese for American International which plans to send Calhoun and Miss Tani to Memphis for the premiere.

OLD BALLADS

Some of the more than 300 popular old Scottish and English ballads date from the 14th Century.

ENTERTAINMENT CALENDAR

Wednesday, June 27, 8.30, Royal Theatre: Famous Artists presents in person Liberace, popular international pianist. The tickets are available at Kent's Ltd.

Monday, July 2, and nightly thereafter through to August 25, 8.30 p.m., Langham Court Theatre: "Smile Show," Centennial edition. Comedy skits, songs, dances in style of British music hall.

DIVERSIFIED PROGRAMS

Butchart Sunset Concerts To Begin Monday at 8

Late-day visitors to the Butchart Gardens, starting Monday and three times a week throughout the summer, will be regaled with sunset programs of music, dance and comedy.

Starting at 8 the concerts will feature the best of local talent as well as such outstanding imports as the Bishop Strachan Girls' School Choir from Toronto and Barrie Central Collegiate Band.

In addition to the Monday-Wednesday-Friday programs, there will be puppet shows featuring the Mervyn Ball Puppets Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, from June 26 through to Sept. 1, and two extra shows by the Grace Tuckey Puppets on Sunday, July 1.

An extra attraction on Saturday, June 30, is being staged in connection with the convention of the Registered Nurses' Association of Canada.

CHORAL WORK

Opening the Sunset Shows' series on Monday night will be the popular Meistersingers, Victoria male voice ensemble with guest soloists Ruth Champion, soprano, and Marjorie Sturgeon, mezzo-soprano.

Ted Boulden will conduct a program that will include "The Pilot" (Protheroe), "Deep River," "The Old Chisholm Trail," "76 Trombones," "The Happy Wanderer" (Schubert), "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Students' Marching Song."

A quartet consisting of Ray van Druten, John Muir, L. Bradfield and Bob Hill will sing a group of numbers "Pace, pace, mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," will be Mrs. Champion's selection, and the Habanera from "Carmen" will be sung by Mrs. Sturgeon.

Accompanying the group at the piano will be Bob Kroeger.

ROSE BOWL WINNER

On Wednesday the Lake Cowichan Ladies' Choir, directed by Elsie Kirby, and with Alec Walker as emcee, will present a program.

Included among their numbers will be several traditional as well as popular selections, such as "Ave Maria," "Wee Cooper o' Fife," "All Through the Night," selections from "My Fair Lady," "West Side Story," "Oklahoma" and others.

The Arion Male Voice Choir with 1962 Victoria Music Festival Rose Bowl winner, Patricia Wicks, soprano, Hugh Ross and Joe Almond as soloists, will present the Friday program.

Mrs. Wicks will sing "My Hero" and Gershwin's "Summertime," and the chorus will offer a variety of their most popular numbers.

Frank Tupman will conduct the choral numbers and Helen McVie will accompany at the piano.

(BB PLUS) "SATAN NEVER SLEEPS" (Royal) — It is good, for a change, that a film such as 20th Century-Fox's drama, "Satan Never Sleeps," should have to do with the church and God. Nonetheless, even this can't make up for the awful truth that you just can't believe a word of it.

Based on Pearl S. Buck's novel, as adapted for the screen by Claude Binyon and Leo McCarey, the plot is about a priest in China, played by William Holden, who saves a native girl's (Frances Nuyen) life and from thereon is embarrassed by her enthusiastic suggestions of love-making.

Eventually he manages to rid himself of her and makes his way to the mission where chief priest Clifton Webb is impatiently waiting to be relieved for his long over-due holiday. Before this can take place, however, the Chinese Reds march in and take possession. Not long after this native girl Nuyen also appears to take over as cook for the two priests in order to continue coaxings of Holden.

This reviewer is rather a naive type and doesn't mind believing in miracles. But they should make sense and be believable. What happens after this, however, offends the imagination of even the most gullible. And when this happens there goes the picture.

Of course "Satan Never Sleeps" is not without its humorous and gentle moments that can't help but move one. But there is always that underlying feeling that you are being put upon, that is being sold a bill of goods that are sometimes commercial in their intent once you take time to dig below the surface of the glossy package.

Technicolor photography and all else are handsome indeed and the acting is of sound calibre. But when the story isn't there all else suffers by it.

PARIS VIA FILM

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movie fans are in for a delightful tour of Paris when they see Fred MacMurray and Jane Wyman in Walt Disney's "Bon Voyage" because the picture includes many of the City of Light's most famous landmarks.

"Bon Voyage" is the Technicolor filmization of the Marrijane and Joseph Hayes best-seller.

Violinists Nominated For Award

Among five young musicians chosen for final judging in this year's Jeunesses Musicales du Canada competition, are two Vancouver violinists, both of whom have served Victoria Symphony Orchestra in the capacity of concert master.

They are Lea Foli (Foley) and Arthur Polson, both 28 years of age.

This year the contest was open to string players but all five finalists are violinists.

Sir Ernest MacMillan, president of the jury, will proclaim the winner, July 6. The grand prize represents a minimum of $10,000, the second, $2,000.

The player giving the best interpretation of a specially commissioned Canadian work will receive $500.

Last year the contest was for pianists and the grand prize winner was Marek Jablonski of Edmonton. Mr. Jablonski was soloist with the Victoria and Nanaimo symphonies during the past season.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Banks, Papers Weakest

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After plowing through most of the week in dismal fashion, the stock market staged a dramatic turnabout late Friday, providing the only concrete bit of enthusiasm seen in all five sessions.

By Friday morning, industrials had gone through a steady erosion of prices. The section's index—a cross section compiled from 20 key issues — had slumped almost 23 points.

The drop continued until mid-afternoon Friday when industrials touched an index level of 536.67 their lowest point since January, 1961.

Then came the unexpected surge. Orders to buy flooded the trading floor; in little more than an hour, industrials had climbed 10 index points from their low. They closed the day with a gain of more than eight points but still down nearly 15 points on the week.

While the main list was dropping early in the week, golds gained strength. At mid-day Tuesday, they had struck their highest index level in more than 12 years—102.34. However, as the week progressed, their lustre waned. The index closed at 96.06 for a two-point rise.

BANKS SKID

Banks were among the weakest in the industrial groups. All listed issues — Montreal, Nova Scotia, Toronto-Dominion, Royal and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce — dropped to 1962 lows before reviving slightly in Friday's upsurge. Losses over the week ranged to $3.12.

Utilities showed mostly minus signs, but the declines were, in most cases, fractional. Bell Telephone fared worst, dropping $1.50 to $51.25.

Refining oils, pipelines and steels were hard hit. Losses of $1 or more went to Trans-Canada Pipe Line, Imperial Oil, Steel Company of Canada and Algoma Steel. Interprovincial Pipe Line took the steepest loss, down $4.25 to $72.

In papers, not one issue advanced. Abitibi dropped slightly more than $1. International Paper fell $2.50, and Price Brothers $2.50. Fractional losers were Fraser Companies, MacMillan, Bloedell and Powell River and Minnesota and Ontario Paper.

Senior base metals saw lows for 1962 touched by Falconbridge, International Nickel, Labrador and Noranda. Biggest losers were Inco and Falconbridge, down $3.50 and $3.00 respectively.

REACH NEW HIGH

Among the golds, the early-week upsurge pushed nine of the 12 listed issues to highs for the year. Among these were Campbell Red Lake, Dome, Giant Yellowknife, Macassa and Lamaque. Most stocks in the group closed with fractional gains.

Trading in western oils slackened considerably. Calgary and Edmonton led the senior issues lower, dropping $2.37 to $21.42. Canadian Devonian climbed 40 cents to $3.95 after declaring an initial dividend of 10 cents.

Total volume was 10,060,822 shares, compared with 9,763,094 last week. Dollar value was $39,850,181 compared with $35,750,106.

Vancouver Ex Drops Unlisted Quote Board

VANCOUVER — The Vancouver Stock Exchange, beginning next week, will cease to provide a quotation service on unlisted stocks. On Monday its unlisted board will come down.

The action followed study by a committee of the exchange's governors. It was done for two reasons, according to J. A. Van Luven, executive secretary; (1) to conform with other exchanges; (2) because the exchange has no jurisdiction over unlisted stocks.

'Nil Tariffs' Stand Revised At ECM Parley

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Deputy ministers of the common market decided Friday to accept Britain's proposal to allow certain Commonwealth commodities duty-free into the comon market, reliable sources said.

But the decision did not commit the ministers and left the question in the final analysis to be decided individually by members of the six.

Britain had presented the six with a list of 27 commodities for which she requested a system of "nil tariffs."

Although the 27 items were never officially named, it was reliably learned that the six were not prepared to accept "nil tariffs" for five of the main ones—lead, zinc, aluminium, newsprint and woodpulp.

At Friday's deputy meeting the six was reported to have revised their original stand and given in to Britain on the subject of woodpulp and certain metals which hold special interest to Canada.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Friday's Late Turnabout Confuses Market Picture

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Figuring the gyrations of the stock market was not made any easier this week when four days of poor performances was culminated Friday at New York by a contradictory last-minute rally which sent the industrial averages up 15.18 points in the last half-hour of trading.

Bell

It was the first time since May 18 that the DJ industrials ended up in the plus columns on a Friday. Ticker tape was running as much as 23 minutes late and didn't finish recording transactions until 44 minutes after the close.

What surprised brokers about the rally was that it took place against a backdrop of rather poor industrial news.

Business reports this week have included a number of price cuts by chemical, steel and oil producers, as well as the threatened Ford Motor strike.

If the Ford strike comes off it could change the auto industry picture greatly and result in lowest production figures for the year. This in turn would have a bad effect on the whole U.S. economy.

Despite the bad news, however, every one of the 30 blue chips in the industrial averages ended the day on the up side with 18 of them up from 1 to 5⅝ points.

Phillips Petroleum Co., an affiliate of Pacific Petroleums Ltd., has announced it will enter the gasoline and petroleum products marketing field in southern B.C. and Alberta.

The Phillips 77 sign is already seen in the interior and northern B.C. and in central and northern Alberta and expansion throughout the whole of both provinces has been expected for some time.

Pacific Pete announced that sites for service stations are already being acquired.

Another American-owned oil company operating in this country has decided to "Canadianize."

Mobil Oil of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of Socony Mobil Oil Co., with large-scale operations in northeastern B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan, will transfer all its assets July 1 to a new Canadian-incorporated company to be known as Socony Mobil Oil of Canada Ltd.

As in similar moves in the industry recently, there is speculation that an issue of securities might be offered.

Main reasons for the change-over were federal tax advantages and opportunities to take part in Arctic oil exploration, open only to Canadian companies.

Annual report of Canadian and Devonian Petroleums Ltd. reveals that the company has disposed of its 100,000-share interest in Calgary and Edmonton Corporation.

The report says the move was made "since it has become apparent that a fundamental change is taking place in that company's status with a large American oil company acquiring a substantial share position."

The American firm is Superior Oil of Los Angeles, which recently announced it had obtained a 10 per cent interest in C and E.

Canadian Devonian made a net profit of more than $800,000 on the share sale.

The report also states that due to its improved liquid position and increased income, along with a favorable outlook, a dividend of 10 cents a share has been declared.

In B.C. mining news there's a strong rumor that a progress report from Western Mines Ltd. to be issued soon will reveal indicated ore reserves of 2 million tons valued at $40 a ton at the Myra Falls, Buttle Lake property.

Last report on ore reserves some months ago gave only 535,000 tons.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Co-operation Plea By JFK In Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — Another sharp slump and late rebound by the stock market, further bids by President Kennedy for business co-operation and the question of whether a federal budget deficit would benefit the U.S. economy held the spotlight this week.

The market, hit by discouraged selling for four straight sessions, sank through the bottom of the May 28 "black Monday" level to its lowest point since Nov. 2, 1960. But on Friday a rally regained much of the losses.

President Kennedy said in a speech at Yale University it was a "false issue" to assume "any and all unfavorable turns of the speculative wheel—however temporary and however plainly speculative in character—are the result of lack of confidence in an administration."

Later, at his press conference, Kennedy said, in response to a question, he couldn't believe that big business would want an economic slump just to get back at a president.

Treasury Secretary Dillon, testifying before the Senate finance committee, said some investment analysts believe stock prices have fallen to about the right levels in relation to share earnings.

HINTS AT CHANGE

Federal budget director David E. Bell said in New York spending and tax policies may have to be changed this year if the U.S. economy begins to lag seriously.

"The biggest question," he said, "is whether we are heading into a budget surplus too quickly."

Commerce Secretary Hodges announced retail sales in May declined one per cent from April, corporate profits dropped in the first quarter and personal income showed a smaller-than-usual advance.

Even so, he said, over-all economic figures "still look awfully good." For the rest of the year he predicted good business but not full economic activity.

The labor department reported earnings of factory workers reached their highest peak in May and non-farm employment was the greatest for the month.

However, indications were for an increase in unemployment in June and a poorer-than-expected job situation in construction and soft goods manufacturing.

Car sales in the first 10 days of June totalled 161,969, compared with 150,596 a year earlier. Production this week fell off to an estimated 147,000 from 150,077 last week but was well ahead of the 129,274 of a year ago.

The situation in the steel industry remained discouraging, with production last week down for the 10th consecutive week. Mills turned out 1,580,000 tons of steel, off 0.4 per cent from the previous week and representing about 52.5 per cent of estimated capacity.

Talks Resumed On Salmon Prices

VANCOUVER (CP)—Negotiations on prices for the 1962 salmon catch resumed Friday.

Talks had been adjourned for one week while the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union considered an offer by the Fisheries Association of B.C.

The union is asking substantial increases for sockeye, coho, chum, pink and spring salmon, plus a 100-per-cent increase in the companies' contributions to the Fishermen's Welfare Fund.

The association has offered an increase of 1 cent a pound for sockeye and chums and no change in other prices.

Truck Industry 'Caught in Squeeze'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The vice-president of the Canadian Trucking Association Inc. said Friday the trucking industry is caught in a squeeze between rising labor costs and competition from subsidized railroads.

D. A. Chapman of Kelowna said at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents: "Whether we like it or not, we must adjust ourselves to a situation of rising wages, but we cannot hope to adjust to an unproductive increase in labor costs by make-work rules, etc."

Truckers must accept the fact that at some stage higher wages must result in higher rates.

He said there is a race between improvements in productivity and rising wage rates.

Every cost-reducing improvement, whether in vehicles, terminals, or business methods, was matched or more than matched by higher wage demands. The increased wages in most cases had to be absorbed by the industry.

LACKS STABILITY

Mr. Chapman said transport industries need more rational policies and less politics from government. He expressed concern over the "apparent chaos in our transportation policies, the lack of control over agreed charges and the increasing subsidies."

Because of advancing technology more types of products could be hauled on more specialized and efficient equipment.

However, the industry needed the stability it now lacked to be able to make the capital expenditure demanded for new equipment.

The lack of stability resulted from agreed charges and changes to the basic cost and rate structure as a result of "massive new subsidies to the railways."

Stock Chief Backs U.K. Market Entry

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian business leader struck a responsive chord Friday when he stressed the need for Britain to join the European Economic Community.

Eric W. Kierans, president of the Canadian and Montreal Stock Exchanges, said Britain must join because "the Common Market cannot be permitted to fail or turn itself into an inward-looking bloc."

Kierans, formerly economics professor at McGill University in Montreal, said the community has been the "outstanding example of success in industrial competition, co-operation between states and individual enterprise."

His audience was a group of business leaders and financial correspondents attending a session on Canada organized by the Federation of British Industries.

Industrialist W. B. Luke, chairman of the meeting, said he wants more Canadians to speak out in favor of British membership.

"What we want at this time is support for the difficult negotiations now under way."

OF ALL PLACES — By HORACE SUTTON

They Expected Gold and Rubies

JAMESTOWN, Va. — The Mayflower descendants may hoot and holler—decorously, of course—but many of the passengers on that famed excursion boat were children when the Jamestown people sailed over.

"The fleet fell from London," as the Jamestown historian put it, on December 20, 1606, "to find out a safe port" along the coast of Virginia, a land of mystery dubbed by Sir Walter Raleigh twenty years before. Raleigh who had named it in honor of England's virgin queen, Elizabeth I, watched the new fleet glide along the Thames from his cell in the Tower of London. In auld England politician's heads rolled like bowling balls on a surban Saturday night.

Sutton

The Plymouth people who came later were looking for religious freedom, but the fleet that fell from London in 1606 expected to find gold in the sand and rubies stacked under the trees.

At least that's what they had been told by the travel agents of the Virginia Company, which chartered the tour. After a snappy voyage from England that took four months and six days, the ship board reporter wrote, "wee descried the Land of Virginia . . . wee entered into the Bay of Chesupioc."

Rubies were scarce in Virginia in those days, but arrows and Indians were plentiful. The colony set about building a protective settlement. Of the party of 105, fully half were listed as "gentlemen," which meant they could wear brass buttons on their clothes and didn't have to work. The gentry lolled about watching the laborers build the fort.

James Towne or James's Cittie, as it was also called, never became a metropolis, but it was the first permanent English settlement in North America, and capital of the colony for 92 years. Its original site on Jamestown Island has been preserved as a joint venture of the National Park Service and the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, locally known as the APVA.

The only standing ruin of 17th Century Jamestown is the Old Tower believed to be a part of the first brick church built in 1639. On its foundations the National Society of the Colonial Dames of Amerlica built a memorial church. In opened in 1907 in time for the 300th anniversary of the colony's founding. When it comes to preserving history there is nothing like a Colonial Dame.

For the 350th anniversary of Jamestown in 1957, the State of Virginia, aided by the British government, established Jamestown Festival Park, across an isthmus from the original settlement.

Here the three ships, the Susan Constant, the Godspeed and the Discovery ride at their moorings along the wharf, none of them larger than a tug. They come complete with sailors got up in gob's garb of the day, and can be boarded, but I wouldn't book passage in one for a voyage across a flooded street.

Chief Powhatan's Lodge has been reproduced too, and it rather resembles a straw Nissen hut. Thirty-six feet long, it is made, like today's modern apartment houses, of marsh grass and hemp thread, and is staffed by Rappahannock Indians descended from one of Powhatan's own tribes.

Today's Rappahannocks smoke cigarettes and wear lipstick if they are squaws. Following the current vogue they affect wigs, although these are worn by the braves. The wigs are shaped in the style of the Alogonquins, shaved on the right side so the bowstring would not tangle with the coiffure.

The first fort is reproduced too, the buildings constructed of thatch and clay and staffed by English soldiers in brimmed helmets, halberds and "slops" an early form of knickerbockers that seem to have gotten out of hand. Slops were cut full and loose so the pant legs could be stuffed with straw, a helpful bit of armor when soldiers went into battle.

In the church the laborers sat in the rear pews, the gentlemen up front, but it was not a gentleman's life. The laws were strict. In 1626 two local types were fined and punished for "drinking and quarrelling . . . at unlawful and unseasonable howers of the night to the disturbance of the whole plantatione."

FAMED TOWER

In 1078, 12 years after the Norman conquest of England, William the First began work on building the Tower of London. Although the original planning was probably done entirely by William, the collection of buildings now known as the Tower was not completed in his lifetime. Built as a fortress, the Tower has never undergone a siege nor suffered a capitulation, except when Wat Tyler's rebels forced an entry in 1381. The Tower itself was not often used for executions, but it was a prison from its very earliest days.

'Ticket by Mail'

VANCOUVER—A "ticket by mail" program to any destination in the world was announced here by H. B. Renwick, vice-president of sales and traffic for Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The procedure is simple. Any prospective passenger who is listed in the telephone directory in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg Toronto, or Montreal call the CPA office in his city makes his reservation and asks that the ticket be mailed to his home address. He then mails his cheque for the required amount to CPA, and the paper work is finished.

Colorful Program For Seattle Seafair

SEATTLE — One of the major highlights of Seattle's World's Fair will be Seafair from July 27 through Aug. 5.

The 13th edition of these marine hi-jinx is capped by the 59th running of the $35,000 Gold Cup Race for unlimited hydroplanes. Billed as the "world series of boat racing," the Gold Cup is the richest prize in one of the world's most hazardous sports. Juggernauting around a three-mile course at speeds up to 180 miles per hour, an anticipated field of over 25 huge thunder boats throw a high spray and provide countless thrills in their quest for fame and riches.

Nineteen entries from Detroit, Nevada, Indiana, California and Washington have been received in challenge to defending champion Miss Century 21 of Seattle.

The big Seafair Parade will be held on Saturday morning, July 28, with "Festivals, U.S.A.," serving as the theme for spectacular floats expected from all over the United States.

A regional water ski tournament, an international sailing championship, street dances, mock-pirate invasions, arrival of the U.S. Fleet, and hundreds of other satellite events, all with a marine flavor, comprise the busy calendar.

2,040,000 Rode B.C. Ferries In Two Years

The B.C. ferry system has carried 2,040,000 passengers on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen route since service started two years ago Friday.

Figures released by the system show that 640,000 automobiles were carried in the two years. The present hourly service is setting new records every day as the tourist season moves toward its peak.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the tournament conducted by Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club were:

Red Section: 1, Jim Duprau, Paul Smith; 2, Pat Bishop, Lilianne LeButt; 3, Mr. and Mrs. Hawkes.

Black Section: 1, Evelyn Lamont, Will McConnell; 2, Joe Lukas, Simon Marinker; 3, Harry Brawn, Otto Leesment.

Color Perks Up Concrete Walks

By MR. FIX

Concrete is a good durable material for patios, drives and basement floors. But you may grow tired of its uniformly grey color. Concrete can be colored while being installed, or much later.

In new construction, the color in the form of a dry powder can be mixed with the concrete before pouring. Use only materials intended expressly for this purpose. Coloring materials are available at paint stores or building supply firms.

The powder is mixed with other dry ingredients before water is added. Dry materials should be mixed until they are uniform in color.

It is difficult to determine the resulting color without trying out the mixture in small batches first. Measure your proportions very carefully and make note of them.

Make some small sample blocks and allow them to cure slowly and dry thoroughly. Then judge the color.

Rather than color the whole batch of concrete, you can save money by coloring only enough for a layer about an inch thick. You will have to mix and pour two separate batches. Pour the base and roughen the surface with a broom. Allow to set until surface water has gone. Then apply the topping. The base should still be soft enough for bonding.

The above methods are fine if you mix your own concrete. But let's say that you have contracted for a cement mixer to come in and drop a load of concrete. If you are doing the finishing, you can still work color into the wet material by sprinkling the coloring powder on top of the material as soon as it is firm enough to support boards for you to kneel on.

Dust the powder on the surface as evenly as possible. Then work in with a wood float, then with a steel trowel. Work lightly with the steel trowel, or you will bring lime to the surface which will discolor it.

Staining and painting are methods used on older concrete.

With either of the latter methods, you will have to make sure the surfaces are clean. Use a detergent to remove stains. In stubborn cases use lye, but handle it carefully and rinse thoroughly. Wear rubber gloves, boots and goggles.

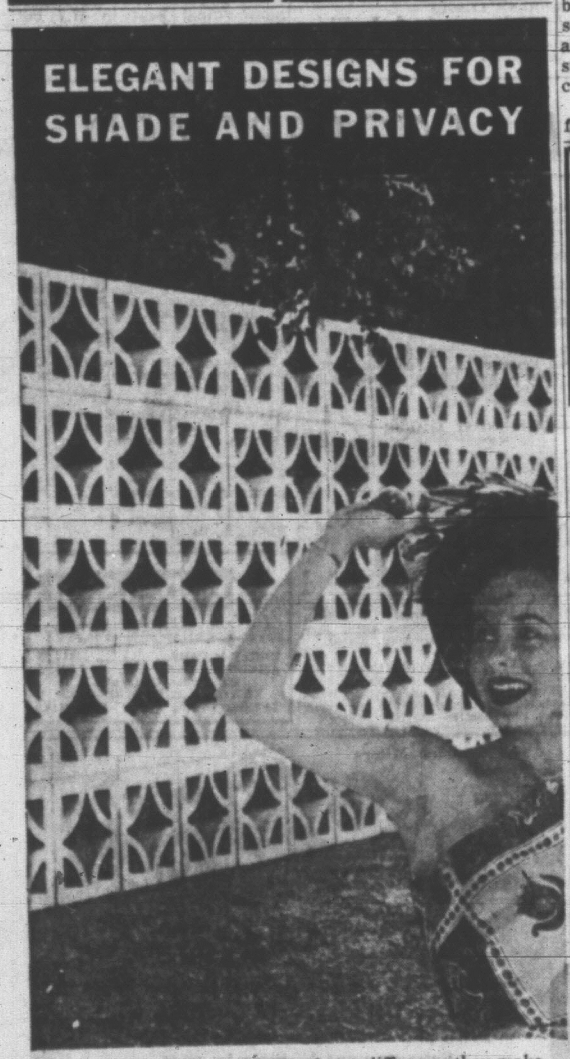

Apply finish when surface is dry. Use a concrete stain, not wood stain. Apply according to directions. Remember that color intensity is determined by the amount of penetration, so brush out smoothly. Don't allow puddles to form. Most stains require more than one coat plus a finish coat.

Use paints that are designed for cement surfaces.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Hold That Hoe, Gardner The Weeds Have a Case

By JACK BEASTALL

The first thing a home gardener does when you pay him a visit is to apologize for the weeds. In most instances you would never have noticed any weeds unless they had been drawn to your attention, and the majority of us would be pleased if our own gardens were as clean.

It has never been clear to me why weeds should be considered a disgrace, nor why gardeners should be so sensitive to their presence.

Beastall

Weeds, as we call them, are native hardy plants, and any soil which could not support a good crop of natives would be useless as a garden. A lush crop of weeds indicates a fertile and productive piece of land, while a poor showing of weeds would suggest the need of a lot of work to raise the fertility to garden standards.

Unwanted plants, or weeds, are present the world over, and many of our choicest cultivated plants are considered weeds in lands to which they are native. This is true of orchids, hibiscus, pampas grass, rhododendrons and azaleas, while our finest climbing plants are a greater nuisance to farmers in the semi-tropics than bindweed is to us.

TO EACH A TASK

Weeds are the host plants and food for many insects, some of which interfere with our well laid plans when their natural food is scarce, but each insect has a task to perform.

Many are scavangers which devour wastes and prevent disease, others absorb gases poisonous to man and plants, and each insect is food for another insect, animal or bird.

Should the weeds suddenly disappear, these insects would be entirely dependent on garden plants for their existance, and since there are billions of insects to every human we should soon be without food ourselves.

A productive soil is a mass of life in many forms, and as long as plants are growing in it the soil population is maintained and the land can be brought into immediate use for cultivated crops. It is the native plants or weeds, that keep unused land in good condition and ready for man to use.

The roots of all plants secrete acids which break down particles of rock and release minerals used in plant growth. Weeds perform this task on vacant land, using the foods for their own growth, and returning nutriment for others when their life cycle is ended.

HUMUS NEED

For generations man provided conditions suitable for growing crops by adding animal manures to the soil. As these became scarce he substituted the necessary plant foods in chemical form.

From experience he learned that chemicals without humus (decomposed plant wastes) were not the answer, and that the humus in the manure was as important as the plant foods it contained.

Few home gardens can produce sufficient plant wastes to maintain a good soil, therefore we must depend on the unwanted plants to provide suitable conditions for the growth of wanted plants.

To control weeds we have practised clean cultivation, that is, we keep the soil bare of all plants excepting those we wish to grow, by cultivating, digging and hoeing. Today we find an increasing number of soil authorities stressing the damage we do to both soil and plants in our frantic efforts to destroy weeds.

WEED COVER

Bare soil, we are told, is damaged by sun, cold, wind and rain, something that nature has prevented by maintaining a cover of weeds

One writer goes so far as to predict that future generations of gardeners will be amazed to hear that we of the twentieth century were so ignorant as to allow our soils to be uncovered.

Sawdust and mulches of plant wastes, have already been given prominence in horticultural and agricultural literature, and it is believed that the time is not far away when a cover of weeds will be considered an asset to the garden.

The garden with the most weeds will then be the envy of the neighbors, and the gardener will have reason to draw the visitor's attention to his magnificent crop of unwanted plants.

In the meantime we need not be ashamed of a few weeds, and if our visitors remark on their presence we can explain to them the latest theories on soil conservation.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Sweet peas will benefit from being mulched with two or three inches of compost, half rotted will do, or grass clippings which have been previously dried. Water the soil before applying, and water the mulching material afterwards so that it does not draw all the moisture from the soil.

Zonal geraniums wanted for winter blooming should be in five-or-six-inch pots, and have all buds removed until August 1.

A start can be made on the taking of cuttings to increase the supply of aubrieta, fuchsia, hydrangea and pinks (dianthus). Take short shoots which have not flowered, and are not bearing flower buds.

Order tulips, daffodils, iris and other bulbs to be planted in fall. The growers can give you a better choice now than at planting time.

Also advisable to order fall blooming crocuses, colchicums, sternbergia and schizostylis (Kafir-lily).

Ventilate the greenhouse freely, water sufficiently on hot days, damping the benches and floor also.

Thin the vegetable seedlings as necessary, remove weed seedlings by hand to avoid disturbance of roots. Cover roots exposed by thinning and water the rows to settle soil closely.

Celery plants can be put into prepared trenches, and leeks transplanted into rich humusy soil.

A monochromatic color scheme uses one color in a variety of its shades and tints. A monochromatic room is restful and looks larger than it is.

Once a week, for five weeks, the boy on the right was sprinkled with ordinary water. Once a week, for five weeks, the boy on the left was sprinkled with ordinary water plus ORTHO Liquid Rose Food. Results: at the end of the five week period no change was noted in the height, weight or general condition of either boy – proving once and for all that ORTHO Liquid Rose Food, despite its scientifically balanced formula, should be used only on roses, not people. In the process of the experiment, however, the roses received the identical treatment. The perceptive rose fancier will notice that those on the left have more blooms, bigger leaves, and healthier foliage. But that's old hat. ORTHO has always made the best rose food on the market. NORBURN SQUAD NIPPED 8-7

Jay's Four Put Sting In Rocks' Power Play

VANCOUVER — If it weren't for Nanaimo and Burnaby, Victoria Shamrocks would be in sad shape in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Shamrocks have not had much success with front-running Vancouver and second-place New Westminster. To be exact, they have lost each and every game against these two teams.

On the other hand, they have not hesitated to show Burnaby Norburns and Nanaimo (to a lesser degree) who's boss. Shamrocks beat Norburns by an eyelash Friday, 8-7, to make their record an impartial four wins against each club.

TONGUE-WHIPPED

Norburns, stung by a tongue-lashing from coach Bill Dickinson, cut loose with an all-out effort that left them just shy of success Friday.

The difference was the accurate shooting of Victoria's Ron Jay on the power plays. Jay beat goalie Skip Jolly four times, all on the odd-man play.

Other Victoria goals were scored by Skip MacKay, Don Ashbee, Ed Kowalyk and Jim McNeill.

Kowalyk got the winner at 5:27 seconds of the fourth period, and then the Shamrocks' strong defensive pattern held off Norburns for the rest of the game.

McKIBBIN HURT

Terry McKibbin, who retired in the third period with a leg injury, and Bill Coroliuc each scored twice for Norburns, the other Burnaby goals coming from Joe Salley, Bill Bradley and John Dorflinger.

Goalie Skip Jolly, who made a number of key saves in the Burnaby net, had a total of 26 stops, while Victoria veteran Geordie Johnston handled 19 shots.

Referees Earl McDonald and Bill Stuart handed out 31 minutes in penalties during the game, 17 minutes to Victoria.

ANOTHER SLANT

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO—The thoroughbreds have had to hustle to keep up the social set in Toronto this week. The grey-topper-and-mink crowd are wrapping up a formidable lineup of official parties, dinners, breakfasts and so on to put the finishing touches on what they like to call the "royal week of racing" in Canada.

The Queen's Plate classic is always a colorful affair and a good excuse for partying. The clubhouse and Turf Club regulars at the $15,000,000 Woodbine plant in the northwest suburbs start early.

The celebrating started last Monday when horsemen showed off their plate eligibles in the trials. Two weeks ago, 54 horses were eligible for the 1¼ mile gallop, but only 14 were scheduled to prance into the starter's gate today.

The horsemen, and others, conducted the first post-mortem at a big party Monday night.

There was another party and, for all but one, another post-mortem scheduled tonight.

Tuesday night the Jockey Club was host to another party at a downtown hotel and on Wednesday Bill Beasley of Toronto was guest of honor at the annual "horse-of-the-year" dinner. Beasley's five-year-old Hidden Treasure has won more than $150,000 in his racing career and in 1961 won national honors as the horse-of-the-year.

Dolls Dress Up the Day . . . And Draw

The dressed-up guests had a few hours' sleep before going to the track for the Queen's Plate breakfast. Horsemen from many parts of Canada and the United States are always on hand when the draw for post positions in the plate is made by a dozen fashion models.

Then, on Friday night, the Queen's Plate ball was held at the Turf Club.

Grey toppers and mink again were the order of the day for the clubhouse patrons who wanted a closeup view of the Queen Mother, on hand to present the winning owner with the Queen's gift of 50 guineas and the $5,000 gold cup.

This marks the second time the Queen Mother has been on hand to present the guineas. She was at Old Woodbine in Toronto in 1939 when the 80th running of North America's oldest continuously-run stakes race was won by Archworth.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Prince Philip, attended the 100th running of the plate in 1959 when New Providence romped home an easy winner. . .

Ah, it's been a grand week . . .

What's that you say? Horses?

Oh yes, the race. Now, if you'll excuse me . . .

MUDCAT BLANKS YANKS

Major's Impression Of Army Has Changed

(By Associated Press)

When Ralph Houk was in the United States Army, things were never like this.

The New York Yankee manager was a major in the Second World War. He got few, if any, weekend passes to plays baseball and privates never gave him any trouble.

But things are different now. There are plenty of weekend passes going around.

Private Jim (Mudcat) Grant got one of them and took the opportunity to shut out Houk's Yankees 3-0 for Cleveland Indians Friday night. Grant became the first Cleveland pitcher to set the Yankees down without a run since Early Wynn did it June 27, 1957.

It was the fourth loss for the Yankees in five games. They have scored only eight runs over that stretch.

Minnesota Twins, with a chance to take over the American League lead, dropped a 6-1 decision to Kansas City Athletics. In other A.L. games, Los Angeles Angels lost 7-6 to Chicago White Sox; Detroit Tigers were blanked 3-0 by Boston Red Sox, and Baltimore Orioles whipped Washington Senators 8-3.

In the National League, the revitalized St. Louis Cardinals climbed on San Francisco for a 5-2 victory, making it 10 wins in the Redbirds' last 11 games; Houston Colts blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0; Pittsburgh Pirates got a grand-slam home run from Roberto Clemente in a seven-run inning to edge Milwaukee 9-8; Philadelphia out-gunned Cincinnati 13-8, and Chicago Cubs trimmed New York Mets 5-1.

IN SPOTLIGHT

RECORD-TYING feat was accomplished twice Friday by Vancouver sprinter Harry Jerome (above) in NCAA meet at Eugene, Ore. Identical times of 20.7—matching meet mark—were chalked up in Jerome's two runs over 220-yard distance.

FOUR GOALS by veteran Ron Jay sparked Victoria Shamrocks to 8-7 Inter-City Lacrosse League victory over the Norburns.

Three (3) No-Hitters In a Row!

That's quite a storm, but there's nothing to worry about — unless, that is, you're one of those Carnarvon Pony League batters who has to face Brian Lucas.

The 13-year-old Lucas has now pitched three (count 'em, three) no-hitters in succession. The third came Friday when Mawson-Gage edged Oak Bay Firemen, 4-2.

The young hurler lost his first two games but has since won six in a row.

On Friday he struck out 13 and walked three, and, in addition, provided the winning run with a double. (See scores on page 13.)

Completes Deal

CALGARY — Calgary Stampeders will get Canadian tackle Rod Coyle from Montreal Alouettes as the second man in a recent player exchange between the two football teams.

Stamps earlier dealt guard Joe Carruthers and linebacker John MacMurtry, both Canadians, for Alouette tackle Harold Krebs.

Eyes on Palmer For Stretch Run

(Times News Services)

OAKMONT, Pa. — Arnold Palmer and Bob Rosburg match strokes today for the U.S. Open golf championship with Billy Maxwell, who reached his greatest peak as the amateur champion, hot on their heels.

The muscular Palmer and pudgy Rosburg, tied at the end of the second round with three under par 139's, go out together for the two final breathless circuits of the Oakmont course known as "The Monster."

The odds favored Palmer, shooting for a slam of the British Open and PGA title if can add this one to his Masters crown, because he's playing in his own back yard. And what shapes up as a tremendous gallery will be rooting for him on every shot.

MAXWELL TWO BACK

Two shots back of the leaders this morning was Maxwell. The little Texan, a consistent money winner in nine years on the tour but never a world-beater, moved inconspicuously into second place with a 70 for 141.

Beefy Jack Nicklaus, steady Bobby Nichols, and South Africa's steady-nerved Gary Player, hoping to become the first foreign winner in 42 years, are bracketed at 142.

Not out of it yet, either, were first round-leader Gene Littler and Miller Barber of Rye, N.Z., who stood at 143. Littler, hoping for a successful title defense, began the chase with a 69, but fell back badly Friday with a 37-37—74 as his putter went awry.

After them the chances got slimmer, with few of the pros expecting anybody to be able to handle the rugged Palmer in a one-day 36-hole marathon carrying this kind of pressure.

Palmer, who lives at nearby Latrobe, was in a great position to capture the 72-hole event. He has been driving over here each day for the last week to beat the blazes out of a golf ball.

Two of the three Canadians in the classic survived the 150 cutoff. Stan Leonard of Vancouver had a two-over-par 73 Friday for 145 and Al Balding of Toronto had a 77 for 150. Adrian Bigras of Montreal was cut after he soared to an 80 for 156.

GAME CLUB

Interruptions And Changes

Due to the federal elections Monday, the regular meeting of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association has been postponed until Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Goldstream clubhouse.

Feature of the program will be a movie by Stan Burrell of Hungry Horse, Alta., on wood buffalo hunting in Alberta.

Graduates of the junior firearms safety program also will be awarded certificates and prizes at this meeting.

The club's first pistol shoot at the Esquimalt Lagoon range will be held Sunday and the annual skeet championships have been put back to Aug. 26.

NCAA MAY SUPPLY . . . TIMES TRACK HEADLINERS

Recruiting Under Way

By IAN SMITH

There's a lot of track and field talent on display in Eugene, Ore., today, and if the winds of fate blow in the right direction, some of it might just drift this way in time for the Times-YMCA Vancouver Island championships, June 30.

Right now, the cinder stompers are concentrating on the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet at Eugene.

But when it concludes, stars start heading home. And Bob Hutchison, director of the Times meet and a former Olympic sprinter, hopes to detour some of them by way of Victoria.

LIST OF HOPEFULS

Among those he feels will "almost certainly" turn up are:

● Harry Jerome of Vancouver, formerly the only man ever to hold the 100-yard and 100-metre dash world records at one time, and this year the only man to beat world record-holder Bob Hayes of Florida;

● Lynn Eves of Victoria, who needs almost as little introduction as Jerome when it comes to sprints. Lynn this year was the third-ranked collegiate quarter-miler in the U.S. although he was eliminated Friday;

● Sig Ohlemann of Vancouver, third-ranked at the NCAA in the half-mile;

● And Vic Reeve of Vancouver, second-ranked among the NCAA two-milers.

All but Eves are currently attending the University of Oregon under the tutelage of the famed Bill Bowerman.

Eves, who told his dad that he plans "to bring a few friends home" (in time for the Island meet), is enrolled at Oregon State.

Hutchison also hopes to lure at least four other top-flight athletes to the confines of the Victoria High School stadium for the Times meet.

The big stars, of course, are merely the headliners, and once again Hutchison expects that it will be the Vancouver Island youngsters who will provide the backbone of the show.

That's not to say they won't be classy.

After all, with the exception of Jerome all the above athletes got some of their first real competition at this same Times meet.

EVES MISSES FINAL

B.C. Boys Star In NCAA Meet

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Harry Jerome of Vancouver, running for Oregon, twice tied the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association record for the 220-yard dash Friday with a timing of 20.7 seconds.

Jerome's first effort came in the second heat of the 220 quarter-finals at the annual U.S. collegiate track and field meet. The record was set by Ed Collymore of Villanova in 1958. Later Jerome tied the mark in the semifinals.

Shotputter Dallas Long of Southern California tossed the shot 64 feet 7 inches, to better his own NCAA record of 63-3½ set last year.

Another NCAA record was tied when Frank Budd of Villanova ran the 100-yard dash in 9.3 seconds in the preliminaries. Budd ran third to Jerome in the second heat of the 220 and failed to qualify for the final.

Jerome was first in his heat in the 100 with a time of 9.5 seconds.

The finals of the meet were to be held today.

Three Canadians survived the 880-yard quarter-finals. They were Sig Ohlemann of Vancouver, who ran first in the third heat with a time of 1.49.2; Don Bertoia of Rossland, with the same time in the same heat but awarded second, and Ergas Leps of Toronto, first in the fourth and last heat in 1.52.8. Ohlemann runs for Oregon and Leps for Michigan. Bertoia is with Washington State.

Ohlemann qualified with a second place in the second heat of the semifinals with a time of 1.53.0. Leps failed to quality for the finals.

Dave Steen of Burnaby, B.C., another Oregon athlete, finished fifth among the seven qualifiers in the shotput. His distance was 58 feet, three-quarters of an inch, compared to Long's 64-7 record.

Lynne Eves of Victoria, running for Oregon State, failed to qualify for the final of the 440. He had qualified for the semi-final by finishing fourth in his quarter-final heat in 47.7 but finished fourth in the semifinal and was eliminated.

British Amateur Final Anti-Climactic?

(Times News Services)

Today's 36-hole final for the British Amateur golf championship was being considered an anti-climax after Richard Davies of the U.S. and John Povall of Wales made their way into the big playoff at Hoylake, England.

Neither Davies, 31-year-old from Pasadena, Calif., who jumped into a two-up lead at the halfway mark of today's final, nor Povall were previously recognized as golfers of international class.

Davies reached the final with a 3 and 2 victory over Rodney Foster of England in the semifinals and a 2 and 1 victory over David Palmer, also of England, in the quarter-finals Friday.

Povall, a shoe salesman, surprisingly eliminated British Walker Cup player Brian Chapman by one hole in the semifinal and dropped Scotland's Harry Kinloch 4 and 2 in the quarter-finals.

Povall, a 23-year-old former professional, was reinstated as an amateur in 1959.

Davies, in taking the 18-hole lead today, displayed the same cluch-like play that marked his rise from a list of relative unknowns to the top of the field.

Povall, on the other hand, was scrambling throughout most of the first 18 holes. He was four down after five holes, seemed to steady again early in the back nine, but never was able to catch his American opponent before the break.

'Twas A Fine Party

John Pickburn, veteran victoria footballer, is in Chile for the world soccer tournament. Here, in a special story to the Daily Times, Pickburn comments on his impressions of the tournament which winds up Sunday with the final between Brazil and Czechoslovakia.

By JOHN PICKBURN

SANTIAGO, Chile — Gloom descended Wednesday, but you should have been here last Sunday. Ole!

It was on Wednesday that Chile's hopes of a world soccer championship went out the window against Brazil, which is probably just as well for the good of the country in general.

The way the citizens celebrated after their team's surprise victory over Russia the previous Sunday, it's doubtful if Chile could have stood another such party.

Rootin' and Tootin'

It was the wildest tear that the people of this country have been on since their liberation from Spanish domination over a century ago.

Andy O'Brien, Times Weekend sports columnist who arrived in Santiago when the celebrations were at their wildest, remarked that even the most frenzied post-Grey Cup celebrations were never quite as uninhibited.

Special editions of the city's newspapers were bought up as quickly as the printing presses could produce them. Downtown restaurants, which usually close at midnight, stayed open long into the early morning and did a land-office trade.

At Rancagua, where I witnessed the game between Czechoslovakia and Hungary, the crowd remained in the stadium after the contest to await the final outcome of the Chile versus Russia game. When the public address system announced the result, the crowd went wild and stormed onto the playing field, congratulating anyone within arms reach. The cheers were much louder than any heard during the actual game they had just witnessed, which was certainly one of the more thrilling contests seen in the tournament so far.

Upsetting Eruption

Speaking to Johnny Best, the American soccer referee who was on hand when Brazil eliminated England, he said the first Brazilian goal came when the announcement of a Chilean score was made to the crowd. The pro-Chilean crowd's wild eruption, he said, apparently caused confusion in the English defence and Vava, the Brazilian centre forward, slipped in to score an easy goal.

Many hollow eyes and sheepish grins could be observed Monday morning in Santiago following the all-night celebrations as people made their way to work. That "Monday morning" feeling was magnified many times as Chileans paid their price for a patriotic celebration.

FISHING ROUNDUP

Big Ones Improve Angling Outlook

Summer weather may be here at last and so, it seems, may be summer fishing.

The general tone of fishing success has picked up considerably in the last couple of weeks.

The Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, for instance, reports that conditions and catches were excellent up to Monday, and then dropped off. But B. Simpson enjoyed himself while it lasted, boating a 25-pound, five-ouncer from Brentwood. Most of the better catches in the inlet came from the Goldstream end, however.

Now, though, according to VSIAA weekly report, the salmon are moving about and they will be caught where one finds them. Adding to difficulties is the fact that feed seems very plentiful in the inlet at the moment.

The report advises frequent switching of depths and lures until a good combination is found, adding that anglers should not overlook light lines and the Indian Bay to Deep Cove area.

41-POUNDER

Oak Bay continues spotty, although Charlie Guiget boated a 30-pound, 11-ounce spring on Sunday, and E. P. Rolls boated a 41-pound, four-ounce whopper Wednesday. Salmon from 10 pounds and up are showing occasionally in waters from Oak Bay to Pedder Bay, but the bluebacks have moved toward Sidney. T. R. Copeland caught a 39-pounder at Otter Point Sunday.

Cowichan Bay is good, with boats averaging about four grilse of two pounds per boat. A few larger springs between three and 10 pounds in weight are also being taken.

Up-Island, the hot spot seems to be Cape Mudge, where fishermen are enjoying good success with young coho in the five to six-pound range.

'LITTLE ONES' STEPPING OUT AT SPEEDWAY

Three new modified sportsmen cars are expected to make things interesting in their class at Western Speedway tonight, but a novelty race is threatening to steal the show.

Large interest has been shown in a special race for stock production cars of less than 40 horsepower. (Austins, Volkswagens, Fiats, Mini Minors, etc.)

Cars driven by Al Smith, Bob Fiddick and either Dave Cooper or Jerry Sylvester are expected to augment the modified races, which will be run in conjunction with the regular stock car program. Time trials start at 7.30 p.m.

GRASS GRAIN SLOWS DOWN PUTT SPEED

KNOWING GREENS HELPS

One of the most important factors in sinking short little putts is in reading the green properly. One way to read the grain of a green—to learn whether you are putting with the grain or against it, is to check the color of the grass. Look at the grass from both sides of your ball. The darker color is against the grain.

Putting against the grain tends to slow down the speed of the putt. It also tends to reduce the normal break of the ball. You must consider these factors when putting.

Closely cut green will not have much grain to disturb your putts. But they are so lightning fast that you must be careful you don't charge the hole too fast.

Keep these factors in mind, and you'll have a better chance to sink those short little putts that give everyone—including S. J. Snead—so much trouble.

Houston Chills Hot Gorge Gang

It had to happen sooner or later.

Gorge Hotel finally bowed to a Senior Men's Softball League rival.

Riding an 11-game winning streak, Ed Foychuk's Gorgemen came a-cropper Friday night, bowing 4-2 to Imperials at Heywood Avenue Park.

STOPPED COLD

The win came on the strength of fine pitching by Gordie Houston, who relieved Mark Cunningham in the first inning. The bases were full, two runs were in and only one man was out when Houston took his warm-up throws. He struck out Vic Wescott and forced Gordie Jones to pop up to end the inning.

That was all for Gorge as Houston threw a two-hitter from there on in to register the win.

Imperial batters, meanwhile, inspired by Houston's efforts, banged out seven hits against two Gorge pitchers. Included in the total were triples by Bob Sorenson and Dick Gibson, both of which were instrumental in scoring runs.

A Final Message from FOSTER ISHERWOOD

Your Victoria Liberal Candidate

For Victoria City
Oak Bay
Township of Esquimalt

June, 1962

Fellow Victorians,

The Election Campaign is nearly over. On Monday you will decide who should be entrusted with the administration of Canada's affairs!

To be a Member of Parliament, a man should have special qualifications, a dedication and willingness to serve to the best of his ability. In these I feel I can fulfill your requirements.

Most of you have made up your mind. You have discussed the issues, judged the Government's Record and examined the Candidates. And as a result of this, I trust you will vote Liberal. My own efforts in this campaign have been aimed at getting Mr. Pearson and the Liberal Party elected in Canada, because I feel this is the Leadership and Government our country needs.

On this election eve, I think it is time to say "Thank you!" Thank you for hearing me out, for all your good advice and interest. To those of you who have supported me, I can only say, "Don't forget to vote." To those who support other parties I say the same: "Don't forget to vote." To all of you—Please vote. That's what makes Democracy work.

Yours sincerely,

Foster Isherwood

TORIES WORRIED, GRITS HAPPY

NDP THREAT COLLAPSES

Startling Changes Loom in B.C. Politics

By FRANK RUTTER

The face of politics in British Columbia has undergone a great change in this election campaign.

It is still going through some contortions and its final expression June 18, if the contest is close across the rest of Canada, could have a decisive effect on the result.

At the beginning of the year, the Conservatives were sitting pretty with 18 of the 22 seats in parliament, although their popularity was waning.

The big threat then was the New Democratic Party. Social Credit stood a chance of capitalizing, too. For the Liberals the prospect was dim.

STRANGE THINGS

But strange things have happened.

The Conservatives are in real trouble and they know it.

The NDP has been something of a flop.

Social Credit has been mousy quiet.

And the Liberals have thrived.

The turning point came in the last week of May when three national leaders came to conquer B.C.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, smarting from his disappointment in Edmonton, had a run-in with the press, found a Doukhobor striptease at Trail, and met chaos in Vancouver.

Instead of a speech of glory to light a torch of victory, it was a night of bedlam in the Vancouver Forum; the speech wasn't even heard above the din of fighting and shouting.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson came and went almost unnoticed.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson followed John across the west, topping his crowds, picking up confidence shed by the unfortunate Tories.

His meeting in Vancouver was a striking contrast to Diefenbaker's night of humiliation. It was a hit, if not a palpable one.

When the Liberals said in January they could take half the seats in B.C. they were just whistling to keep up their spirits.

THEY MEAN IT

Now when they say they'll take eight seats, they really mean it. Social Credit has waited until the last week of the campaign before unleashing Premier Bennett on the B.C. voters.

The Liberals are saying the reason is that he has made a deal with Mr. Diefenbaker to realize his hydro power policies, which he privately regards as more important to the life of his provincial government than the chance of a few opposition members of parliament for his national party.

The only time the Tories have raised the power issue — and before the election there was "war" with Bennett — it has been in conciliatory terms; talk of near-agreement on the Columbia River development, promises of non-interference on the Peace River project.

The NDP, originally given a chance at some eight seats in B.C., hasn't found the bright enthusiasm that intoxicated its founding convention last fall.

The other parties are surprised at the apparent poor showing of the NDP. Charitably, they say the NDP may be saving its big B.C. punch for the finals days of the campaign, when national leader Tommy Douglas comes to Vancouver for a big rally. But will it be too late?

Although unemployment has been a big issue in B.C., it has been the Liberals, rather than the NDP, who have scored best from it, with Mr. Pearson's hard-hitting approach in his "task force" Vancouver speech.

Devaluation of the dollar has been the surprise issue, and again the Liberals have been making all the points, against a background of rising prices—bread, gasoline and fruit have all gone up in B.C.

Early in the year it appeared there would be some close contests in B.C. because of a three-way split in votes the Tories would lose.

It is still true the contests will be close, but in many of them, the Liberals will be the challenger.

The Tories will hold their two cabinet seats: Kamloops for Davie Fulton and Vancouver Quadra for Howard Green.

A late flurry by the Liberal candidate in Victoria probably won't be enough to cost them

LIBERALS LEAD IN CONSENSUS

In the last week of the current federal election campaign, correspondents of the FP newspapers—of which the Victoria Times is a member—were asked to make an assessment of prospects in their various regions.

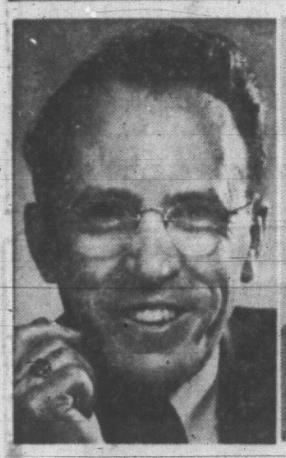

The outcome, as unofficially tabulated, points to a mish-mash government, with no party having an over-all majority.

The Liberals, in the opinion of these correspondents, stand to win about 119 seats against the Tories' 114.

This is the way the break-down looks, by areas:

	P.C.	Lib.	N.D.P	S.C.
British Columbia	10	5	6	1
Alberta	5	4	0	8
Saskatchewan	6	7	4	0
Manitoba	8	3	3	0

Voters Fear Losing Doctors

By PAT O'DWYER

SASKATOON (Special) — Saskatchewan voters, aroused to a frenzy due to fear of losing their doctors, will use the federal franchise as a virtual referendum on the provincial medicare crisis.

The preoccupied brooding over the provincial medicare insurance act has almost wiped national issues from the peoples' minds. Crisis has succeeded crisis.

The worst emotional upheaval resulted when Attorney-General R. A. Walker talked about prosecutions of doctors under the criminal code, if they broke contracts with their patients.

In Saskatoon, the new Medical Arts building is up for sale, and a similar building will be put on the auction block in Regina. Saskatoon has lost several doctors (three to Winnipeg), and others have plans to leave.

Leader In Trouble

Tied to this unrest are persistent reports that NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, the cause of it all, won't win Regina from the PCs' Ken More, popular sports and health (Anti-TB league) promoter. Mr. More won the seat in 1958 with nearly a 2-to-1 majority over the CCF man, and amassed 24,424 votes.

Women in Regina and throughout Saskatchewan, will scramble to vote against all NDP candidates, because they are goaded by the fear of losing their doctors. Mr. Douglas suceeded in making medicare the big fighting ground, but in so doing he may have assured the removal of himself and his party—federal and provincial — from Saskatchewan political life.

Now the battle shapes up between the Tories and the Grits, with the NDPs out of it, except for Mr. Douglas, Joe Phelps in The Battlefords, and Merv Johnson in Kindersley.

Even in those latter two seats, Duff Noble and Tony Steiert are running good campaigns for the Liberals, and, depending on how the votes divide among their opponents, they could win.

Mr. Noble, former president of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities, is respected by the Conservatives as one of the strongest Grits running in rural ridings.

Liberals look hopefully at Mackenzie and Melville, and in the latter, Bob Monteith, Balcarres farmer, and former president of the provincial body, may unhorse Conservative J. N. Ormiston. The cause of Mr. Ormiston's difficulties is that he introduced a bill in

Grit Comeback Biggest Surprise In Maritimes

By MARY CASY

The biggest surprise in the election campaign in the Atlantic provinces is that the Liberals are now conceded an even chance of doubling the number of seats—eight—they held in the last House, including several considered solidly Conservative at the beginning of this year.

However, predictions are being made in the face of very little real evidence of excitement over the election and workers for all parties are expecting a tough job to get voters to vote.

So far as New Brunswick goes, the picture has not changed drastically over the last six months. The Liberals are predicting a gain of three or four seats. They held three of the 10 in the last Parliament.

In Newfoundland, too, little if any change is expected, although in the last few days there has been some suggestion that the Liberals may lose one of their five seats to a personally popular Tory.

In Nova Scotia, however, the picture is very different since the election got underway. The Liberal organization, which many thought still moribund from the blows of successive provincial and federal election defeats, has been proving it is very much alive and in fact compares very favorably with the clockwork Progressive Conservative organization.

Last weekend the Liberal organization took a chance and switched—at the last minute—a Pearson meeting from a 1,200-seat to a 2,000-seat theatre. The overflow crowd gave party workers a big boost.

The same night, the Conservative organization managed to get between 800 and 900 people—a very large crowd for anybody but a party leader in this campaign—to hear Finance Minister Fleming.

Douglas Drew Largest Crowd

The biggest crowd of all went to hear the NDP's Tommy Douglas in Glace Bay. 3,800 people turned out in Clary Gillis' old constituency, which is still expected to return an NDP candidate. This constituency is the only one where the NDP is considered the likely winner.

So far as other seats are concerned, two which went Conservative by very close margins in 1958 are considered the best places for the Liberals at the moment. And in three others the Liberals are now conceded at least even odds.

Prince Edward Island presents the biggest question mark. It has been impossible to perceive any strong reaction either for or against the government's announcement that it will go ahead with a $100,000,000 causeway between the island and the mainland.

As the campaign came close to its end, however, there was very little conjecture about change in P.E.I., with the Liberals being given only a fairly good chance of taking one of the four seats the Conservatives won in 1958.

Throughout the region, the New Democratic Party has not developed as strongly as it was earlier expected to do. Actu-

Dollar Pegging Provided Issue For Campaign

By JOHN DAFOE

WINNIPEG—The election campaign in search of an issue finally found one just two weeks from voting day.

The issue lay in the time-bomb effect of the May 23 pegging of the Canadian dollar. Voters, who had reacted with vague but indefinite concern to the idea that Canada's dollar was now worth only 92.5 cents American, found it a cause for personal interest early in June when the price of beef, groceries and gasoline began to rise.

The price rise turned devaluation which had originally helped the government in rural Manitoba by automatically increasing the farmers' price for wheat and livestock, into a double-edged issue in which the benefits and handicaps became equally evident.

The boost gave added impetus to opposition party campaigns which had already been moving at their strongest in the Greater Winnipeg ridings.

Even without the extras fillip provided by the devaluation issue, the Greater Winnipeg seats were already producing the liveliest campaigning of the election.

By election eve, the city ridings had emerged as the most likely sites of heavy government losses with every indication that the opposition parties could pick up from the five seats.

In Winnipeg North, Conservative Murray Smith's problems continued to grow and David Orlikow maintained his position as the NDP candidate most likely to succeed in Manitoba.

In Winnipeg North Centre, Stanley Knowles, who six months ago might have had cause to worry about the strength of his organization after his four-year absence in the east, is campaigning as though he had never been away.

Tight Race In North Centre

Conservative MP John McLean is no pushover this time, however, and North Centre could produce one of the tightest races of any city riding.

In Winnipeg South Centre, Liberal Ed Russenholt started off his campaign to overcome a huge majority and unseat Veterans Affairs Minister Gordon Churchill.

Somewhere, the campaign seems to have lost some of its original steam, but an upset is still possible.

Winnipeg's South has produced what everybody in all parties concedes is—from a purely technical standpoint at least—the best campaign in Manitoba.

It is being run with enormous zest by Margaret Konantz, the Liberal candidate, and it has the Conservatives scared silly.

Starting out on a light-hearted level, the campaign matured into a more serious discussion of the issues in the later stages. The Conservatives are saying hopefully that the Liberal campaign peaked too soon but the healthy majority held by the sitting member, Gordon Chown, may not be enough to save him.

In St. Boniface, too, the Liberals are showing power and their candidate Roger Teillet has emerged as the front runner in the campaign. Sitting member Laurier Regnier is also facing a determined campaign from Graham Campbell of the NDP.

Wheat Payment Memory Fades

Outside of Greater Winnipeg, the situation becomes more cloudy. The memory of those final wheat payments and acreage payment cheques which farmers received earlier in the year are becoming slight faded but they remain happy that wheat surpluses have vanished and that their prices have gone up.

In spite of the general satisfaction on the farm, there are still half a dozen seats that the Conservatives could lose. No one, however, expects them to lose them all.

In Dauphin, Fred Zaplitny, a youthful veteran of the old CCF, is rated a good chance of regaining his seat from Conservative Elmer Forbes. The Liberal candidate, S. T. Sigurdson, rates a strong outside chance.

Springfield is anybody's seat, with Conservative member Joe Slogan, Jake Schulz of the NDP and Archie Warren of the Liberals all rated almost equal.

Liberal candidate Harris Huston is running strongly in Marquette riding and is given an even chance of upsetting the tough Conservative member Nick Mandziuk.

In Selkirk, another three-way fight is in progress and no one would dare guess the result until the evening of election day.

Portage-Neepawa is the one riding in the province where the sitting member is not up for re-election. Social worker Sig Enns is the Conservative candidate replacing the retired MP Dr. George Fairfield. He is facing Liberal veteran Lem Shuttleworth, Doug Duncan of the NDP, and Mayor Lloyd Henderson of Portage La

Ontario to Remain Tory Stronghold

Candidates Ignoring Headquarters

By ART ROBSON

TORONTO (Special) — Toting up their predictions across Canada, Liberal strategists here say they need at least 40 of Ontario's 85 seats to form a government after Monday's election.

Discounting what can be considered as the wishful thinking of the optimists, the general consensus is that the Liberals will not win their 40 Ontario seats.

The trend here in the past few months has definitely been in the Liberal favor, but it required a strong national tide to push the party fortunes to the required goal. The tide just hasn't developed.

Even the Liberal trend results to some extent from a negative attitude. It stems from a protest against the Diefenbaker administration rather than a genuine desire for Liberal government.

Admit Some Losses

Conservatives admit they are not going to win the 67 seats they swept in 1958 nor the 63 they still held at dissolution. They admit the Liberals are going to gain ground, but not 23 seats in addition to the 17 the Grits held at dissolution.

Ontario is still Tory, they say, even if there is some disillusionment over the brave new Canada promised in 1958.

Literature mailed out by Tory candidates offers some clue to their thinking in this campaign.

There are indications that some candidates have made little or no use of pamphlets prepared by Progressive Conservative national headquarters — pamphlets playing up Mr. Diefenbaker's name and picture and the government record with blank space for the candidate to fill in his own local appeal.

Local Campaigns

John Hamilton, Progressive Conservative member for York West (a Toronto riding) said that in three mailings to his constituents he had used one of the national pamphlets and two of his own. His own played up his personal record and made no mention of Mr. Diefenbaker or the government record.

He explained it this way. The 1957-58 elections were fought largely on a national scale and party leaders were a strong talking point. This campaign, he said, is more like 265 little general elections — a constituency fight all the way.

DONALD FLEMING
. . . faces fight

PAUL HELLYER
. . . squeaked back

Generally speaking, all parties agree with that as far as Ontario is concerned.

With the exception of a few strong seats such as Liberal Paul Martin's Essex East (Windsor)—which the Tories are not seriously contesting—and Trade and Commerce Minister George Hees' Toronto-Broadview, a large proportion of Ontario's 85 seats are going to be won or lost on the basis of the local contest.

Seat Critical

Even Liberal Leader Lester Pearson could be in some trouble in Algoma East where there's grumbling about lack of representation from an absentee member. A swing of about 1,500 votes could knock him out and the Conservatives have a good candidate, but it seems they've been giving him little help.

The contest in Toronto-Eglinton is known here as the "Battle of the Giants" — a fight between Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Mitchell Sharp—former deputy minister of trade and commerce under the St. Laurent government.

The Liberals have thrown every possible effort into Mr. Sharp's blanket campaign and it's expected to be close. The late entry of David Gauthier —a young university professor and an appealing candidate under the New Democratic banner—could steal some of Mr. Sharp's badly needed votes.

Faces Struggle

Paul Hellyer, only Liberal in Toronto's 18 riding at dissolution, also has a fight on his hands. He lost in 1957-58 after being appointed associate defence minister, but switched ridings and squeaked back in a 1958 by-election.

Walter Gordon, royal commissioner on Canada's economic prospects and a top party strategist is up against some tough competition in Toronto-Davenport and a strong NDP candidate, union leader Bill Sefton, will hurt his chances of beating Tory Douglas Morton.

Walter Pitman — the only member in the last parliament who was officially designated as New Democratic Party — has taken a page out of some Tory booklets.

Calculating that he won the 1960 by-election in Peterborough by something of a fluke, he has been playing down his New Party affiliation and campaigning on his own very considerable personality. He could lose this one.

Staging Comeback

So could one of the other four former NDP members from Ontario—Arnold Peters in Temiskaming, Liberal Ann Shipley—"the fighting grandmother"—is staging a comeback there and she is counting on Social Credit to steal enough Peters votes to put her in.

The New Party could pick up the odd seat elsewhere. Example: David Lewis, former national president of the CCF and prominent labor lawyer. He's putting up a tremendous fight in Toronto's York South, but success is not guaranteed.

As indicated earlier, the New Party is bound to take Liberal votes, but it's not expected to make much headway of its own. Social Credit has come along a bit since the campaign began, but at best it can only be counted on to disrupt a tight result here and there.

On the whole, it has been a dull campaign in Ontario, which is to the Conservative liking, and the protest against the government is

Anti-Government Fires Blazing Through Quebec

By CLAYTON SINCLAIR

MONTREAL (Special) — In Quebec, where the anti-government fires are burning the strongest, there is an overwhelming evidence of a qualified Liberal party sweep.

Both Mr. Pearson and the prime minister have made last swings through the province in the last few days. But the impact of personal appearances is not expected to have much influence on Monday's balloting.

The issues of this election have been in the minds of Quebec voters now for some time; placed there, curiously, not by either party leader but by nationalist thinkers who have created a tide of feeling against central administration in general and the Diefenbaker regime in particular.

Difficult Foe

In fairness to the Conservative government of the last four years, the wave of nationalism here is something any party in power would have had difficulty in fighting.

But Liberal supporters have added campaign material in the fact, Mr. Diefenbaker's followers here have, as a unit, amounted to a fairly lightweight crew with little to offer. In contrast, Mr. Pearson can, without stopping for breath, rattle off six certain cabinet members a successful Liberal party would enlist immediately from Quebec.

The Conservatives say they hope to hold 20 of the 50 seats their party captured in Quebec during the 1958 landslide. The much more confident Liberals are certain they will have 55 members from this province by Tuesday morning.

LIONEL CHEVRIER
. . . one of six

These are figures that will be accepted by supporters of both parties, though not without argument.

Socred Menace

And while regarded as being close to the final results, neither estimate makes allowance for three to five seats Social Credit threatens to steal from the major parties.

Some traces of the old-time election color so traditional in Quebec have emerged in the last two weeks of campaigning. Henri-Georges Grenier, described as a man everybody loves but few vote for, will be making his eleventh attempt to win election to public office in Montreal-St. Denis.

The 54-year-old moderately wealthy real estate broker and financier calls himself a capital-familial candidate, the only one to run on that ticket. He doesn't expect to win but he would like to have his platform adopted. The platform: "A better

Social Credit Expected To Show Gain in Alberta

By AL ROWE

EDMONTON (Special) — Give or take a few demonstrations, the June 18 general election is just about over.

Not that a great deal more won't be said. But the campaigns have been unveiled, and —apart from a surprise new promise—what the politicians are saying now, they've been saying all along.

Where has the campaigning got them? Many in Alberta are now saying that the Liberals stand a chance of forming the next government.

At the beginning of the year such a stand would have been dismissed as gross partisanship. The Progressive Conservatives, with all this province's 17 seats, seemed well dug in. The Liberals were held in low esteem.

But, the Grit campaigning has been lively, imaginative and Lester Pearson has campaigned far better than expected.

On the other hand, the Tory efforts have been dull, humorless and surprisingly insipid. The Diefenbaker fire of the late fifties hasn't been rekindled.

The end result, many observers feel, is that Canadian voters will return to their traditional voting ways, sufficiently, at least, to give the Liberals a narrow majority in the Commons.

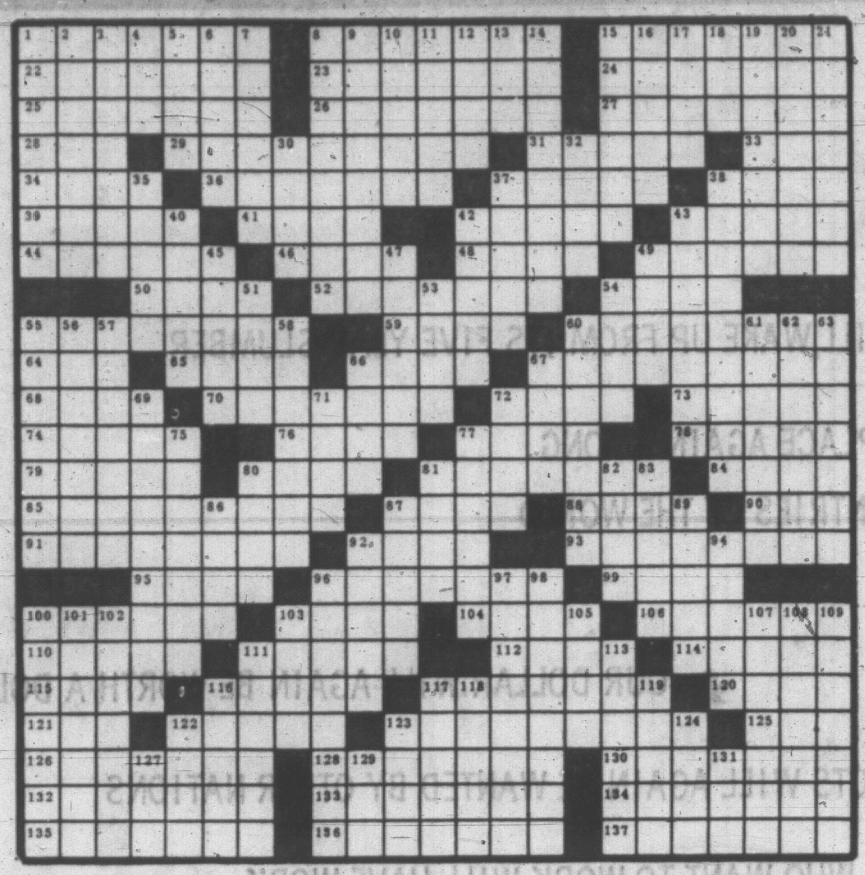

In Alberta, this means the reappearance of the Social Crediters in the House. And the guessing game in this province is how many seats will the Progressive Conservatives lose?

It wouldn't be at all surprising if they retained several, which in itself represents a net gain for them from the standpoint of traditional voting. Over the years the Conservatives in Alberta have been virtually a nothing party. If they held onto five or more seats in the election, they could count themselves relatively fortunate.

Nationally, the loss of say 10 or 12 Alberta seats could do nothing but hurt them. They could therefore easily be in the grotesque position of doing well and badly at the same time.

Who will pick up their losses? Probably the biggest gainer will be Social Credit. If the Conservatives lost 10 seats, it wouldn't be surprising if the Socreds took eight of them. The remainder would go to the Liberals. The New Democratic Party must rate a zero in Alberta.

Mother Nature's Coloring Cards

Number 8 in a continuing series of nature drawings by Jane Niebrugge features the thistle and a tiger swallowtail butterfly.

Thistles are troublesome weeds. They grow in many parts of the world; are characterized by tough, fibrous stems and prickly leaves. Thistle flowers are rich in nectar for bees and butterflies. Flowers form atop downy seedballs. Seeds are scattered by the wind.

The tiger swallowtail butterfly ranges from Canada to Key West to the Rio Grande. The family to which it belongs includes the largest as well as some of the most beautiful butterfly specimens in this region. Males of the species always adhere to one color; females assume different hues.

Diagram colors (see dispersement chart above): 1. Butterfly wings—yellow with black stripes and wingtips. 2. Thistle bloom—pinkish lavender. 3. Leaves and stems — green.

Dad wants an item from his toolshed, but Brother won't be able to find it. To discover what the item is, and why Brother's off on a wild goose chase, simply complete the diagram at left as follows:

Using a pen or pencil, draw a line from dot 1 to dot 2 to dot 3, and so on, until you have used up all of the numbers. Use same dot for numbers 1 and 15.

Answer: The dotograph poser shows a shovel, of course. Someone has left it standing outside the tool shed.

GUNG-HO GARDEN

It's spring again—time for the gardener to take stock of the what's-its, whatchamacallits and where-are-theys. How are you at identifying flowers? Let's see. What is the name of:

1. The flower that by any other name would smell as sweet.
2. The emblem of France.
3. The emblem of Scotland.
4. Three flowers that suggest a dairy.
5. The flower that's not supposed to tell.
6. The flower that brides consider lucky.
7. The flower that has a black eye.
8. A flower named for an English queen.

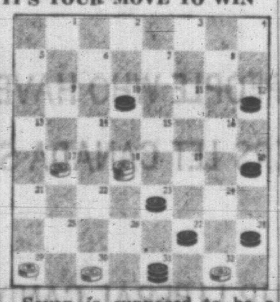

Answers: 1. rose; 2. fleur-de-lis or iris; 3. thistle; 4. buttercup, milkweed, cowslip; 5. daisy; 6. orange blossom; 7. black-eyed Susan; 8. Queen Anne's lace.

BOX NUMBER, PLEASE

A certain post office box number is 11 less than twice as much as one-third of itself plus 13. What is the number?

Answer: The number is forty-five.

IT'S YOUR MOVE TO WIN

Seven is supposed to be a lucky number, but Black takes issue with this premise here. It's White's turn, moving upboard, Black is kayoed in seven moves. Millard Hopper describes it this way:

"This checker contest finishes up like a bunco game, but the result is strictly legitimate. Black checkers pile up and soon have no place to go." How's White's victory achieved?

Solution: White 17-14. Black 10-17. White 18-22. Black 17-26. White 29-25, and although Black has three moves left, he ends up completely blocked and loses the game.

ask henry

Henry welcomes letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling bok for the most interesting letter he receives.

Dear Henry:

I don't want to boast but I have a lot of freckles. My friends are all jealous. What should I do?

FRECKLE FACE

Dear Freckle Face:

I know you don't want to boast but you do, that's why the kids are jealous. You see, not all kids are as fortunate as you are, so don't brag about your good fortune.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

We are two girls aged 14 and would like your advice on certain problems.

Do you think boys 16 are too old to date?

Do you think we are too young to go steady?

What is the reasonable time to come home on weekend nights?

Do you think we should kiss on the first date?

TWO TEEN-AGERS

Dear Two Teen-agers.

A reasonable time to come home is 10 p.m. Eighteen is the age to go steady, the later the better. "Yes" on all the other questions you ask except on being able to kiss on the first date. On that short notice you may not know what you are kissing.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

I have a crush on this girl downstairs in the apartment. She is very nice and we played quite fine until my boy friend told me something I didn't believe.

He told me she didn't like me any more and liked this other boy. But if she doesn't like me why did she give me her phone number and play with me. Is it because my boy friend wants to get back at her and to break us up? Or is this true? She could have told me nicely herself.

W.J.

Dear W. J.:

Ignore what the boy says about the girl in the apartment. How could he know what she feels about you? He doesn't know her that well . . . I hope.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

I am a boy of 13. I have a boy friend. His name is Ted. He thinks that he is better than me. He is a pest. When I tell him something he says it bigger. Would you know what I should do?

J. H.

Dear J. H.:

By reading your letter I can establish that you don't really care much for him. Friends sometimes even like each other; you two aren't friends so wave goodby.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

I am 12 and have a sister of 8. I never do anything to her, but she starts screaming. Then my parents tell me to stop doing it. What should I do?

TIRED

Dear Tired:

Find out what you are doing and don't do it.

(If you want a child's view on children, write to Ask Henry, The Telegram, 233 Bay St., Toronto.)

LET'S COUNT NOSES

Mr. and Mrs. Nose have a family. Each of their daughters has the same number of brothers as she has sisters. Each of their sons has twice as many sisters as he has brothers. So how many children have Mr. and Mrs. Nose?

If you solve this in less than two minutes, you make take a bow.

Answer: They have four daughters and three sons—seven in all.

FIND THE NUMBER?

There is a certain three-digit number. When the three digits are added they total 16, but if the number is reversed and subtracted from the original number, the result is 396.

Answer: The number is seven six five.

FORLORN LAWN?

Last year, at his wife's request, Pete Moss lay sod for a perfectly circular patch of lawn beside their house. This year, Mrs. Moss wants a circular flower bed exactly half the size of the lawn centred within it.

Pete can't arrive at a simple geometric device for halving the lawn. Can you help him?

Answer: One possible way is to draw two diameters at right angles and draw lines joining the extremities. Then draw a circle from the centre to touch the sides of the square thus formed. Area of this circle will be half that of the lawn.

Most adult fireflies eat nothing at all. Their energy has been stored from the larval stage, and their lifetime is so short they require no additional food.

Bert McPhillip's seat. John Taylor should hold Vancouver Burrard.

The Liberals appear to have Coast Capilano and Kootenay East sewn up, with Jack Davis and Jimmy Byrne.

They're extremely hopeful of overcoming a 544-vote majority in Esquimalt-Saanich. Other seats where they have a good chance: Vancouver South, Vancouver Centre, Cariboo and Comox Alberni. Possibilities are Fraser Valley and Burnaby Richmond.

The NDP shouldn't have trouble retaining the four seats they held in the last parliament: Harold Winch in Vancouver East, Bert Herridge in Kootenay West, Erhart Regier, Burnaby Coquitlam, and Frank Howard, Skeena. Good chances: Nanaimo, New Westminster, Vancouver Kingsway.

Social Credit appeared to have Cariboo in the bag before the Liberals moved in; the same thing happened in Fraser Valley, Okanagan Boundary, where Fred Shaw, 18 years MP for Red Deer, is running, is a possibility.

The close ones will be Okanagan Revelstoke, Burnaby Richmond, Cariboo, Comox Alberni, Esquimalt - Saanich, Fraser Valley, Okanagan Boundary, Vancouver South.

the last session at Ottawa, seeking clarification of the Wheat Board Act. Farmers saw this as a threat to the board's future.

Victory In Theory

Theoretically, Yorkton should go to the Liberals. Bernie Gallagher won the provincial riding there for the Liberals in 1960, and several strong MLAs sit in nearby seats.

Martin Keiln, provincial Social Credit leader, will have some effect on the outcome, favorable, perhaps to Drummond Clancy, PC, who won in 1958.

Hazen Argue is expected to hold Assiniboia for the Liberals. Though he has shifted sides, his battle for farmers continues unchanged.

The Liberals might win five seats, in this order of strength: Assiniboia, Melville, The Battlefords, Mackenzie, Kindersley and an added entry, Yorkton.

Optimistic

The NDP's, Mr. Douglas says, will win half of the seats. This is hard to see, and their best chances seem to be in Regina, Kindersley, The Battlefords and Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, as an outsider.

In this reckoning, Liberals are given a maximum 7; the NDP's a maximum 4; leaving six for the PCs.

As against those figures, some PCs claim they will win all 17 seats, and their low figures include 14 PCs, 2 Liberals (Assiniboia and Melville), one NDP (Kindersley or Regina).

The PCs' farm record has increased its stature since January, due to these events: final wheat payments, up to 53 cents a bushel in some areas; acreage payments to become permanent policy; extension of export markets through increased commodity credits to foreign customers.

Recent rains killed fears of drought and guaranteed normal crops already in some areas.

Dollar Hurts

The devalued dollar is hurting Conservative candidates, especially as prices of gasoline, imported fruits and vegetables, and domestic beef rise sharply. How much this will hurt is unknown, but it, coupled with the stock market slump, has shaken public confidence some.

Saskatchewan pride in the Diefenbaker-Hamilton team is strong. For those two, at any rate, the opposition has no giant killers.

The medicare fight favors the Tories, too. They've kept aloof from it by merely pointing to the Hall health commission. Many opposed to Premier Lloyd's medicare legislation will vote for the Conservatives, because they're certain the Hall recommendations will include keeping hands off the doctors.

Prairie, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in 1958 and unsuccessful candidate at one time or another for most top posts in the Liberal party.

Two former Liberal members of the provincial legislature also rate a chance. Stan Roberts is running hard in Provencher against Warner Jorgenson, parliamentary assistant to the minister of agriculture and energetic F. L. "Bud" Simpson in Churchill.

Conceding the majority of the uncertain rural seats to the Conservatives, the Tories will probably come out of the election with their Manitoba representation almost cut in half.

At the moment, it looks like Manitoba could return eight Tories, three Liberals and three NDP members. Any trace of a national swing could easily cut the Conservative representation to six.

A Tory campaign official says B.C. has "calmed down since the PM left" and "it doesn't look too badly."

But all those borderline seats are going to depend a lot upon how grimly they can hang on in the last week, how efficiently a revitalized Liberal organization can get the vote out, and whether the NDP can make a last minute comeback.

ally, the group was never expected to elect many members in the Maritimes, but it was expected to present a real threat to the older parties. Now, however, this does not appear to be so, and neither Liberal nor Conservative candidates are devoting much time to fighting their NDP opponents.

In fact, the Liberals have hardly even used a slogan they had ready-made — a vote for the NDP is a vote for the Conservatives. Both old parties may be wrong but they are obviously not seriously concerned with the third party problem.

DOING LITTLE

As for the fourth party, it has fielded candidates for less than half the region's 33 seats and appears to have been doing very little active campaigning, apart from visits by the national leader, Dr. Robert Thompson and British Columbia's Premier Bennett.

As the campaign has developed, there has been more and more concentration, by both Liberals and Conservatives, on the name of Diefenbaker, as the focus of criticism or praise.

Both sides are concerned with the question of whether Mr. Diefenbaker still has the same magic for the voters of 1958. The Liberals believe he has lost it and are using him primarily and the Conservative party only secondarily as their target. The Conservatives on the other hand obviously believe that the name is still the big drawing card and are selling their candidates as members of "the Diefenbaker team."

deal for the Canadian family."

Another Quebec candidate with an unusual label is Edgar Arnold, in Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, who announced he is running as the lone Confederation Party standard-bearer.

Tricky Name

In Longueuil, across from Montreal, Liberal candidate August Vincent has come up with the slogan "Vote Auguste in June." And thousands of song sheets from Vincent's office mis-spell the tricky name of the riding.

The Liberals' expected victories in Quebec will place them not only in much better numerical strength in the Commons but bolster their work output as well.

Maurice Sauve, a former chief organizer for the party in the province, is contesting the Magdalene Islands riding, the smallest in the country. Reports earmark him as transport minister in the Pearson shadow cabinet.

C. H. (Bud) Drury, a former deputy minister of defence, is regarded a certainty for any Pearson-nominated defence portfolio. He is running without much competition in St. Antoine-Westmount.

May Get Trade

Maurice Lamontagne, Louis St. Larent's former economic advisor, in Quebec East may get trade, Azellus Denis, from Montreal St. Denis, is a prospective postmaster - general. Lionel Chevrier, from Montreal-Laurier, is the fifth certain occupant of a Pearson-delegated post.

This type of support may not come from the other provinces but here, a guess at Monday's outcome might send 52 Liberals to Ottawa along with 19 Conservatives and four Social Crediters.

apparent but not too much so.

Under the circumstances, this is one of the most difficult elections to predict in Ontario.

However, it would look as though the Liberals have a chance to win 30 to 35 seats, leaving the Progressive Conservatives with about 50. The voters will provide the correct answer Monday.

How Do You Feel About the Older Driver?

My partner, Ian Rendle, and I have often talked about the older driver, and we've never yet been able to figure out why men who are 65 should have such difficulty getting automobile insurance—and at regular rates. Especially when they're in good health and with good records. Wawanesa doesn't understand it either. Although you probably have a number of years to go before you're 65, you no doubt hope to be driving long after. So isn't now the time to establish that good driving record . . . with Wawanesa? We'd like to see you driving long after 65, too!

'The Rebel' Becomes A Reporter

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The rebel has turned in his rifle for a typewriter and a newspaper beat.

Nick Adams had two good years as The Rebel on television. That's all behind him now as he prepares for a second series, Saints and Sinners.

Nick says it's going to be a smash.

"It's a newspaper story, only it's going to be done right," he explained. "None of this 'stop the presses' jazz. This will be the real thing—the way newspapermen really work."

I hated to tell him that such can also be dull on occasion. Nick himself is a graduate of a newspaper, having matriculated as copy boy on the Jersey City Journal. He also served under editor Clark Gable in Teacher's Pet. And some of his best friends are newspapermen.

Saints and Sinners is an hour-long show scheduled for Monday nights on NBC. Nick will be the star reporter of a New York tabloid, The Bulletin, but he'll be spelled by John Larkin, Richard Erdman and Ann Blyth.

Some folks were surprised to see Nick tie up with another series. His feature career has been thriving since he left The Rebel. He has gone from Hell Is for Heroes to The Interns to The Hook, his current film with Kirk Douglas.

His reasoning: "By the time I finish the second series, I should be independently wealthy. I had a 1623 per cent interest in The Rebel, which so far has netted me $240,000 in capital gains. Saints and Sinners should bring me $500,000. I expect it will run a couple of years and then I will quit television and devote myself to films."

CBC Covers Vote

Margaret Leighton In Wednesday Play; Victoria Students on Thursday Quiz

What may turn out to be the most exciting drama of the year—the federal elections—is so far ahead of any other offering on the television set that one feels embarrassed even mentioning them.

For British Columbians the show gets underway at 7 p.m. on Channels 6 and 2 when the CBC brings its entire coast-to-coast coverage into local focus. Except for a 10-minute break for "news, sports and weather," the program will be continuous until the final results are known.

Channels 8 and 12 will be offering spot coverage.

Other highlights next week are:

6.15 p.m. Tuesday, Channel 2: An edited version of the Princess Royal presenting colors to the Canadian Scottish Regiment.

10 p.m., Tuesday, Channels 6, 2: Explorations studies "The Rise and Fall of the Haida Culture."

10 p.m., Wednesday, Channel 5: The quiz game, Play Your Hunch starts its summer run.

10 p.m., Wednesday, Channels 7, 11, 12: Margaret Leighton and Ralph Bellamy star in the hour-long special, "The First Day," that is about mental illness.

7.30 p.m., Thursday, Channel 2: Victoria's high school Reach for the Top team competes against students from Summerland.

8 p.m., Thursday, Channel 7: Man On the Moon is the first of three scientific specials.

8.30 p.m., Thursday, Channels 7, 11: John Brown's Body is an hour-long special repeat, narrated by Richard Boone.

8.30 p.m., Friday, Channel 5: Breakthrough studies the causes and cures of mental illness.

MONDAY

2.30 P.M., Channels 7, 11, 12: The quiz game To Tell the Truth starts its afternoon run at this time. It will be seen on a Monday-through-Friday basis.

4.30: Channel 7: Man from Cochise returns with John Bromfield starring as U.S. Marshal Frank Morgan. It will be seen on a Monday-through-Friday basis.

7.00: Channels 6, 2: The CBC promises the greatest coast-to-coast election coverage in the annals of Canada. Except for a 10-minute break at 8 for news, sports and weather the coverage will be continual until the final results are known.

(Note: Channels 12 and 8 will be presenting capsule reports of election returns throughout the evening.)

9.00: Channel 4: Patricia Blair and Alan Baxter star in Surfside 6's hour-long mystery, "House on Boca Key." The search is on for a missing heir.

Channel 5: John Anderson and Eddie Quillan are featured in 87th Precinct's police crimer, "The Modus Man." The jewel robbery bears all the earmarks of an old hand—possibly those of Maxie Greb.

10.00: Channel 4: George C. Scott and Colleen Dewhurst star in Ben Casey's hour-long hospital drama, "I Remember a Lemon Tree." Dr. Anders is a brilliant surgeon.

Channel 5: Richard Long and Otto Kruger in Thriller's drama, "An Attractive Family." Dick and his sister have much in common—murdering their respective mates.

10.30: Channels 7, 11, 12: I've Got a Secret marks its 10th anniversary on the air.

TUESDAY

6.15: Channel 2: Princess Royal's presentation of new colors to the Canadian Scottish Regiment here will be seen in an edited version.

7.30: Channel 5: Charles Aidman and R. G. Armstrong star in Laramie's hour-long color western, "The Jailbreakers." The ex-con returns to Cheyenne to see his girl friend.

8.00: Channels 6, 2: Garry Moore hosts comics Don Knotts of the Andy Griffith Show, Alan King and Barbara McNair. The entire gang gets together to spoof the advertising business.

Channels 7, 11: Garry Moore and Carol Burnett are guests on the Password show.

8.30: Channel 4: Ed Begley and Victor Jory star in New Breed's hour-long crimer, "Policemen Die Alone." This is the concluding segment of two.

Channel 5: Anne Helm and Wayne Rogers are seen in Alfred Hitchcock's drama, "The Big Kick." The gal and her beatnik beau are both broke and hungry.

9.00: Channels 6, 2, 7, 11: Red Skelton entertains comic Don Knotts in a skit entitled "Deadeye and the Gunslinger."

Channel 5: Dick Powell and Carolyn Jones star in "Goodby, Hannah." The socialite has been missing for three months.

9.30: Channels 6, 2: Bennett Cerf, the New York publisher and long-time member of "What's My Line" is guest panelist on Front Page Challenge.

10.00: Channels 6, 2: Explorations looks at the "Rise and Fall of the Haida Culture." This will be the first of two parts studying the storied Haida Indian.

NARRATOR—Richard Boone will narrate a dramatized reading of Stephen Vincent Benet's Pulitzer Prize poem, "John Brown's Body," Thursday night at 8.30 on Channels 7, 11. It is, of course, about the U.S. Civil War.

Channel 4: Edward Andrews and Constance Ford are featured in Alcoa Premiere's drama, "It Takes a Thief." Frank and Rose Shelton discover that their apartment has been looted.

Channel 5: Michael Constantine and John McGiver star in Cain's Hundred drama, "Markdown on a Man." Lennie Burcher control's the city's produce market.

10.30: Channels 6, 2: Inquiry discusses Canada's passport system under the heading "Canada's Undiplomatic Passport."

Channel 4: Reports From Congress—the last of two reports on results of the second session of the 87th Congress of the U.S.

11.30: Channel 5: Singer Steve Lawrence takes over as guest host for a week of Tonight show.

11.35: Channel 2: Wrestling from Toronto.

WEDNESDAY

7.00: Channel 4: Bold Journey's documentary speaks about a professional trader in the jungles of Ecuador and Peru.

7.45: Channel 2: Mr. Fixit and Rex Loring demonstrate how to build a sand and sea playbox—also a storage shed for garden tools.

8.00: Channels 6, 2: Jack Creley and Don Francks are seen in Playdate's hour-long comedy, "The Greatest Man in the World," adapted by Irving Gaynor Neiman from a play by James Thurber. A national hero turns out to be not so heroic.

8.30: Channels 7, 11, 12: Checkmate's hour-long mystery, "Side By Side," with Buddy Ebsen and Paul Carr. The relationship between the two show business partners is at a low ebb.

9.00: Channels 6, 2, 5: Robert Vaughn and Diane Foster star in Mystery Theatre's "Death of a Dream." Hubby returns after walking out on his wife and child two years before. He promises that he is a changed man.

10.00: Channel 5: Play Your Hunch makes its debut in color for a summer run. Three contestants pantomime their jobs.

Channels 7, 11, 12: Margaret Leighton, Ralph Bellamy, Mildred Dunnock and Nancy Wickwire star in Westinghouse's hour-long special, "The First Day." School teacher Nora Martin suffered a mental breakdown. But after a three-month layoff her psychiatrist tells her she is quite ready to return to work.

10.30: Channels 6 2: Canada At War continues with "V for Victory."

THURSDAY

7.30: Channel 2: Reach for the Top's high school quiz enters the third playoff for the Grand Championship between Summerland and Victoria. The Greater Victoria team includes Sylvia Stephens, Michael Whitfield, Jane Turner, Mary Baldock and David Palmer.

8.00: Channels 6, 2: Nature of Things explains and demonstrates the use of explosives.

Channel 7: Man On the Moon special is the first of three programs based on the National Aeronautics and Space Administration exhibit at the Seattle World's Fair.

8.30: Channels 7, 11: John Brown's Body is an hour-long special that features Richard Boone narrating a dramatized reading of Stephen Vincent Benet's Pulitzer Prize poem about the U.S. Civil War. This was first presented last January.

9.00: Channels 6, 2: William Hartnell and Anna Wakefield star in Ghost Squad's hour-long crimer, "High Wire." Nick Craig joins a French circus that he believes is a cover for members of the mob.

Channel 12: Clu Gulager and Frank McHugh are seen in Defenders hour-long legal drama, "Death Across the Counter."

10.00: Channel 2: Franchot Tone and Denise Alexander star in Ben Casey's hospital drama, "A Memory of Candy Stripes." They try to rehabilitate a skid row bum by placing him in the hospital history.

Channel 4: Lee Marvin and Victor Jory star in Untouchables drama, "Element of Danger." The gangster Victor Rate is a pretty tough guy by any standard of measurement.

11.35: Channel 2: All-Star Golf.

FRIDAY

6.30: Channel 4: Championship Bowling between Loy Countryman and Lou Campi.

7.30: Channel 5: International Showtime visits the Circus Williams in Arnheim, Holland.

PRINCESS MARY OPENS NEW LAW COURTS

Girl Guides Thaw Royal Dignity As Happy Interlude in Busy Day

SMALL BOY at Victoria's Centennial Flower Show in the Curling Rink didn't seem much interested when Princess Royal praised exhibits to Mrs. Ena McCabe, vice-president.

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The personality of the Princess Royal seemed to change when she met some 1,500 Guides and Brownies on the sun-drenched lawns of Government House Friday afternoon.

Until then she had been a dignified princess fulfilling the official functions of state — a pleasant woman yet perhaps a little austere.

But when the Brownies chanted "Welcome to the Princess Royal" in their high treble voices, her expression changed to one of deep affection, and she smiled like a mother on the sea of brown and blue uniforms scattered over the wide green lawns.

Change Noticeable

The change of expression was noticeable to those who had followed her through the busy day of state and protocol — from the Legislative Buildings to the City Hall, from the Royal Jubilee Hospital to the Law Courts and the Centennial Flower Show in the Curling Rink.

Among the Guides and Brownies Princess Mary was obviously at home. She talked to dozens of them—and stepped out of line when she noticed a young Guide who had dropped out of the parade and was sitting on a grassy knoll nearby.

"I hope you are feeling better, my dear," she said to Maryka Hermans of 2025 Oak Bay Avenue.

Maryka looked up with a wan smile and said: "Much better, thank you, Ma'am."

Long In Service

The Princess Royal was obviously accustomed to such emergencies, having been president of the British Girl Guide Association for more than a quarter of a century.

And she was impressed by the smart turn-out of Guides and Brownies from so many different parts of Vancouver Island.

"I congratulate you on your appearance and I wish you good Guiding—always."

The slim grey-haired woman, in blue hat and dress, seemed reluctant to leave the youngsters and they responded to her in the friendliest spirit.

Formalities Observed

The Brownies gave her the "Grand Howl" and "If you're happy and you know it, clap your hands."

The Princess Royal beamed on them all.

Then there was the more formal part. Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes presented Mrs. Roy Holmes, provincial commissioner, B.C. Girl Guides' Association; Mrs. W. S. Emmerton, area commissioner for Greater Victoria, and Mrs. Hugh Henderson, deputy commissioner.

On the way back to Government House, the princess stopped to talk with Leonard Butterworth, superintendent of gardens.

"You have a lovely show of flowers," she told him.

EAGER-EYED Brownies cluster round the Princess at mass rally on Government House lawns.

The princess finished off her busy day as guest of honor at a state dinner given by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes at which Health Minister Eric Martin, as deputy premier, sat beside her.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner took over the premier's mantle when he welcomed the princess at the opening of the new Law Courts on Cathedral Hill.

With him was a brilliant assembly of cabinet ministers, judges and lawyers seated in front of the main entrance, facing a crowd of some 500 spectators.

The princess smiled when Mr. Bonner spoke of the "carefree days" when there were no lawyers in Victoria.

He added, however, that "from colonial times to the present, the rule of law and maintenance of order in B.C. has been an outstanding characteristic of the capital city."

Courts Dedicated

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant spoke of his pride in the new Law Courts and jibed at those who once said they would never be constructed.

As she entered the new building, the princess declared: "I declare these Law Courts open. Long may they serve the cause of justice."

At Victoria Horticultural Society's centennial flower show, the princess viewed 44 varieties of roses, 46 kinds of general flowers and 17 classes of fruits and vegetables.

In conversation with Mrs. Ena McCabe, vice-president of the society, who showed her around, the princess expressed great admiration for the exhibits and chatted with local enthusiasts.

She particularly admired a hybrid orchid shown by Rev. Dr. Denny Bright, 2927 Seaview.

Major George Wiggan, secretary-treasurer of the society, was presented to the princess with W. J. Roper, chief show steward, and Fred George, assistant steward

VOTE LIST ENQUIRY ADJOURNED TO JUNE 28

VANCOUVER (CP) — A special Election Act enquiry commission has declined to immediately consider charges that a faulty enumeration had disenfranchised many Vancouver Centre riding voters.

Presiding commissioner Lloyd G. McKenzie, Victoria, said if evidence before him suggests the enumeration should be examined he would recommend this to Ottawa.

But he pointed out his terms of reference limit the enquiry, set up specifically to determine if offences were committed in registration at courts of revision of persons who said they were qualified voters, but may not have been.

The enquiry was adjourned to June 28 after commission counsel E. A. Alexander said 1,000 documents collected by RCMP had yet to be examined.

1. Ask Mom to get ARCTIC ICE CREAM in the big economical 3-pint size. It's by far the most delicious ice cream you ever tasted! Tear off the red end-flap from the empty carton, and send it in with your contest entry.

3. Win a real western holiday at the famous Diamond Jay Children's Ranch, White Rock! All the fun and excitement of the wild west, including trail rides, stagecoach rides, a real bunkhouse to sleep in, round-ups — and much, much more! You may even be elected Sheriff!

2. Clip and complete the entry form below, attach the red Arctic carton end-flap, and mail your first entry today! Enter often — new winners each week all summer! You can pick up extra entry forms at the store where you buy Arctic Ice Cream.

4. Take a pardner! Winners can choose any 8-to-12 year old pal to share their all-expenses-paid holiday! It's double the fun when you take along your brother, sister, cousin or school pal on this once-in-a-lifetime western adventure!

READ CONTEST RULES CAREFULLY!

1. Contest open to children aged from 8 to 12, except children of employees of the Arctic Ice Cream Division of FVMPA or its advertising agency.

2. To enter, complete entry form. Fill it in neatly in pen or pencil, giving your name, age, address, phone number, and the store where you buy Arctic Ice Cream. Complete the sentence "Arctic Ice Cream is my favourite Ice Cream because . . . " in 25 words or less, and ask your mom or dad to sign the form, too. Attach the red end-flap from a 3-pint carton of Arctic Ice Cream to your entry, and mail to P.O. Box 3000, Vancouver.

3. Enter as often as you like — get extra entry forms from any store selling Arctic Ice Cream. Enclose a 3-pint Arctic Ice Cream carton red end-flap with each entry.

4. There will be weekly contests between July 1st and August 26th, and winners will be notified each week. Entries will be judged by officials of Arctic Ice Cream and their advertising agency, and prizes will be awarded strictly on the basis of neatness and originality. Judges' decisions will be final.

5. Prize-winners will receive a week's free holiday for TWO this summer at the Diamond Jay Children's Dude Ranch in White Rock, B.C. This means winners can take along any 8-to-12 year-old relative or friend on the free holiday.

6. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Sunday of each week.

7. Winners and accompanying children will be asked to take suitable clothing and personal equipment to the ranch — toothbrush, soap, etc. Parents will be provided with a list of these necessities.

8. Entries will be accepted with the understanding that children's parents or guardians give permission for children to spend a week at the Diamond Jay. Every effort will be made to ensure a safe, happy holiday for all.

9. Arctic Ice Cream will provide free transportation to and from the Diamond Jay for all prize-winners who live east of Hope, or on Vancouver Island. Other prize-winners will be expected to make their own arrangements for transportation to the ranch, only 30 miles from Vancouver.

PIERRE BERTON TELLS

WHY I INTEND TO VOTE FOR THE NDP

For the independent voter (and I am one) this election poses serious problems. There have been times when a choice seemed easy—after the pipeline debate, for instance. This is not one of those times.

There is no doubt that large numbers of independent voters are disillusioned with Mr. Diefenbaker. This disillusion goes deeper than politics; it is part of a general disillusion about Canada's future, and we have seen nothing like it since the 1930s. There has been a sense of aimlessness at the top level, a feeling of drift only partially concealed by the Micawber-like cloud of optimism which allows the country's leaders to pretend that if we just sit tight things may be okay after a while.

This lack of imagination, this reluctance to do anything different, this government by Royal Commission permeates the so-called quote Progressive unquote Conservatives. How typically and ambiguously Canadian is that double-barreled name, suggesting as it does a hesitant step forward and then a timid hop back; I have a slogan for the Tories: MOVE SIDEWAYS WITH THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES.

THE LIBERALS' LOST CHANCES

The Liberals, alas, seem equally terrified of doing anything unorthodox. On most of the grave issues that face the nation the party has backtracked and shilly-shallied. It has criticized the government's fuzzy defence policy; yet it is hard for the average voter to tell what the Liberal policy is all about. Do they or don't they want nuclear arms on Canadian soil, for instance? The answer is a hesitant "Maybe."

On the two great national issues—unemployment and health insurance—the Liberals had a chance to show that theirs was a party of the future. They muffed both chances. . . .

At its 1961 convention the Liberal Party was offered a daring plan to come to grips with the chronic unemployment problem. The plan, drafted in committee, was boldly specific; retrain those workers thrown out of jobs by machines; pay them a living wage while they're learning; find new jobs for them and, if necessary, pay their transportation to those jobs. This is precisely the kind of surgery that is needed in this age of automation, but it terrified the Liberal leadership, possibly because it had a dangerously liberal ring to it. It didn't even get before the convention. Mr. Pearson still promises to solve unemployment, but his solutions sound vague and unconvincing. I have a slogan for the Liberals, too: BE CAUTIOUSLY CANADIAN—VOTE LIBERALS.

I do not need a comic slogan for the Social Credit Party. They have come up with their own which sounds as if it were written by Bob Hope: YOU HAVE NOTHING TO LOSE—VOTE SOCIAL CREDIT. Is it really possible that a party can command votes with this nonsense in 1962? Yes, Virginia, it is possible, especially if the party offers every voter a cool $100 along with it. You see, there really IS a Santa Claus.

THE RADICAL VOTE

This leaves the New Democratic party, which has been desperately trying to pretend that it really isn't radical, unorthodox, daring, imaginative or in any sense un-Canadian. Fortunately, old habits die hard and the NDP's program picks up where the CCF left off. In spite of its penchant for caution, the NDP has been able to present a clear-cut alternative to the old gang.

Going over its policies I am cheered to see how many deal specifically and firmly with matters discussed in this space. The NDP believes in a planned immigration policy (such as the Australians have) instead of a haphazard one. It believes in tightening the combines laws, not loosening them. It believes in limiting interest rates. It has a retraining plan for unemployed to cope with automation. It has a specific, all-encompassing national health scheme and retirement pension scheme. It is firmly opposed to Canada joining the nuclear club. . . .

The crisis that Canada faces is a long-term crisis, only dimly perceived. But an awareness is dawning that we are being left behind by bolder nations, many of whom have had the foresight and the guts to adopt policies long advocated by the NDP and CCF.

The significant thing in this election will not be which twin squeaks into office. The really important question is whether the total NDP vote will be large enough to spread concern in the ranks of the stick-in-the-muds and whether the individual votes will be strong enough to send a healthy corporal's guard to Ottawa to keep that concern alive. If the NDP goes under, who will be left to needle and wheedle?

So, don't swallow that hokum about wasted votes in this election. Every ballot will count this time whether your man makes it or not.

2 WEEKS TO GO

Medicare Rules Disclosed

REGINA (CP) — Regulations dealing with the Saskatchewan medical care insurance plan plan scheduled to begin in two weeks were announced Friday night.

Earlier Friday, Premier Woodrow Lloyd refused to meet with an estimated 500 persons who went to the legislature in a 112-car cavalcade to present petitions and ask that implementation of the plan be delayed.

The cavalcade was organized by Keep-Our-Doctors Committee members representing Prince Albert, Premier Lloyd's home riding of Biggar and other Saskatchewan centres. It followed a cavalcade held two weeks ago of about 350 cars, which presented Mr. Lloyd with petitions from all over the province, carrying about 46,000 signatures asking for the delay.

Doctors in several areas have said they will leave the province rather than work under the compulsory, comprehensive and prepaid program. And the provincial College of Physicians and Surgeons has announced it will provide only hospital-based emergency services beginning July 1.

REVEAL REGULATIONS

Medical Care Commission Chairman Dr. D. D. Tansley, who announced Thursday that 55 applications have been received from United Kingdom doctors interested in practising in Saskatchewan, Friday made public the regulations under which they would work.

In a joint announcement with provincial Health Minister W. G. Davies he explained regulations governing mediation procedures, rates of payment, secrecy regulations and other aspects of the plan.

Included are procedures to be followed by a beneficiary wishing to withdraw from the provision of having the commission act as his legal agent in making payment, settling the rate of payment and taking or fighting court action for medical bills.

Such a withdrawal will not relieve a beneficiary of responsibility for payment of premiums. Payment for insured medical services still will be made on his behalf by the commission.

Rates of payments to physicians are to be 85 per cent of the schedule of minimum fees established by the college and a mediation procedure is outlined for use in settling any disputes.

Medical assessment boards of physicians are to review any accounts with which the physician is not satisfied and the decision is to be subject to appeal to a physician's appeal board.

Under secrecy regulations the names of beneficiaries, the amounts paid to a physician or the name and address of a resident may be revealed only with the approval of the individual concerned, on a court order or where the information is required in the administration of the Medical Care Act.

CENTENARY QUEEN

Reigning as queen of the Port Angeles centennial celebrations is Karyn Kunkel. The Washington city staged a grand parade today. Mammoth historical pageant "From Wilderness to Wonders" will be presented nightly at civic field from June 18 to 23.

Essay Awards Presented Wednesday

Winners were announced Friday of a conservation essay contest in Southern Vancouver Island Schools sponsored by the B.C. parks and recreation department and the Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association.

Awards will be officially presented next Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Thetis Lake Park.

Topic for both competitions was "Wildlife Conservation in My District" to be based on the student's understanding of the aims and importance of conservation.

The two essay competitions, for students of Grades V and VI, and Grades VIII and IX, includes School Districts 61, 62 and 63.

Professor Lewis Clarke, president of the association, will present the awards. Appropriate valuable prizes are offered within each competition.

Prize winners include the following:

Grades V and VI—Judy Roe, 10, Grade VI, Oaklands School; 2, Andrew Harcombe, 11, Grade VI, Prospect Lake School; 3, Rosalie Roskelley, 11, Grade VI, George Jay School.

Honorable Mention—1, Barbara Hill, 11, Grade V, Beaver Lake School; 2, Jim Rankin, 10, Grade V, Beaver Lake School; 3, Shirley Sisson, 11, Grade VI, Langford Elementary School.

Grades VIII and IX—1, Joan Hannay, 13, Grade VIII, North Saanich Secondary School; 2, Dianne Quayle, 15, Grade IX, Royal Oak Junior Secondary School; 3, Bob Stanlake, 12, Grade VIII, Mount Newton Junior Secondary School.

Honorable Mention—1, Dietmar Frobeen, 14, Grade VIII, Mount Newton Junior Secondary School; 2, Janet Harris, 13, Grade VIII, Mt. Newton; and Margaret Brown, 13, Grade VIII, also of Mt. Newton School.

CP ELECTION NIGHT KEYSTONE

100,000 Bring You Results

TORONTO (CP) — Teamwork of The Canadian Press and its 102 member newspapers, an army of electoral workers and the telegraph companies will provide Canadians with the results Monday night of the federal general election.

All told, more than 100,000 persons will collect, tabulate and report on the millions of ballots to produce a fast and comprehensive picture through newspapers, television and radio of how the country voted.

From the time ballot boxes are opened after the close of polls, about 97,000 electoral officials and returning officers will provide progressive vote-counts to newspaper correspondents in each constituency. The telegraph companies have a vast network of wire to feed returns to CP's cross-country news wires.

A special compiling staff at the Canadian Press head office in Toronto will turn out a speedy flow of progressive returns — half-a-dozen reports from each seat—and give the general picture in thumbnail statistical detail at frequent intervals.

The complete CP service, which forms the basis of both published and broadcast reports election night, goes to the CBC for television and radio and—through Broadcast News, a CP subsidiary—to 243 private broadcasting stations over their 9,000-mile network.

The national news gathering co-operative set records in 1958 both for speed and for completeness of individual poll returns.

At 7.02 p.m. EST — only 62 minutes after polls closed in Ontario and Quebec—CP reported re-election of the Progressive Conservative government. Eighteen minutes later, it reported an over-all majority and indication of a cross-country sweep. The previous record for reporting an election outcome was 75 minutes after the close of Ontario and Quebec polls, in 1953.

When the flow of returns stopped on election night in 1958, CP had tabulated 96 per cent of the vote compared with 94 per cent in 1957 and 90 per cent in each of the previous three elections.

Because of an amendment to the Canada Elections Act at the last Parliament, it will be later this time before Canadians know what party they elected to power.

The amendment added one hour to the end of the voting period, setting polling hours at 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local Standard Time—or 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the many areas that are on Daylight Time.

AFTER POLLS CLOSE

First progressive returns will start moving on news wires shortly after polls close in Newfoundland—5.30 p.m. EST, or 6.30 p.m. EDT (3.30 PDT.)

Returns may not be published in newspapers or broadcast in any province before the close of that province's polls. This is in compliance with a 1938 Election Act amendment following claims that speedy CP reporting of 1935 Dominion election returns affected voting in the West.

ROAD BLOCKS SET UP FOR THUGS

Police set up road blocks today in the Campbell River area in an attempt to intercept thieves who robbed a fish barge after beating up a barge worker and leaving him bleeding and unconscious.

Taken to hospital with head and other injuries was Frank Frey, 20, assistant manager of Tuloch-Western Fisheries Limited. Police, answering a call, found him unconscious in the barge's living quarters, bleeding from a head wound.

He had apparently collapsed after telephoning for help.

Police said the thieves escaped with some $3,000 worth of fishing equipment from the barge, plus "a large amount of cash."

Stanley Palmer, manager of the fish-buying firm, said he did not know immediately how much money had been taken.

Favorable IWA Vote Expected on Formula

Tabulators Still Count Local Votes

Speculation was rife today that 26,000 B.C. coast woodworkers, whose vote on a contract proposal will be released Monday, had approved the offer.

Jack Moore, regional president of the IWA, said in Vancouver today that any guesses on the outcome of balloting would be premature.

"We haven't heard from all the locals yet," he said. "Three of them are still counting ballots."

Vote was on a formula suggested by Dr. Neil Perry of the University of B.C., mediator appointed to try to effect a settlement between the big union and Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., spokesman for the coast logging and lumber operators.

TWO INCREASES

Dr. Perry proposed two yearly wage increases of eight cents per hour each, and an extra week of paid vacation for workers with 20 years or more of service. Present basic wage rate is $1.92 per hour.

Regional officers of the IWA had recommended acceptance of the Perry proposal.

STILL STUDIED

F.I.R. was reported still considering the proposal on behalf of the companies.

Speculation on the results of voting came from Vancouver, where a newspaper said the New Westminster local had turned the tide in favor of accepting the offer.

It said that the big Vancouver local voted 2,600-1,900 against the Perry formula, and that Port Alberni had turned it down 1,700-1,100.

BIG MARGIN

New Westminster, however, voted 2,400-900 in favor, the paper said.

It said further that Duncan, Haney, Victoria, and the Vancouver-based "Loggers' Local," No. 1-71, which serves upcoast and isolated logging camps, were reported in favor of settlement.

A check with the Victoria office revealed that votes were still being tabulated.

GAS PRICE CUT BACK BY TWO MAJOR FIRMS

Gasoline prices at Texaco and Royalite dealers in Victoria and other B.C. centres returned today to their level prior to recent 1 cent increases.

Announcement of the cutback was made in Vancouver Friday, amid hints that a gas price war might be in the offing, at least in the lower mainland area.

Action followed shortly after Imperial Oil issued a statement that it would not increase gasoline prices "at this time."

In addition to Texaco and Royalite, BA Oil and Shell Oil set 1 cent increases, and have not yet announced price roll backs. But Victoria dealers for both companies expect BA and Shell will be compelled to follow suit.

Home and Standard, as well as Imperial, held prices at the former level.

A spokesman for Texaco in Vancouver said the cut was prompted by nine days of poor sales and customer complaints.

"Prices have a way of finding their own level. If anyone moves prices still lower, we'll have to follow," he said.

Some observers felt the highly competitive situation within the industry could lead to a price war.

Strict Zoning For Pat Bay Highway Urged

Saanich is urged in a Capital Region Planning Board report today to continue to exert strict control of commercial development along the Patricia Bay Highway.

The report follows receipt by council of several applications for commercial rezoning along the city's main highway link to the mainland.

Prepared by planning director Tony Roberts, the report warns that if ribbon development is allowed along the highway, travelling time to and from Vancouver will increase considerably.

"If we allow free-for-all development everyone is going to suffer," he said.

He pointed out another reason, other than efficiency, for keeping the highway free of ribbon development is "tourism."

"It's important to keep our main approach to the city beautiful," he said. "There is only 20 miles of highway between Victoria and the ferry and this can easily be spoilt."

Mr. Roberts said the B.C. department of highways so far has done a good job in curbing ribbon development along the highway.

But he points out that pressure is increasing on all fronts for commercial development along the route.

LEAFLET DROP RULED OUT

Victoria's New Democratic Party has been denied permission to drop pamphlets on the city from an airplane, but they will try to distribute them aerially anyway—perhaps by dropping them from one of the downtown office buildings.

Failing that, they will be passed out by hand, a party spokesman said.

Thousands of these leaflets, proclaiming the NDP's stand against all nuclear weapons, were prepared for the drop, but the party couldn't find a pilot who would fly them, due to regulations forbidding the jettisoning of any kind of material except in an emergency.

CANADIAN SCOTTISH ON PARADE

Her 'Own' Vets, Cadets Inspected by Princess

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Old soldiers of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) put on a brave show of medals and ribbons for the Princess Royal in tree-shaded Pioneer Square this morning.

Later she inspected 400 Canadian Scottish cadets from many parts of the Island in MacDonald Park, and for all of them, young and old, it was a day to be remembered.

The old soldiers—veterans of the Boer War and the First and Second World Wars—squared their shoulders and puffed out their chests as they marched from the Royal Theatre to Pioneer Square.

MEDALS APLENTY

Between them they averaged about six medals apiece, and the medals jingled merrily as they made a smart right turn into Pioneer Square.

One of the oldest—Major Peter Mathison, 78—joined the parade on crutches at Pioneer Square, and the princess, noticing his decorations, asked if he had served in the Boer War.

He told her he was in South Africa with the 2nd Scottish Horse and in France with the 16th Battalion, Canadian Scottish.

"That is quite a history," said the princess.

Wearing full uniform as colonel-in-chief of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, the princess was escorted to Pioneer Square by Hon. Frank Ross, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, and welcomed by Brig. F. N. Cabeldu, chairman of the trustees of the Canadian Scottish.

'VERY CHARMING'

She was then conducted to the front of the parade by Col. E. S. Henderson, DSO, ED. Lieut. J. Rogers, MC, MM, commanded the first platoon, and Major G. McIntosh the second.

During her inspection, the princess chatted with Victoria veterans Ken Bowyer, Harry Jackson and Capt. John Paton. She also had a word of greeting for Sgt. W. Jack Smith.

"She was very charming and made us feel at ease," commented Capt. Paton.

WREATH LAID

After taking a salute from the veterans, the princess placed a wreath at the foot of the Memorial Cross, escorted by Col. Henderson, Brigadier Cabeldu, and Mr. Ross.

The wreath bearer was Lt. W. Mackie, DCM, a veteran of the 16th Battalion.

In the parade were Col. J. R. Kingham, who commanded the First Battalion, Canadian Scottish, when it went overseas in 1941, and Brigadier Jack Adam, former aide-de-camp to ex-Lieut.-Governor Ross.

SEEN BY HUNDREDS

The ceremony was watched by several hundred men, women and children assembled in Pioneer Square and by many more who watched from the street.

From Pioneer Square the princess drove with Mr. Ross to Macdonald Park where she inspected a spectacular parade of six corps of Canadian Scottish cadets from Victoria, Nanaimo, Duncan, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Qualicum.

She was received by Capt. Angus Davie, an army and RCAF veteran who served on the International Truce Commission in Laos, and escorted to the saluting base.

Cadet Capt. Ralph King of 2000 Mayne Avenue, Victoria, ordered a royal salute as the senior cadet on parade.

FOUR-MASTER SAILS MONDAY IF WIND FAIR

Given a fair wind Monday evening, Victoria will get its first look at a four-masted ship under full sail since the 1958 visit of the Nippon Maru from Japan.

The Chilean brigantine schooner Esmeralda, here on a Centennial goodwill visit, is tentatively scheduled to slip from her berth at Esquimalt harbor about 8 p.m. Monday.

Her captain, Cmdr. Daniel Arellano MacLeod, hopes to get all sail on her if there's anything of a breeze. The ship uses auxiliary power only in a flat calm; during a 45-day passage from Chile to Esquimalt, she used power on only three days.

Cmdr. MacLeod promises to make as close a sweep to the Dallas waterfront as possible, as Esmeralda sails on for a visit to the Seattle Fair.

Final open-ship hours aboard Esmeralda are from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday. She is berthed at the government jetty on the Naden side of Esquimalt Harbor, and can be reached through the main gate on Admiral's Road.

MONTE ROBERTS

In case you have been wondering whatever happened to Floogelism in this election, what happened was, it almost became a lost cause.

But not quite.

A final, last-ditch, pre-election meeting last night breathed new life into the Floogelistic movement.

The meeting was called to discuss the public's opinion of Floogelism, as expressed in the Public Opinion Polls.

Cause for general concern was due to the fact the Public Opinion Polls failed to reflect a very high opinion of Floogelism.

In fact, one very well-known poll, the Gallop Poll, asked this question:

Would you vote for Floogelism if it were the last party on earth?

Only a very small percentage of those interviewed, namely 0.00 per cent, reported in the affirmative.

The other Public Opinion Polls were not much different. The Trotter Poll reported 00.0 per cent intended to vote for Floogelism; the Pacer Poll said 0.0.0; and the Walker report said OOOH.

Thus you can see the supporters of Floogelism who met last night were in no mood for premature victory celebrations.

In fact, the whole movement was in grave danger of winding up when the founder, who was also chairman of the meeting, gave forth with a brilliant idea.

"Wait!" he cried. "All is not lost. The advance polls show that none of the voters are going to vote for us.

"But how about the non-voters?"

A gasp of admiration ran through the Floogels present at the meeting. How about, indeed, the non-voters?

"There are always at least a couple of million non-voters," the founder and chairman went on. "And there is no reason why Floogelism can't claim each non-vote of each non-voter for its very own.

"That way," cried the founder and chairman, "Floogelism will at least hold the balance of power.

"And," he added darkly, "if its really close, we can count on the spoiled ballots to sweep us to victory."

Thus, Floogelism redivivus. If you wish to help, do as you please, but don't vote.

And if you DO have to vote, the least you can for Floogelism and the resurgent forces of confusion is spoil your ballot.

Week-Long 'Autorama' June 25

Fourth annual Quarter Milers Autorama, slated for June 25-30, will be a week long this year compared to last year's two-day show.

Length of the show has been extended for a special centennial program, which includes the Victoria Lions "Klondike Week."

Based on a 100 years ago theme, the Klondike week features games such as "stake a claim" with gold nuggets as prizes.

The Centennial Autorama will be outside the Victoria Curling Rink as well as inside this year, and the Victoria Centennial Orchestra will entertain nightly.

Other features of the show include kids' rides, Miss Autorama, and a contest to win two cars for a dime.

The show will run Monday to Friday from 6 p.m. to midnight and Saturday from 10 a.m. to midnight. Proceeds are for the drag strip building fund and Lions' charities.

Laing to Support City Candidate

Foster Isherwood, Liberal candidate for Victoria, will wind up his election campaign at a public meeting to be held at St. Louis College, starting at 8.15 tonight.

Arthur Laing, former provincial leader and Liberal candidate for Vancouver South, will speak on Mr. Isherwood's behalf.

FINED $75

Youth Leads Policemen Wild Chase

A fleeing car led pursuing police vehicles a merry dance through the downtown and Gorge area of the city late Friday night before the driver was caught.

At 10.40 p.m. Oak Bay police radioed the licence number of a car involved in a hit and run accident a short time earlier.

At 10.50 p.m. a city juvenile officer spotted the car at Government and Belleville and gave chase.

WAGON DODGED

The young driver deftly swerved around the wagon and took off again—still persued by the juvenile officer in his car and a police motorcycle. His route wound through Pembroke, Mills, Bay, Rock Bay, Gorge, Dunedin, Sumas, Jutland, Cecelia and Manchester.

Just a short while later police found the car at the rear of a house on Sumas.

The driver, 18-year-old Andrew Ramage, 682 Sumas, appeared in city police court today and admitted a charge of criminally negligent driving.

He was fined $75 and his licence was suspended by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

"Somehow he completed his journey without an accident," prosecutor Angus Smith said.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Edwin Brooks, convicted of theft under $50, was given a suspended sentence and released on his own recognizance to be of good behavior for six months in city police court Friday.

Magistrate William Ostler noted a favorable probation report, and recommended to Brooks that he take advantage of the probation officer's offer to secure employment.

Frank Zupanic, 1820 Julia, was fined $250 in city police court Friday and had his licence suspended for impaired driving.

A second charge of careless driving was withdrawn by the Crown.

A $2,000 cheque to be used towards construction of a health and welfare centre in Saanich was presented by Victoria Kinsmen Thursday to Reeve Stanley Murphy.

The money is the first of a series of donations the club plans to make towards the project. It eventually hopes to raise $25,000 for the centre.

The Garden City Horsemen's Club will sponsor a playday at 1 p.m. Sunday on a large field at the entrance to Beaver Lake Park, Patricia Bay Highway.

There will be a variety of novelty events of interest to spectators as well as participants.

Squadron Leader James D. Duncan of Victoria, an RCAF medical secretarial officer since 1941, has retired from the air force.

Born and educated in Victoria, SL Duncan served two tours of duty overseas before joining the surgeon-general's office at Ottawa in 1960.

Two youths were given jail terms and two others were fined by Magistrate J. A. Byers in city police court today for fighting on Douglas Street Friday night.

Eugene Hunt was sentenced to 15 days and William Pepper received seven. Court was told both had previous records for similar offences.

James Hockley and Wilfred Ballendine were fined $25 each.

Police said the four were involved in a fracas on Douglas between Yates and Johnson at about 11.30 p.m. which attracted a crowd of between 40 and 50 people.

3-Way Split for B.C. Predicted

By FRANK RUTTER

One of the longest, toughest federal election campaigns has come to a close.

Rutter

It wasn't until quite late that the public began to demonstrate an open interest, but it was hard slogging for the politicians and the newsmen tagging along back and forth across the country.

The usual way for a newsman to predict the result is to back in with an apology, then pick 'em anyway. I apologize.

There are 22 seats in B.C. It looks like a seven-seven-seven split between Conservatives, Liberals and New Democrats, with one (if they're lucky) for the Social Crediters; and if they're not lucky it will go Tory or NDP.

Correspondents across Canada—from papers of different political connections—seem agreed upon one thing: it will be a minority government after Monday's voting.

That means we go through the whole thing again within a matter of months.

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal David Groos, Friday night, finally got even with a pair of hecklers who have been bothering all candidates in this election campaign.

They are members of the Socialist Party of Canada.

Groos was explaining at a Brentwood all-candidates' meeting that he would replace a Tory plan for eight new frigates with bigger, faster ships that could catch nuclear subs.

"Can you explain the difference between weapons of peace and weapons of war?" asked one of the two Socialists.

Replied David: "That's a good question coming from a fellow who doesn't stand up when they play God Save the Queen."

Even the other candidates joined the crowd's lusty applause.

Provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan has come up with a gimmick.

He is showing a new Tory leaflet with the now-famous foot prints which instead of Follow John says Carry On With John. Bob doctored it up a bit. He inked holes in the soles of the feet "for those on unemployment insurance and social welfare."

Latest thing in campaign jewelry: green and white enamel earrings with the NDP insignia being worn by local supporters.

Panic hit the Victoria Social Credit campaign office Friday when the police phoned with orders to rip off posters which overzealous workers had stuck on mail boxes.

Geoff Mitchell's campaign staff told him it was a waste of time canvassing the Cadboro Bay-Ten Mile Point area. All Tories, they said.

But he went around this week on his own and says he was surprised at the anti-government reaction.

Liberal David Groos found the same, but after getting 105 people to a meeting there Thursday night, biggest little crowd of the campaign, he hopes he's got the benefit of the change.

The spotlight will turn on B.C. again immediately after the election.

Whoever wins will get a bombardment from Premier Bennett on starting the Columbia River power project.

There'll be a few bombs going off at the next B.C. session over the $100 homeowner grant too. Some people believe that session may come this fall before the regular January date in 1963.

Princess Royal at Christ Church

The Princess Royal will make her final public appearance here Sunday when she will attend the 11 a.m. service at Christ Church Cathedral.

Her Royal Highness will be escorted from Government House by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes who will present Dean Brian Whitlow to the princess on her arrival at the steps of cathedral.

The dean will then conduct her Royal Highness to the royal pew.

Rev. James R. Parker, BA, a recent graduate of the Anglican Theological College, Vancouver, has been appointed assistant to Rev. H. J. Jones at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Oak Bay.

Mr. Parker, who took over his duties June 1 will preach at the morning service at St. Mary's on Sunday.

There will be an opportunity for the congregation to meet Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Parker at the coffee hour following the service.

Victoria Unitarian Fellowship will hold its final meeting Sunday at 5.30 p.m. at Mount Tolmie Social Hall.

A social supper will be followed by an address by Rev. R. L. Fulgham of the Bellingham Unitarian Church who will speak on "Consecrated Chicken Soup."

Special services with South African Evangelist Rev. Roger Voke will begin Tuesday through Sunday, June 24, at the Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, 3281 Harriet Road.

Meetings commence at 8 p.m. week nights, preceded by a show of color slides presenting missionary challenge of South Africa, at 7.30 p.m.

Rev. Roger Voke, former national evangelist for the Baptist Union of South Africa, is now pastor of the largest Baptist Church in South Africa.

First United Church will hold communion services at 9.30 a.m. and 11 a.m. "Living Together" will be the sermon subject of Rev. A. I. Higgins.

New members will be received into membership at 11 a.m. and the service will be broadcast over CKDA.

The 7.30 p.m. service is cancelled in favor of the Centennial service at the Arena.

"The Blessed Trinity" will be the subject of the sermon by Canon Biddle at the 11 a.m. service of St. John's Anglican Church.

There will be services of Holy Comunion at 8 a.m. and again at the Family Service at 9.15 a.m. No evening service will be held.

"A Noble Epitaph" will be the subject of the sermon by Dr. W. C. Smalley in First Baptist United Church Sunday morning.

GUILTY OF HERESY

Pastor Pilloried On Racial Stand

By HENRI JONKER

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — When heresy charges were brought against a Calvinist Dutch Reformed Church leader six months ago, some South African newspapers jokingly conjured up visions of a burning at the stake.

Now, after a verdict of guilty, the case still draws wide attention though nobody is humorous about it any more.

Professor Albertus Geyser, 44-year-old New Testament expert of the Nederduitsch Hervormde Kerk, was found guilty on one of three charges of teaching heresies. He was defrocked.

On two counts of heresy and the key one of insubordination he was acquitted.

The N. H. Kerk, like the other Dutch Reformed churches in South Africa, supports the official segregation policy.

Geyser disagrees and made his objections public by contributing to an anti-segregation book. For this he was severely criticized at the last N. H. Kerk general assembly and his resignation demanded.

Before he could reply, three of his students at Pretoria University brought the heresy charges plus the insubordination charge against him. The insubordination charge concerned a rule made at the last general assembly, aimed at rebels like Geyser, that the church's ruling on matters such as segregation could not be criticized in public.

In its verdict the 13-man synodal commission dismissed the charge of insubordination as not adequately proved.

But one newspaper commented editorially:

"If he had been a political conformist, his theological views would never have been questioned. Professor Geyser has been pilloried for his moral stand on race questions—whatever has been decided against him on theological grounds."

Geyser was actually condemned for interpreting a certain verse in the Second Book of Philippians as meaning that Christ was lower in status than God before and after His incarnation and prior to His resurrection. This was objected to as detracting from Christ's true and everlasting Godhead.

Geyser unsuccessfully pleaded that as a learned interpreter of the Bible he had the privilege of freedom.

Priest Urges Mayors Fight Evil Forces

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rev. Hugh Patrick Kierans, rector of St. Paul's Roman Catholic College, said Friday the office of mayor can be utilized as a moral rallying point against the "dark and demonic" side of today's technological world.

Speaking to the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, Father Kierans said their biggest job today is "to check the decay of public morality."

"The moral prestige of the office of mayor is immense and the moral influence he, the mayor, can assert in his own community can make itself felt in every corner of human life," he said.

"Every political decision, at whatever level of government; every decision you make in the exercise of your office is not only a political decision but a moral one. For, it will necessarily and inevitably involve the improvement or the deterioration of human rights, human freedom, human prosperity, human decency and human dignity."

He said the leaders of the country must have sound moral judgment and "unimpeachable moral integrity."

"In the complicated, perilous and bewildering world in which we live, we, the people, will trust no one else in places of power."

CENTENNIAL SERVICE

Greatest Church Rally Expected

Dr. Marshall Howse, outstanding Canadian preacher and writer on religious and international affairs will speak Sunday to possibly the greatest church congregation ever assembled in Victoria.

The city centennial mass service of worship and witness will see "the largest group of brought together here," according to Dr. Harry Johnston, chairman of the Inter-Church Centennial Committee. The committee also anticipates the attendance of hundreds who have no church affiliation.

The rally is being held Sunday evening at 7.30 in the Memorial Arena. The arena staff is preparing for a maximum crowd, including over 1,000 seats on the floor of the arena.

Dr. Howse, minister of Bloor Street United Church, Toronto, and active in press liaison work with the World Council of Churches, will preach the sermon. Dr. Howse was the theme speaker at the B.C. Conference of the United Church of Canada, held here in May.

His Grace Archbishop H. E. Sexton will preside.

Prior to the processional of actual commencement of the service the congregation will sing favorite hymns accompanied by the Salvation Army band and a 300-voice massed choir. The choir will also sing the "Hallelujah" chorus from Handel's "Messiah" during the service proper.

As a means of perpetuating recognition of the city's church pioneers, the offering taken at the service will go to Victoria College for a scholarship fund to be known as the Victoria Churches Centennial Scholarship Fund.

CHURCH LADIES 'UNFAIR' COMPETITION

NANAIMO — Commercial caterer Lou Sekora has complained to city council of unfair competition from the ladies of Mount St. Peter Roman Catholic Church.

He reported to council in a letter that the church group has no business licence, and that its members work for nothing while he is obliged to pay from $1 to $1.75 for his help.

Mr. Sekora suggested the ladies should confine their catering activities to church functions and not seek to raise money by competing against business concerns.

Council has promised an investigation.

Christianity in Transition
INTRODUCTION
By the time the carnage and misery of the last battle has been forgotten, the next struggle is being forecast as neatly as convenient. The story of Christendom in repetition: and failure to bring the Kingdom of Heaven down to patiently waiting Mother Earth. The prattle on courage and duty, traditionally accepted by Bishops and Kings as according to the will of God, and sustained in Scripture, is clearly in decline. Twice during the present century, Europe has been in rags and ruin, but has been rescued by the New England temperament, a character forming intellect growing in strength over North America.
It is not to be supposed that a personal choice on International Affairs by Providence has been or will be made to change a wilderness into a pleasant garden, but ungovernable generations have been born to carry that change forward.

Dutch Doorway Intrigues And Interior Fascinates

By Penny Saver

Be observant as you walk down the street. There are no flamboyant signs to warn you that it is there. If you peer in all the windows in your best tourist manner, you will first be attracted by tiny window panes. Some are frosted, but others permit an intriguing glimpse into a shadowy interior.

Then, there is the door! It is a massive affair of dark wood with ceramic motifs to announce discreetly the name of the shop.

Actually, it is a Dutch door—owners can open upper half and listen to comments of tourists as they pass by!

Comments are bound to be interesting and interested. This shop, which is almost a "den" with its dark wood panelling, takes in the work of Victoria craftsmen and artists and has the perfect decor to be the tourist's idea of a "little bit of olde England."

Inside there are items for everyone. For those summer weekends when you take time to camp, a "weekend willy" will keep your house plants moist and alive. Ceramic bird perches on top of five-inch stalk of porous clay. Water poured in hole in bird's back will gradually seep through stalk and into earth around plant. Price for "willy" is 75 cents.

Wedding gift for couple who will have everything is set of light brown linen place mats decorated with silk screened prints.

Mats with bright red apples as design are $2.50 apiece. Some with exotic mauve orchid are $3.

Something for the nature lover is a ceramic hummingbird house. Designed with white splashes on black, it is probably the house that every hummingbird has always dreamed of owning—and it will only cost you $5.95.

Don't miss a browse through this store, call Penny at 382-3131 for its location.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"If you're looking for your golf ball, it just became part of the stew!"

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Hats Become Hats Again In Coming Fall Fashions

By NONA DAMASKE

News of fall millinery came from three widely different sources this week.

In the mail to me came pictures from a well-known Canadian millinery firm; Academy award winner Edith Head appeared on television to give a few hints of "what's ahead for hats," and the third hint came in a poem I came across in a magazine.

Damaske

Edith Head of Hollywood and Tom Nadel of Montreal say hats will be feminine, attractive and really wearable. Ethel Jacobson in her poem "Sanity Among the Mad Hatters" says the same thing in verse.

"Hats will look like hats.
I can hardly bear to peek!
Not like coal scuttles or cravats
Or inner tubes or flats
Or the eyelashes of gnats—
Now staggeringly unique,
Fashion's autocrats
Say the sane hat will be chic.

"Sensible, sober, sleek,
Hats will look like hats,
Not like nests of vampire bats
Or salads in automats
Or derbies riddled by gats
Or something dragged in by cats—
Those weird, delirious hats
That made a husband
shriek.
For hark! From their habitats,
The mighty oracles speak."

The beret, a standby for any season, plays a larger part than ever for fall 1962. Large, pouffy and side tilted, berets will appear in velvet and later in all variety of fur. Miss Head calls the profile berets "provocative" and says they have elegant sophistication without being too high style.

The Cleopatra look enters the millinery parade in the form of a tall, tall, rounded shape worn by Princess Nefertiti in ancient Egypt. Side-tilted Bretons such as Jacqueline Kennedy wore on her trip to India are also to be found in the fall collections.

Hair styles are becoming smoother and the hair is clinging a little closer to the head so of course a little more hat is a natural sequence.

Men are supposed to prefer larger, more feminine hats and secretly I think most women prefer a hattier look, too, especially for fall and winter.

DEAR ABBY . . .

All the Disadvantages!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school junior and am in love with a 19-year-old boy. He says he loves me and wants to marry me as soon as I finish school. The only things stopping us are age, religion and money. I am Catholic and he is Jewish. His parents are so mad at him they don't even want to meet me, and mine are also against our marriage. He still doesn't know what line of work he is going to follow, but can get almost any kind of selling job because he has a nice appearance and a gift of gab. Do you think we have a chance of making a go of marriage.

SUE (not my real name).

DEAR SUE: If you and your boy friend are two in a million, you can make it. But I advise you to wait! Neither one of you is equipped for marriage. And money and the blessings of your parents are very important.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for three years and I feel like nothing but an unpaid housekeeper. When we go grocery shopping, I sit in the car and my husband goes in with the grocery list. I am not allowed to have a milkman or a bread man. I have not been to a beauty parlor since we've been married. Abby, what's a woman supposed to do when she looks like a sheep dog and is kept practically bare-footed?

BLUE

DEAR BLUE: A man who keeps his wife broke, looking like a sheep dog and practically bare-footed is sick upstairs—and a woman who holds still for this kind of abuse is sicker than he is.

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor and I have a complaint. Every weekend two religious fanatics come to our doors and try to preach to us. They have magazines and pamphlets and they want us to stop everything and let them read to us from the Bible. Now we have nothing against these people or their religion, but why do they try to preach to people who have their own religions and are not interested? We have tried telling them in a nice way that we haven't time, but this doesn't seem to discourage them. Then next week another pair comes and we have the same thing all over again. What can we do?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: They are probably sincere people who are dedicated to their religion and want to spread the Gospel. If you tell them frankly that you are not interested, you will not be bothered again.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Apply 'Stitch In Time' Idea To Side Stepping Fatigue

If we are tired, we cannot be our best in looks or efficiency, and we certainly canno. enjoy ourselves as we otherwise would. It seems to me that many people take chronic fatigue too much for granted. They accept it as a way of life when there is no need to do so.

Lowman

This is the day of preventive measures. We have shots and vaccines to prevent disease. We watch our cholesterol blood level, hoping to miss heart and artery disease. We take care of a cold to avoid complications. We use creams to prevent wrinkles and screening lotions and creams to avoid sunburn. Why don't we apply some of this "a stitch in time saves nine" philosophy to sidestepping fatigue?

There are many reasons for fatigue other than disease. Often, the chronically tired person simply needs to rearrange habits of thought and daily routine. The problem may be malnutrition, too little sleep and exercise and too much worry and pressure. I think the latter is the secret of a great deal of fatigue.

Instead of becoming seriously tired and then trying to cure it, why not try to prevent it? Fatigue is not a natural adjunct to life. If we bring intelligence to the planning of our daily activities, we can live so much more vibrantly.

During the war some very interesting studies were carried on by efficiency experts in war plants. One experiment was put into action at a steel plant. It was found that frequent short rest periods zoomed production. The men and women never became tired.

Actually, you can cut down your total resting time during the day if you will take the little rests more frequently. This is true because rest is the body's repair time. If you become extremely tired before resting, the repair job takes longer.

It may not be possible to follow up this idea if you work outside your home, but women in the home would profit greatly by lying down quite often, even for five minutes. Why not try this?

You'll Need Different Sleeve To Avoid Bustline Fullness

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"I have one big problem that remains unanswered. How do you adjust a pattern with a bat-wing sleeve? The 'wing' seems too deep and gives too much fullness through the bust." Mrs. R. B.

Dear Mrs. R. B.

This type of sleeve usually begins near the waistline and comes out gradually through the underarm section to the end of the sleeve. The style of it would naturally make a great deal of fullness at the bustline.

It would be better if you chose a pattern with a raglan sleeve, this would have a much closer fit. A 'raglan" sleeve with a gusset fits much closer. In fact, this last type of sleeve resembles the fit of a set-in-sleeve more than any other type. It would be almost impossible to change the cut of a bat-wing sleeve to a closer fitting sleeve without changing the design of the dress.

Adelaide Hoodless Home National Historic Site

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—"The education of better mothers to make better homes" is how Adelaide Hunter Hoodless summed up her purpose in life shortly before she died in 1910.

During her 52 years, amid strong social prejudice and much criticism and scorn, Mrs. Hoodless founded the Women's Institutes and helped to establish the YWCA of Canada, the Victorian Order of Nurses, the National Council of Women and Macdonald Institute at Guelph, Ont.

Her efforts were given national recognition June 2 with the unveiling of a bronze plaque erected at the Hunter-Hoodless homestead eight miles north of Brantford by the National Historic Sites and Monuments Board.

Mrs. Hoodless has been described as a woman far in advance of her times, and her speeches still read much like those of today's psychologists at PTA meetings.

She preached the importance of a stable home to a stable society and blamed "the rising tide of lawlessness, the empty churches and the disturbing increase in divorce statistics" on the weakening of home ties.

Mrs. Hoodless' greatest battles were fought for the inclusion of home economics in school courses. She felt her efforts were justified because "the management of the home has more to do with the moulding of character than any other influence."

Even during her lifetime Mrs. Hoodless' work was internationally recognized. A few years before her death a British publication picked her as the most distinguished woman of the year. In 1909 the directors of Carnegie Technical Schools asked her to inspect their work in the United States and make recommendations.

In 1959 the Hunter Hoodless homestead became a provincial historical site with the erection of a bronze tablet by the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario.

When Colonel-in-Chief Dines With Regiment, Highland Tradition and Ceremony Prevail

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Tonight, in the Bay Street Armory, officers and men of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will dine with their colonel-in-chief, Her Royal Highness the Princess Royal.

Forbes

In the old Highland clan tradition, this will be a men's gathering with the Princess Royal and her lady-in-waiting, Dame Mary Colvin, the only feminine guests.

It will also be a "family" occasion, for the Armory is the home of the regiment and the Princess Royal, again in the Highland tradition or family precept, is not only colonel-in-chief, but also the chief of the clan.

Pipes will skirl; toasts will be given and there will be laughter and good talk as the dinner is served.

Setting for the dinner is the main parade floor of the big building, where long tables, covered with white clothes have been arranged for more than 700 officers and men.

Signal flags and bunting float from the ceiling, and around the balcony railing are plaques with names of battle honors and other historic places that have unforgettable memories for the regiment of two world wars.

Prior to the dinner the band of the Royal Canadian Engineers will play on the balcony.

Head table has been placed on the south side of the floor. Immediately behind it, on a raised dais backed with red, purple and green, will be placed the colors presented to the regiment by the colonel-in-chief, this afternoon at Beacon Hill.

For the dinner officers will wear their blues, with kilt, patrol jacket, white pouch, Rob Roy hose and black shoes with silver buckles.

Dirks will be at their belts and the skean dhu (black knife) in the tops of their hose.

Sergeants will also wear blues, with red sashes, and the men will appear as they did this afternoon, in battle dress blouse, hunting Stuart kilt, white pouch and white gaiters.

MEN IN BATTLE DRESS

The men will take their places at table first; the regiment's commanding officer, Lt. Col. P. F. Ramsay will lead head table guests to their places.

Then, Her Royal Highness, accompanied by the honorary colonel of the regiment, Hon. Frank Mackenzie Ross, will be ushered to the head table by Pipe-Major Frank Knight.

The Princess Royal will sit at the centre of the table. On her right will be Col. Ross and on her left, Lt.-Col. Ramsay.

Other head table guests include Hon. Robert W. Mayhew, former honorary colonel of the regiment; Major-Gen. J. M. Rockingham, Commodore H. A. Winnett, Brig. F. N. Cabeldu, Brig.-Gen. J. A. Clark, honorary colonel of the Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver; Brig. E. D. Danby, British Columbia area commander; Hon. Robert Bonner, Mayor R. B. Wilson, Dame Mary Colvin, Lt.-Col. T. V. Sandys-Wunsch, Duncan, B.C., representing the Royal Scots Regiment; Brig. J. S. Adam, Brig. L. Johnson, Ass't. Commissioner D. O. Forrest, RCMP; Col. D. Stephenson, Col. J. P. Browne, Col. R. Kingham, Lt.-Col. E. G. English, Lt.-Col. Cyril Wightman, Lt.-Col. W. Mosedale, Lt.-Col. G. Eastwood, Lt.-Col. A. Plows, Major P. G. Rae, one of the only surviving officers of the old 16th Battalion, who is here from England especially for the occasion; Col. Larry Henderson, Lt.-Col. R. M. Lendrum, Duncan, B.C.; Lt.-Col. P. G. Crofton, Lt.-Col. R. D. Travis, Major Eric Henderson, Major C. MacNeill, representing the Canadian Scottish Association in Victoria; Padre Major J. L. W. McLean, Capt. R. Roy, author of the history of the regiment; Mr. Leighton, Major M. W. E. Allan and regimental sergeant-major John Kelly.

When everyone is in their places the commanding officer will ask permission of the colonel-in-chief to say grace.

Special menu for the dinner includes iced celery, green and ripe olives and pickles; fresh crabmeat cocktail, a cold plate including roast beef, roast turkey and baked ham; potato and egg salad with mayonnaise dressing; green salad with French dressing; sliced tomatoes, cucumbers and onion rings; rolls and butter, caramel walnut sundae, iced wafers, coffee and tea.

In the Highland tradition when the chieftain is present, no toast will be given at the dinner without the consent of Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal.

As the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) is a "double toast" regiment, two toasts will follow in quick succession, once consent is given—the "loyal" toast to Her Majesty the Queen, followed by the toast to the colonel-in-chief.

Tonight there will be a third toast—to the regiment. And following it Lt.-Col. Ramsay will ask the colonel-in-chief to reply to that toast.

Scottish customs, Highland traditions, they all add up to this proud moment in the history of a regiment.

The moment when a colonel-in-chief comes home!

Tea In Government House Garden

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will give a garden tea at Government House next Thursday for members of the Garden Club of Vancouver.

Next Saturday the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes will cross to Vancouver where they will attend the horse racing that afternoon and where Mrs. Pearkes will decorate the winner of the Lieutenant-Governor's Handicap, the feature race of the day.

Regimental Ladies' Dinner

While Her Royal Highness, The Princess Royal, is dining with the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) at a dinner in the Bay Street Armory this evening almost 200 guests will attend a ladies' dinner for relatives of serving and former officers and men of the regiment, to be held in Holyrood House. Pink and white carnations, snapdragons and white stocks will decorate the tables. Seated at the head table with Mrs. John B. Murray, president of the regiment's women's auxiliary which has arranged the affair, will be honor guests Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, Mrs. E. D. Danby, Mrs. R. Parker, all of Vancouver; Mrs. J. M. Rockingham, Edmonton; Mrs. T. V. Sandys-Wunsch, Duncan; Mrs. P. G. Rae, England; Mrs. P. F. Ramsay, Mrs. C. Peck, Mrs. J. L. W. McLean and Miss Elizabeth Urquhart.

Plans A Year Overseas

Miss Carol Smith, BA, Bsw,, a social worker on staff of the provincial mental hospital at Burnaby, is a visitor in Victoria this weekend, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith, at their home on Carey Road. Miss Smith will leave at the beginning of July with a friend, Dr. Patricia Rebbeck, for a year overseas. She will carry on her work overseas and at the end of the year will return to take her masters degree at University of British Columbia. Dr. Rebbeck will specialize in surgery during the year.

In honor of her daughter, Mrs. Smith entertained at the tea hour at her home this afternoon. Presiding at the tea table, which was decorated in a red and white theme, was Mrs. N. Fry. Other guests were Mrs. G. Donaldson, Mrs. W. Hocking, Mrs. F. Fast, Mrs. J. Pearson, Mrs. G. Burley, Mrs. R. Lawson, Mrs. C. Thomas, Mrs. J. Herbert, Mrs. J. Jones, Mrs. H. H. Youson, Mrs. R. Petty, Mrs. R. Hansford, Mrs. R. Westoby and Miss Joan Hansford.

The sun shone warmly as Victorians crowded the lawns of the Royal Jubilee Hospital on Friday morning to watch Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal, officiate at the laying of the cornerstone of the hospital's new wing. Highlight for student nurses came when the princess reviewed them after the ceremony, stopping to exchange a few words with many of them. Pictured with the student nurses and Her Royal Highness is Miss Muriel Thompson, director of nursing.

Colorful Indian Theme Seen at June Ball

An Indian "village" sprang to life in the gym of HMCS Naden on Friday evening when hundreds of guests attended the annual June Ball, held in aid of the Armed Services Centre.

A statuesque figure flanked the entrance of the building, setting the theme as guests alighted from cars to be greeted by men of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Towering totem poles, ceremonial masks, feast dishes and other symbols transformed the lobby. As guests stopped to admire, their eyes were caught by the sight of a sleepifig Indian settlement grouped around the swimming pool.

Realistically perfect, the settlement glowed in the dying embers of a fire in the twilight setting.

Entering the gym, was to enter a scene of gaiety and color. A huge longhouse, a replica of that found in Thunderbird Park, opened its doors to reveal the band of HMCS Naden, whose lively airs kept dancers twirling all evening. Potlach fires at each end of the longhouse flashed with color.

From either side of the gym mammoth masks looked down on guests while a gigantic thunderbird spread its 40-foot wings from the centre of the ceiling.

Festoons of brilliantly toned lights laced the ceiling.

It was with obvious enjoyment that Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, RCN (Rtd.), and Mrs. Hibbard circled the ballroom, greeting acquaintances on every side. Rear Admiral Hibbard "sparked" the initial formation of the Armed Services Centre and it was in his honor that the first June ball was held.

Several of Victoria's younger set were there for first time. They included Miss Jane Wheaton and Bruce Warburton who declared the ball to be "the most wonderful affair we've ever been to."

Gowns were as chic as any found in the fashion centres of Europe and were strikingly complemented with the dress uniforms worn by service officers and formal attire of other guests. Many of the men wore miniature medals.

Between dances guests sat at tables that were centred with carved wooden fish containing native plants and foliage.

Later in the evening a hot meal featuring chicken was served, followed by strawberry shortcake.

Decorations for the ball were under the convenership of Mrs. Arthur Burns and Mrs. Robert Stark. Students from Oak Bay High School assisted in painting the masks, totems and front of the longhouse. Lieut. R. S. Baker, RCN, was in charge of the naval personnel that constructed the impressive decorations.

From Ottawa

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Young will arrive from Ottawa next Tuesday and will stay at the Empress Hotel during their visit to Victoria. Mr. Young will represent the Fisheries Research Board when the new fisheries research vessel, G. B. Reed, is launched at the Yarrows shipyard next Wednesday evening. Mrs. Young has been asked to christen the ship. Following the launching, a reception will be held in the Empress Hotel.

Sheer Wools for Formal Wear Shows in End-of-Year Styles

NEW YORK (UPI)—It will be wool, wool, wool for the cool, cool, cool of the evenings next fall and winter.

The unconventional use of sheer wools for formal apparel shows throughout the new fashion collections being previewed by New York garment manufacturers.

Satin is teamed with pale tweeds in evening suits. Wools show up as slinky, floor length evening gowns. And floral brocades line tweed coats or other bulky woollens and top short formal dresses repeating the brocades.

Designer Jacques Tiffeau of Monte Sano & Pruzan showed floor length formals sculpturing the body in chiffon weight wools in black or Egyptian clay, a reddish brown hue.

Bill Blass, designer at Maurice Rentner, used souffle wools for long formals with bared backs and halter or scoop front necks.

Luis Estevez did sheer wool sheaths with chiffon toppings to cover otherwise bare shoulders.

At Marquise, the show stopper was a Kelly green coat whose surface looked deep-piled as an unshorn sheep. It topped a white satin formal gown; the satin was repeated in the coat lining.

Designer Doland Brooks at Townley included a group of long, flowing formals in sheer wools in his collection previewed recently for store buyers and fashion writers. These were bias cut and came either in black or "tusk white," a new name for ivory after Mrs. John F. Kennedy's trip to India.

At Ben Zuckerman's show recently, the favorite combinations for theatre or dinner suits were tweeds or other bulky wools combined with silk moire or shadow-printed brocades in pale blues, pinks and yellows on white background. Typical of this group—a princess shaped coat in deep raspberry red paired with a sleeveless, collarless formal in pale pink brocade. The coat lining was the same as the dress.

Zuckerman's collection reflected a general trend in the garment industry for fall and winter — more fit to coats, suits and dresses.

Zuckerman's coats were shaped with vertical seaming and any give the figure a high bosomed look. Suits came with longer jackets, almost all at least three inches below the waist, some dropping to fingertip length.

It was the narrow, pared down silhouette which dominated the Adele Simpson collection also. One shape the designer dubbed the "suave" is a variation of the princess with waistline indented but not cinched.

Major and Mrs. E. A. Wiens with their daughters, Heather, five years, and Shelley, three, have come from Ottawa for a short visit with Mrs. Wiens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Powell, at their home on Monterey Avenue, before leaving for London, Eng., at the beginning of July for a three-year posting.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Eaton, 2820 Inlet Avenue, will celebrate their golden wedding on Sunday, June 24, with a reception for their friends in the Duke of Kent Room at the Empress Hotel, from 3 to 5 p.m. They came to Victoria from Liverpool, Eng., in 1910, and were married on June 24, 1912, in James Bay's Church of St. James, with Rev. J. H. S. Sweet officiating. They have three children, Prof. Richard Eaton, dean of music at University of Alberta in Edmonton; Victor H. Eaton, Vancouver, and Louise, at present in Victoria. There are six grandchildren. Mr. Eaton went overseas in 1916 with the 67th Western Scots. He is a retired long-service employee of the Hudson's Bay Company (Victoria). Adding to the importance of the anniversary is the fact that June 24 is also Prof. Richard Eaton's wedding day.

Wedding Vows in Naden Chapel

Naval uniforms of the groom, best man and ushers, set a dignified note when Sherran Ann Durell exchanged vows with LS George Gordon Tufnail, RCN, in the Protestant chapel of St. Andrew, HMCS Naden on Friday evening.

Chaplain L. E. Schroeder, RCN, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Organist was Richard Proudman.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Durell of Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. George Tufnail of Powell River.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz-length gown made by her mother. It was fashioned of white slipper satin with overlay of English Imperial lace. Sleeves were three-quarter length. "Something borrowed" was her seed pearl coronet that held a shoulder-length veil. Pink gardenias and carnations were in the bouquet.

PINK ORGANZA

Miss Carole Lyrette, the only attendant, chose a full-skirted short-length gown of flocked pink organza over toning taffeta. A tiny pink veil skirted her headband of matching flowers. She carried a white carnation bouquet.

LS Thomas Scott, RCN, was best man and ushering guests were LS Doug Grainger, RCN, and LS Earl Stone, RCN.

Al Merrett, an old friend of the family, proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in War Amputations Hall. A miniature clasped hands ornament which had been in the bride's family for four generations topped the three-tier wedding cake.

Cake was surrounded with pink tulle and roses and flanked by pink candles in silver candelabra.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the mainland the bride donned a yellow poodle cloth suit, black accessories and white carnation corsage. On their return the newlyweds will make their home at 3146 Fifth Street.

Guests

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Tufnail, came from Powell River to attend the wedding of Miss Sherran Durell and LS George Tufnail on Friday evening. Also from Powell River were Mr. and Mrs. A. Clement, Mr. G. Davies, Mr. J. Jewra and Mr. A. Meilleur. Mrs. P. Durell, the bride's grandmother, travelled from Regina, Sask., while the groom's grandmother, Mrs. E. Tufnail crossed from Vancouver. Other Vancouver guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. Tufnail, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Taylor and Mrs. R. Nicholson. Also attending were Mr. J. Fleming, Campbell River, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Leech of Comox.

Woman's Auxiliary, All Saints View Royal, at home of Mrs. G. T. Storey, 561 View Royal Ave., Tuesday at 12 noon.

CLUB WOMEN'S NEWS

New Projects—Supplying of transistor radios to needy persons; assistance to a Rhodesian student and an Indian girl now training as a nurse; catering of lunches at the Silver Threads Centre and supply and social assistance for overseas missions were listed by unit leaders as new projects at meeting of the First United Church Women, held in Fellowship Hall. Mrs. A. H. Sheard presided. Dr. John Garden took devotions and Mrs. W. R. Fraser sang two songs, accompanied by Mrs. J. Robertson. Mrs. S. F. Sears, who leaves with her husband shortly for North Vancouver, was presented with a gift by Mrs. Sheard.

Election—Mrs. Martin Shepherd was elected president of the Victoria Jaycee-Ettes at recent meeting. Also elected were: Mrs. Hank Taylor first vice-president; Mrs. Walter Budynski, secretary; Mrs. Maurice Cownden, treasurer; Mrs. Reg Owens, membership, and Mrs. Bruce Hooper, entertainment. Mrs. Owens was awarded a silver spoon for being most outstanding Jaycee-Ette of British Columbia and Yukon Territories, also a trophy for being most outstanding member in the club. She was appointed delegate to the national convention. It was decided to donate $19 for a washing machine to be given to a welfare family, $500 to provide safety equipment for the laboratories at Victoria College and $100 to the cancer fund.

Bridal Showers

Kitchen Shower

A wishing well, decorated in white and yellow, contained gifts at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. R. Rumsby in her Townley Street home in honor of July bride-elect Miss Jeanette Smith. Yellow roses and white feathered carnations were presented to the guest of honor, while her mother, Mrs. R. Smith, and groom-elect's mother, Mrs. A. K. Harrison, received yellow and white feathered carnations. Games were played. Other guests were Mrs. H. Bickford, Mrs. B. Clement, Mrs. K. Coutts, Mrs. N. Crisp, Mrs. R. Grant, Mrs. G. Jones, Mrs. E. Larsen, Mrs. G. McIldoon, Mrs. W. Phillips, Mrs. P. Walker and Miss Heather Coutts.

Hostess

A confetti-toned cake centred the refreshment table when Mrs. V. G. Scott entertained in her Bewdley Avenue home in honor of bride-elect, Miss Patti MacMillan. Gifts were presented in a decorated laundry basket. Games were played, winners being Mrs. T. Mitchell and Mrs. E. Webster. Other guests were Mrs. A. Bates, Mrs. W. Arnold, Mrs. A. Matte, Mrs. C. Casey, Mrs. A. Patterson, Mrs. E. MacMillan, Mrs. G. Sammon, Mrs. E. Jacobson, Mrs. R. Faulkes, Mrs. W. Dallaway, Mrs. N. Martin, Mrs. W. Dawson, Mrs. T. Mitchell, Mrs. E. Webster, Mrs. R. McFarlane, Miss F. Sammon and Miss D. Martin.

Luncheon

Miss Leona Moir, bride-elect of June 30, was recently honor guest at a luncheon shower held in the home of Mrs. D. Munro. Little Misses Gail and Debra Smith presented corsages to the bride-to-be, her mother, Mrs. Eric Moir; her grandmother, Mrs. T. Moir and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. Karl Baadsvik. Following luncheon, the little girls presented gifts from a decorated basket. Other guests were Mrs. F. Smith, Mrs. W. Champion, Mrs. W. D. Smith, Mrs. G. Stevenson, Mrs. H. B. Weydert, Mrs. R. Thurston, Mrs. V. Smith, Mrs. V. Butler, Mrs. C. Thomson and the Misses Gaye McAllister, Lois Helander and Carol Smith.

Fete Bride-Elect

Yellow, green and white streamers set gay atmosphere for shower given recently in the Pike Street home of Mrs. R. Pedersen in honor of June bride-elect, Miss Pat Rutledge. Hostesses were Mrs. Pedersen, who will be matron of honor, and the Misses Diane Rutledge and Pat Noels, the bridesmaids. Bride-to-be received a corsage of white carnations while her mother, Mrs. C. Rutledge, and groom-elect's mother, Mrs. H. Bryan, were presented with yellow carnations. Guests included Mrs. E. Hammer, Mrs. G. Noels, Mrs. N. Rutledge, Mrs. C. Pedersen, Mrs. H. Popham, Mrs. G. Popham, Mrs. P. Cliff, Mrs. A. Brice, and the Misses Clara Bryan, Heather Moon, Mary Lilley, Marion MacDonald, Evonne Muir, Rozlind Hammer and Janette Hammer.

Riding Won by Three Parties

Carved Out Of Vancouver

By FRANK RUTTER

The federal riding of Nanaimo has been won by three different parties since 1940.

It has a record of some close contests, too, in past general elections.

Created in 1903 out of part of the old Vancouver riding, Nanaimo covers the central portion of Vancouver Island and includes the Gulf Islands.

It has at one time or another fallen into the hands of the CCF, Liberals and Conservatives. Its first member was a Liberal, but there was a long string of Tory victories unbroken until 1935, when it went CCF. It switched back to Liberal in 1940, then in 1945 was won by George Pearkes for the Conservatives. He won again in 1949, then turned to the newly-formed riding of Esquimalt-Saanich. Back came the CCF in 1953 with Colin Cameron, who also won in 1957. Then in 1958 Nanaimo went Tory again when W. F. Matthews polled just 705 votes more than Mr. Cameron.

Seeks Re-Election

Conservative candidate W. F. "Bus" Matthews is seeking re-election to the seat he won in 1958 by 705 votes.

Mr. Matthews, 62, was born in Manitoba, and came to Victoria as a child. He was one of Canada's first war fliers with the Royal Flying Corps in 1917. After the war he was a "barnstormer" pilot on the Pacific coast.

He worked in the U.S. until 1935, spent four years in Vancouver, then opened an auto supply store in Nanaimo.

Mr. Matthews first tried federal politics in Nanaimo in 1957, lost, but was successful last time out.

School Teacher

The Liberal candidate, John F. T. Saywell, is principal of Lake Cowichan High School.

Born in England, Mr. Saywell was educated at Queen's and the University of B.C. He served in the Canadian Army during the First World War, then became a teacher in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Saywell moved to Lake Cowichan 24 years ago, and has been principal of the high school ever since.

One-time hockey and baseball coach on the prairies, he is president of Vancouver Island School Principals' Association, an honorory member of the Kinsmen and three times president of the local Canadian Legion.

Veteran of Politics

The candidate for the New Democratic Party is Colin Cameron twice member of Parliament for Nanaimo.

Born in England, Mr. Cemeron, 65, came to Canada in 1907.

He served in the engineers in the First World War.

Mr. Cameron has long been involved in politics. He started his public career as an unsuccessful federal candidate in 1935, but won a seat in the provincial legislature in 1937, and held it until 1945.

He won the Nanaimo federal seat in 1953 and served two terms until his defeat in 1958.

Former Trucker

The Social Credit candidate is Cyril Dawkin, 55.

Born in England, he came to Canada in 1911, lived a short time in Vancouver, then moved to Nanaimo.

He started in the trucking business, then operated a service station and a lumber mill.

Mr. Dawkin was president of the Nanaimo Truckmen's Association for 15 years and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

This is his first bid in federal politics. He was 12 years a school trustee and board secretary for eight years.

BOUNTY IN VANCOUVER, HERE ON WEDNESDAY

VANCOUVER (CP)—"HMS" Bounty Friday was escorted into Vancouver by a frigate, the Vancouver fireboat, a tug boat fleet and a hoard of private boats.

The replica of Capt. Bligh's famous ship came through the First Narrows at the entrance to the harbor under full sail.

She cruised the harbor then tied up for an official welcome by Mayor Tom Alsbury.

The Maritimes-built Hollywood version of the Bounty is here for a goodwill visit before sailing to Victoria to participate in centennial celebrations there.

She leaves here Monday.

REMINDER OF BENEFITS

History of C of C To Mark Centenary

Victoria's Chamber of Commerce, oldest chamber west of Toronto, plans to commission a short history as part of its 100th anniversary celebration next February.

Suggestion for the project was made by director Hugh Stephen at a board meeting Friday noon in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Stephen urged that the history, to remind Victorians of all the benefits conferred on the city by the chamber, should be prepared immediately.

The board agreed that the executive committee should investigate the possibility of local historian James K. Nesbitt being engaged to prepare a first draft by early fall.

The group also recommended to city council that use of sound trucks on city streets for advertising or any other purpose with the exception of traffic control should be banned.

City council had solicited the chamber's advice on the matter.

In other business, the meeting named vice-president John Wallace as Victoria's accredited voting delegate to the Canadian Chamber of Commerece annual meeting in Vancouver next September, and agreed to form a sub-committee to meet with city officials to disucus street cleaning problems.

Supervisor Of Brokers To Retire

J. Stewart Smith, superintendent of brokers for B.C., will retire on superannuation at the end of June.

Attorney-General Bonner announced Friday that Mr. Smith had applied for retirement following his 60th birthday in April.

He has been superintendent of brokers since 1950 with a total of 31 years in the government service, first with the provincial police and then with the attorney-general's department from 1939. He was born in Edinburgh in 1902, started life in the banking business, and spent some years in India in this line of endeavor before coming to Canada.

No successor has been appointed yet, Mr. Bonner said.

Under legislation passed at the spring session, securities control will be handled by a three-man commission instead of a one-man superintendent. This goes into effect July 1.

Red Iron Fist Eases Grip In East Europe Satellites

VIENNA (AP) — Communist bosses in Eastern Europe appear to be trying a new policy of seasoning the drab lives of their people with a dash of freedom.

Trends in satellite countries suggest that the once-omnipresent authority of the party has become less evident in everyday affairs.

Hungary seems to be the farthest along in relaxing the iron fist.

Premier Janos Kadar, who called in Russian tanks to smash the 1956 revolution, recently urged his followers to recognize that the majority of Hungarians are not Marxists but that they should not be treated as enemies.

"Previously we held that those who were not for us were in fact against us," Kadar said. "Now we must say that those who are not against us are in fact for us."

One Hungarian Communist organ said that the era of the 1950s, when nobody dared tell a party secretary the truth, is definitely over. And radio Budapest announced that Hungarian writers jailed in 1956 for their part in the revolution have been released.

Officials in other Communist countries are encouraging open public criticism of failures and shortcomings.

A number of factors lie behind the apparent decision of the Communist regimes to grant their people a little leeway.

High on the list would be an attempt to win the sympathy and understanding of disgruntled masses during the economic troubles currently plaguing Eastern Europe.

Also, the Communist parties, weakened by large-scale purges in the mid-1950s, need to restock their ranks if they want to claim broad popular support.

They are in particular need of trained scientists, engineers and skilled workers who lost their membership cards during the purges. Now the party wants them back.

A Word from DAVID GROOS
Liberal Candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich

JUNE 16, 1962

DEAR VOTERS:

When you go to the polls on Monday you will be making a decision that must last for five years. In my campaign I have tried as hard as I know how to show what I think are the main issues in this election . . . the Government mismanagement of our affairs both at home and abroad.

We live in a rapidly changing world and a young country like ours must be able to meet the new situations with new ideas. I believe the Liberal Party has the ideas, the plans and the ability to make this a better Canada . . . for ourselves, and, more important, for our children. I notice a new sense of purpose stirring among Canadians these days. We are not content to sit still while the rest of the world passes us by. The Liberal Party, the party I represent, is I think, the right one to lead Canada forward through the days that lie ahead. It is not a party of special interests, it is a party of all the people and we mean to keep it that way. This is the source of our special strength and because of this we can get things done that no other party can do.

When you mark your ballot I ask you to remember what my party stands for and what we will work for . . . A strong, free economy, a fair division of this country's wealth and international peace with justice for all.

Sincerely yours,

David Groos.

B.C. has only 22 seats out of 265 in Ottawa

Let's fill them with people who will speak strongly for B.C.

In the House of Commons, in Ottawa, vital decisions are made which affect every Canadian. Decisions about jobs . . . about money . . . decisions about your family's security and future. But in the House of Commons, British Columbia has only 22 seats out of 265. That means a small minority must speak out and fight for the things that will keep British Columbia moving ahead. Yet how often in the last four years have you heard strong voices raised on your behalf? Now's the time for a change. Our Province is unique. It's great potential must be developed. Our story must be told in Ottawa if we are to prosper! In British Columbia we have proof of Social Credit's ability to get things done. We'll get more things done for B.C. with Social Credit Members of Parliament.

Dramatic evidence of the continuing unfair treatment British Columbia has received from Liberals and Conservatives in Ottawa: in 1961, Federal Government tax revenue collections from British Columbia amounted to $597,600,000, but that Government's total expenditures in the Province were only $143,600,000; the excess of the Federal Government's collections over expenditures was $454,000,000!

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?
Made of dry 1½" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths, "FOREST" siding is a new type of siding obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

APPEARANCE?
For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines. Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 2-inch in 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of this grade.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?
"FOREST" siding, with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume, adds to the structural STRENGTH and solidity of the building. The design of "FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint.

HOW IS IT APPLIED?
As easily and quickly as common shiplap. Each piece of "FOREST" siding fits snugly on the one below and requires only one mitre cut.

HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED?
If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This not only protects the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and the grain. If a colored finish is desired "FOREST" siding can easily be painted.

Before you vote on your future...

CANADA'S ECONOMY is moving to new heights of prosperity. In the past month, about 250,000 new jobs for Canadians—the largest employment increase in Canada's history!

Canada's shipyards are booming; lumber exports are reaching record highs; farm prices are up and markets expanding; our wheat is once again moving from the elevators to feed a hungry world.

Canada's economy today is stronger, healthier than any in North America. Government action, courage and confidence brought Canada through the crisis of the Liberal recession, despite the voices of "gloom and doom" who were so eager to sell Canada short.

For the first time in years, Canada is selling more goods abroad than she is importing. Credit has been expanded, inflation has been checked.

The veteran, our older citizens, the weak and afflicted—the forgotten men and women of Canada five years ago—are today enjoying higher standards of well-being and achievement.

Every Canadian Province has benefited from a national program for expansion and development; the long-neglected Atlantic Provinces have been given new measures of equality and opportunity from a Government that believes in one Canada, united and strong.

And Parliament has been restored as an instrument of the people's will. Arrogant Liberalism and entrenched bureaucracy are now but a nightmare of the past.

For five years, the Government of John Diefenbaker has served Canada well. It has fulfilled its pledges, honoured your trust and kept faith with the Canadian people.

There is more to do, more to build, more to challenge and achieve. The Government of John Diefenbaker will do it, in your service and in your trust.

It is worthy of a further mandate which your personal ballot can help bring about by voting for your Progressive Conservative Candidate on June 18th.

STUDENT LEADER IN CHARGE AS CHIEFS HUDDLE

Major Rift Reported in Algiers Branch of Secret Army

ALGIERS (Reuters) — There is a major rift in the Algiers branch of the Secret Army Organization between the civilian and military wings, reliable European sources said Friday night.

The sources said all military leaders of the Secret Army had left the capital and gone to Western Algeria. These included former Col. Yves Godard, reported in Algiers last week, the sources said.

This left Jean-Jacques Susini, a former student leader, as Secret Army leader in Algiers. Susini, once regarded as ultra-extremist, now is considered by French officials as a "moderating influence" in the secret organization.

Europeans who have been in contact with Susini say he believes the military men's plans to set up European islands of armed resistance in Western Algeria is doomed and that he recognizes the only future for Europeans in Algeria is a working partnership with the Moslems.

Liberal Europeans, who have had a key role in contact between Moslems and Europeans, predicted that a settlement might be reached within 48 hours.

There are three points in the secret organization program:

An amnesty for the Secret Army, which apparently has not been ruled out by the Moslems.

Political representation for Europeans. This also was a possibility.

Presence of Europeans in security forces.

CANADIAN ROCKETS TEST-FIRED IN U.S.

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (CP)—Two Canadian Black Brant III rockets were test-fired here Friday and although maximum altitude was not achieved, Canadian and U.S. officials described the tests as generally satisfactory.

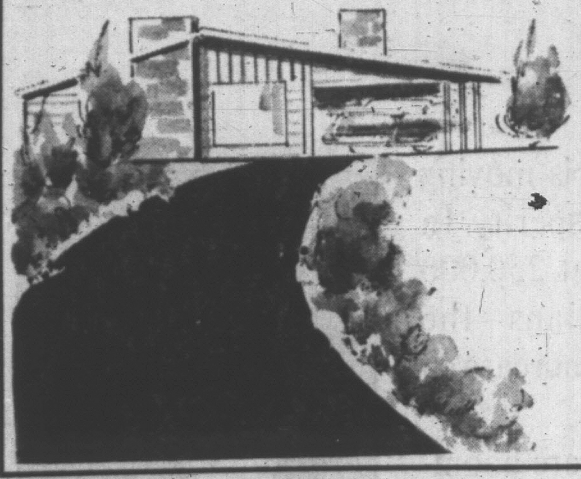

The single-stage, solid-fuel rockets reached an altitude of 58 miles on the first test and about 62 miles on the second.

Election Race Down to Wire

New Issues Injected By Pearson

By ALEX YOUNG

BRANTFORD, Ont. — The Liberal election campaign ended with a bang Friday night.

Fireworks, brass bands and majorettes provided the obvious political climax to the eight-week battle for power of Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson.

But the most significant elements of the finale were the crowd he drew in his last election rally, in Tory western Ontario, and the new issues he brought by word into the dying campaign.

Between 5,000 and 7,000 people jammed Victoria Park, just so they could hear Pearson.

The riding has been Conservative since 1953.

The new issues were a warning by Mr. Pearson that re-election of the Conservative government would mean further devaluation of the dollar as well as a new tight money spell, resulting from devaluation.

"I ask you tonight at this wonderful final meeting of the campaign to work for this country so we can lift up our heads and work for the destiny and pride that is ours," Pearson said.

"After Monday we will begin to work to restore both."

One of the most newsworthy quotes of Mr. Pearson's day campaigning was his statement in Woodstock about how the campaign wasn't over until the last vote was counted on Monday.

"This isn't an election," he said with a smile, "that is going to be determined by President Kennedy or by Premier Khrushchev . . . although they seem to be the prime minister's chief supporters at the moment."

ON DEFENSIVE

Mr. Pearson said the Conservatives have been on the defensive from the beginning of the election; they started with a "vague" five-year plan, then switched to a new five-year plan, then began attempts to martyr themselves with their charges that the

His Vote Real Important

VANCOUVER (CP) — Distance is nothing to Dan Campbell, 83, when it comes to an important matter like casting a vote.

Mr. Campbell moved here from Whitehead, Sask., in May to stay with his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Knowler.

Then he found out he wouldn't get a vote in Monday's federal election unless he cast it in Whitehead. So he took a train there Thursday night.

"We tried to talk him out of it," said Mrs. Knowler. "But he'd voted there over the last 45 years and that was where he was going to vote.

"You might call him stubborn. We sure do."

Thompson Blasts Taxation

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The national leader of the Social Credit party ended his active campaigning for Monday's election with some broadsides Friday night at the Conservative and Liberal parties.

Robert Thompson flew to Ontario for a one-day visit to the Niagara Peninsula, where party officials believe Social Credit has its best opportunity to elect a member from this province.

He joined Herbert Heppner, national secretary of the party and candidate in Lincoln riding, and other standard-bearers for a motorcade-tour through communities in Lincoln and neighboring Welland constituencies before coming on to a final rally here.

Although visibly tired, he stepped out of character with an hour-long denunciation of the campaign tactics of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson, interspersed with a call for fiscal reform and an end to spiralling taxation. The audience of some 500 almost filled the high school auditorium where he spoke.

Mr. Thompson took particular exception to an announcement earlier in Welland by Mr. Diefenbaker that tolls on the

'Forward To Victory' —John D.

(Special To The Times)

HAMILTON — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night wound up his national campaign for a new mandate for his Progressive Conservative government with this call: "Forward to victory on Monday next."

The prime minister rang down the curtain on the election drive he started unofficially April 26 in Moose Jaw and set formally into action May 5 at London, Ont.

The Prime Minister left by air today for Prince Albert, Sask., his home riding, where he will await the results of Monday's general election.

He spoke for 52 minutes to about 2,200 persons in the Palace Theatre Friday night.

It was a typical, familiar speech—with some hecklers but no incidents.

FAR AND WIDE

Mr. Diefenbaker ranged far and wide, touching dollar devaluation, unemployment, Soviet imperialism, disarmament, the government's record in office and its Confederation platform for the future.

"We've got Canada rising in the most tremendous economic surge in history," he told his standing-room-only audience in the 2,007-seat theatre.

"Give us the opportunity in the days ahead to march forward together—to carry out our great program for Canadians."

Exuding confidence and smiling his delight at the Tory show of strength, Mr. Diefenbaker delivered a lively speech.

It was interrupted over 50 times by applause and cheers, a record for the prime minister during the eight weeks of campaigning that saw him make more than 150 speeches.

Outside the theatre in Hamilton there were picketers carrying aloft a paper mache caricature of the prime minister's head.

"See the John Diefenbaker show featuring many new promises," one placard read.

Another carried the message, "Put the right to work in your Bill of Rights, John." Another declared, "We want jobs, not sobs."

One read, "Grief with Dief".

'Colonel' Sees Troops

Meet May Settle Hillcrest Issue

DUNCAN—Loggers involved in the Hillcrest Lumber Co. Ltd. transportation dispute were meeting at noon today to vote on a new proposal on transportation to work for men receiving it prior to Jan. 2, when the company cut off its bus service.

The meeting today arose out of a conference in Vancouver Friday, arranged by newly-elected Duncan IWA local president Percy Clements and attended by company and union officials.

Unless there is settlement, the company's Mesachie Lake sawmill must close because of a log shortage. Closure would throw more than 200 men out of work.

U.K. Doctors Will Come

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of British doctors announced today they will offer their services to the Saskatchewan government if doctors in that province carry out their threatened boycott of the provincial medical insurance plan to become effective July 1.

A spokesman for the group said the British movement was launched when doctors in Saskatchewan who support the plan appealed to friends in England for help.

Douglas Predicts 'Upset'

REGINA (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas put the seal on his national election campaign Friday night with a declaration that Monday's voting will produce "a political upset."

The former Saskatchewan CCF premier told an overflow audience of about 3,000 at a rally in his home riding that the Conservatives now are "almost certain to go down to defeat."

Earlier in a paid political telecast, he forecast there would be a change of government with the NDP playing "an important role" in the next Parliament. He did not estimate the number of seats the 218 NDP candidates would win.

Today, he was scheduled to put the finishing touches on his own personal campaign to win election in Regina constituency, where he has to overturn a large Conservative majority recorded in 1958.

Tonight he drives 70 miles southeast to Weyburn to speak at a rally in support of NDP candidate Cecil Bailey, who is seeking to replace former CCF-NDP House Leader Hazen Argue as MP for Assiniboia.

WILL ATTEND PICNIC

Mr. Douglas, 57, who used to represent the old Weyburn riding federally and also provincially, is to speak at a picnic Sunday afternoon at Fife Lake, about 60 miles south of Moose Jaw.

At Friday night's meeting he had to make two speeches because of the size of the crowd, as he did Thursday at Vancouver.

He first mounted a soapbox to deliver a 70-minute address before a crowd in the 2,200-seat Exhibition Auditorium's bullring. Several hundred persons stood along the walls and in the entrances.

Then he climbed onto a barrel in the adjoining stables section to give a brief second talk to about 500 persons, who had listened to his first address by loud-speaker relay.

The principal rally also was attended by Saskatchewan Premier Woodrow Lloyd, members of his cabinet and provincial CCF members of the legislature.

Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's administration "now is almost certain to go down to defeat as one of the

On Page 14 today is a final summary by correspondents of papers in F-P Publications on how the election looks across the nation.

The various geographical regions have their special reports on prospects for Monday's voting and reach the conclusion that the election race is a close one.

Record Voting Likely

By FRANK RUTTER

Record numbers are expected to vote Monday in Canada's election.

Vancouver Island will elect four members to Parliament.

There are 94,343 registered voters for the two Greater Victoria constituencies — 51,671 voters in Victoria and 42,671 in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Polls open at 8 a.m. local time, close at 7 p.m.

Business establishments must allow their employees at least three clear hours in which to vote.

MULTIPLE POLLS

There are 264 polls in Victoria; 174 in Esquimalt Saanich.

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre Victoria returning officer says he expects to have his ballots counted and a result known by 9.30 p.m.

In Esquimalt-Saanich, with widely-scattered rural polls the result won't be known until at least 10 p.m., probably later, says returning officer Jack Davies.

There are 17 candidates for the four Island seats: Conservative, Liberal, New Democratic Party and Social Credit each have a man in Victoria, Esquimalt-Saanich and Nanaimo and Comox Alberni; the Communists are running a candidate in Comox.

All eligible voters are supposed to have received from returning officers a printed list of electors and location of their local polling station.

Only people whose names are on the list can vote.

Advance polls for people out of town Monday were held

Palmer Still Tied

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Arnold Palmer saved his chances with an eagle two on the 17th hole today but with four three-putt greens managed only 73 and shared the 54-hole lead in the United States open golf championship with young Bobby Nichols at 212.

'Every Seat Counts'

By The Canadian Press

Canada's big political guns fired their last salvos of the campaign Friday.

By Monday night it will be all over but the vote-counting to decide who will form Canada's next government.

Some 9,800,000 Canadians are eligible to pick the 264 MPs who will be chosen Monday from a record 1,012 candidates. Voting for a 265th member has been deferred until July 16 in one constituency, Stormont in Ontario, because of the death of the Liberal candidate there. Polls will be open Monday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. (Daylight time in B.C.)

From now on the sole campaign sounds to be heard will come only from the hustings. Partisan appeals on radio and TV—or even broadcast reports of such appeals — were stilled by law at midnight Friday night.

Every seat counts, but to form the government a party has to count on Ontario and Quebec—one or the other or both for the bulk of its Commons representation.

With 84 seats at stake Monday in Ontario and 75 in Quebec, the two provinces combined will be electing 159 members to Parliament. A minimum of 33 seats is required by one party to form a majority government in the 265-seat Commons.

In 1957, when the Progressive Conservatives ended 22 years of Liberal rule, they were able to form a minority government by winning 61 of the Ontario seats while taking only nine of the Quebec constituencies.

It was only the fifth time in 24 general elections since Confederation that a party formed the government without carrying Quebec.

SWEPT COUNTRY

However, in the Conservative sweep of 1958 they won the majority of seats in all provinces except Newfoundland while capturing every seat in four provinces—Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Alberta. Meanwhile, the Liberals failed to win anything in two other provinces as well-Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

The 1958 voters gave the Conservatives 208 seats to 49 for the Liberals and eight for the old CCF. It was the largest representation ever accorded a Canadian government; the lowest number of seats to which the Liberals had been reduced and the second-lowest number for the CCF. Social Credit, which had hit a peak of 19 seats in 1957,

New Bid for Peace In Scorched Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—New fires broke out in Algiers in the Secret Army scorched-earth campaign today even as Europeans were reported making a final compromise peace bid to Moslem nationalists.

Word of the peace contact came as a surprise. The Secret Army said in ordering a new campaign of destruction Thursday that secret contacts with the Moslems had failed.

Few believed the Moslems would agree to the Secret Army demands for additional guarantees for Algeria's European minority. But well-informed sources in Paris said an all-night session in Rocher Noir, the Algerian administrative capital, brought the possibility of a Moslem amnesty for the Secret Army when Algeria becomes independent.

In return for a general amnesty, the Secret Army would halt its scorched-earth policy aimed at destruction of buildings and facilities the Moslems will inherit when they achieve independence.

More Douk Burnings

TRAIL (CP) — Three more Sons of Freedom Doukhobors homes went up in flames overnight Friday in a continuation of the radical sect's avowed "scorched earth" policy in protest against the arrest of scores of their members on terrorist and conspiracy charges.

DYNAMITE CAUSED AIR CRASH

Passenger Bought Explosives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics board said today that a dynamite explosion definitely ripped apart a Continental Airlines 707 jet over Centerville, Iowa, last May, killing all 45 persons aboard.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An unemployed cosmetics salesman bought explosives shortly before he and his blonde business partner were killed with 43 other persons aboard a Continental Airlines jet that blew apart over Iowa, according to an FBI report.

The report said Thomas G. Doty, 34, of Merriam, Kan.,—who was facing an armed robbery charge—bought the explosives at a hardware store in the Kansas City Mo., area.

Doty also was described as having studied the use of explosives in the past.

A dynamite-like explosive planted in the rear restroom ripped apart the Continental 707 jet about 39,000 feet over southern Iowa on the night of May 22.

Killed aboard the Chicago-to-Kansas City flight were Doty, Mrs. Geneva Fraley, Doty's petite business colleague in a planned home furnishings firm, and all 43 other persons aboard.

Doty was reported to have carried at least $275,000 in flight insurance, naming his pregnant wife Naomi as beneficiary. Mrs. Fraley was insured for $75,000.

Doty had been scheduled to make a court appearance three days after the crash on an armed robbery charge.

The FBI interviewed hundreds of persons in an effort to determine whether any federal law was violated.

O' course, th' unemployment figgers will be up again a little fer some come Monday night.

CLERGYMEN ASK DELAY OF PLAN

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—A group of six Prince Albert ministers and priests issued a statement today calling on the Saskatchewan government to delay its compulsory medical care insurance plan.

The statement suggested that the government present a plan which is more in keeping with traditional Christian thought.

It said the medical care insurance act in its present form "allows for the possibility of the denial of any degree of freedom of choice not only to a doctor but to each citizen."

The group was accepting the challenge of M. J. Coldwell, former CCF leader, to "stand up and be counted" on the medical care issue in the province.

The statement said the clergy were in complete agreement with the desire of the government to provide a medical service but said there were sound reasons for doubt that the present act was best suited for the purpose.

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

June 16

Capt. Schaff of the schooner Nonpareil reports that the Indians who were sent north from here because of the smallpox are fairing very badly. He says that when an Indian develops a pock mark he is immediately put ashore from the canoe and left with a small allowance of bread, fish and water, facing certain death.

About 39 drunken Siwashes started a mass fight in the ravine back of Johnson Street, attacking each other with knives and broken bottles, while about 300 newly arrived immigrants watched in amazement. After about an hour, policeman Smith stepped in and stopped the fighting.

ROAD BLOCKS SET UP FOR THUGS

Police set up road blocks today in the Campbell River area in an attempt to intercept thieves who robbed a fish barge after beating up a barge worker and leaving him bleeding and unconscious.

Taken to hospital with head and other injuries was Frank Frey, 20, assistant manager of Tuloch-Western Fisheries Limited. Police, answering a call, found him unconscious in the barge's living quarters, bleeding from a head wound.

He had apparently collapsed after telephoning for help.

Police said the thieves escaped with some $3,000 worth of fishing equipment from the barge, plus "a large amount of cash."

Stanley Palmer, manager of the fish-buying firm, said he did not know immediately how much money had been taken.

Favorable IWA Vote Expected on Formula

Tabulators Still Count Local Votes

Speculation was rife today that 26,000 B.C. coast woodworkers, whose vote on a contract proposal will be released Monday, had approved the offer.

Jack Moore, regional president of the IWA, said in Vancouver today that any guesses on the outcome of balloting would be premature.

"We haven't heard from all the locals yet," he said. "Three of them are still counting ballots."

Vote was on a formula suggested by Dr. Neil Perry of the University of B.C., mediator appointed to try to effect a settlement between the big union and Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., spokesman for the coast logging and lumber operators.

TWO INCREASES

Dr. Perry proposed two yearly wage increases of eight cents per hour each, and an extra week of paid vacation for workers with 20 years or more of service. Present basic wage rate is $1.92 per hour.

Regional officers of the IWA had recommended acceptance of the Perry proposal.

STILL STUDIED

F.I.R. was reported still considering the proposal on behalf of the companies.

Speculation on the results of voting came from Vancouver, where a newspaper said the New Westminster local had turned the tide in favor of accepting the offer.

It said that the big Vancouver local voted 2,600-1,900 against the Perry formula, and that Port Alberni had turned it down 1,700-1,100.

BIG MARGIN

New Westminster, however, voted 2,400-900 in favor, the paper said.

It said further that Duncan, Haney, Victoria, and the Vancouver-based "Loggers' Local," No. 171, which serves upcoast and isolated logging camps, were reported in favor of settlement.

A check with the Victoria office revealed that votes were still being tabulated.

GAS PRICE CUT BACK BY TWO MAJOR FIRMS

Gasoline prices at Texaco and Royalite dealers in Victoria and other B.C. centres returned today to their level prior to recent 1 cent increases.

Announcement of the cutback was made in Vancouver Friday, amid hints that a gas price war might be in the offing, at least in the lower mainland area.

Action followed shortly after Imperial Oil issued a statement that it would not increase gasoline prices "at this time."

In addition to Texaco and Royalite, BA Oil and Shell Oil set 1 cent increases, and have not yet announced price roll backs. But Victoria dealers for both companies expect BA and Shell will be compelled to follow suit.

Home and Standard, as well as Imperial, held prices at the former level.

A spokesman for Texaco in Vancouver said the cut was prompted by nine days of poor sales and customer complaints.

"Prices have a way of finding their own level. If anyone moves prices still lower, we'll have to follow," he said.

Some observers felt the highly competitive situation within the industry could lead to a price war.

Strict Zoning For Pat Bay Highway Urged

Saanich is urged in a Capital Region Planning Board report today to continue to exert strict control of commercial development along the Patricia Bay Highway.

The report follows receipt by council of several applications for commercial rezoning along the city's main highway link to the mainland.

Prepared by planning director Tony Roberts, the report warns that if ribbon development is allowed along the highway, travelling time to and from Vancouver will increase considerably.

"If we allow free-for-all development everyone is going to suffer," he said.

He pointed out another reason, other than efficiency, for keeping the highway free of ribbon development is "tourism."

"It's important to keep our main approach to the city beautiful," he said. "There is only 20 miles of highway between Victoria and the ferry and this can easily be spoilt."

Mr. Roberts said the B.C. department of highways so far has done a good job in curbing ribbon development along the highway.

But he points out that pressure is increasing on all fronts for commercial development along the route.

CANADIAN SCOTTISH ON PARADE

Her 'Own' Vets Cadets Inspected by Princess

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Old soldiers of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) put on a brave show of medals and ribbons for the Princess Royal in tree-shaded Pioneer Square this morning.

Later she inspected 400 Canadian Scottish cadets from many parts of the Island in MacDonald Park, and for all of them, young and old, it was a day to be remembered.

The old soldiers—veterans of the Boer War and the First and Second World Wars—squared their shoulders and puffed out their chests as they marched from the Royal Theatre to Pioneer Square.

MEDALS APLENTY

Between them they averaged about six medals apiece, and the medals jingled merrily as they made a smart right turn into Pioneer Square.

One of the oldest—Major Peter Mathison, 78—joined the parade on crutches at Pioneer Square, and the princess, noticing his decorations, asked if he had served in the Boer War.

He told her he was in South Africa with the 2nd Scottish Horse and in France with the 16th Battalion, Canadian Scottish.

"That is quite a history," said the princess.

Wearing full uniform as colonel-in-chief of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, the princess was escorted to Pioneer Square by Hon. Frank Ross, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, and welcomed by Brig. F. N. Cabeldu, chairman of the trustees of the Canadian Scottish.

'VERY CHARMING'

She was then conducted to the front of the parade by Col. E. S. Henderson, DSO, ED. Lieut. J. Rogers, MC, MM, commanded the first platoon, and Major G. McIntosh the second.

During her inspection, the princess chatted with Victoria veterans Ken Bowyer, Harry Jackson and Capt. John Paton. She also had a word of greeting for Sgt. W. Jack Smith.

"She was very charming and made us feel at ease," commented Capt. Paton.

WREATH LAID

After taking a salute from the veterans, the princess placed a wreath at the foot of the Memorial Cross, escorted by Col. Henderson, Brigadier Cabeldu, and Mr. Ross.

The wreath bearer was Lt. W. Mackie, DCM, a veteran of the 16th Battalion.

In the parade were Col. J. R. Kingham, who commanded the First Battalion, Canadian Scottish, when it went overseas in 1941, and Brigadier Jack Adam, former aide-de-camp to ex-Lieut.-Governor Ross.

SEEN BY HUNDREDS

The ceremony was watched by several hundred men, women and children assembled in Pioneer Square and by many more who watched from the street.

From Pioneer Square the princess drove with Mr. Ross to Macdonald Park where she inspected a spectacular parade of six corps of Canadian Scottish cadets from Victoria, Nanaimo, Duncan, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Qualicum.

She was received by Capt. Angus Davie, an army and RCAF veteran who served on the International Truce Commission in Laos, and escorted to the saluting base.

Cadet Capt. Ralph King of 2000 Mayne Avenue, Victoria, ordered a royal salute as the senior cadet on parade.

The princess inspected the parade from a naval jeep and returned to the saluting base where six chief instructors were presented to her—Capt. R. J. Cornall, Alberni; Capt. T. A. Burge, Duncan; Capt. A. H. Ravet, Victoria; Capt. R. C. McKellar, Courtenay; Lt. R. W. Wilson, Victoria, and Second-Lt. J. P. Baumer, Qualicum Beach.

FOUR-MASTER SAILS MONDAY IF WIND FAIR

Given a fair wind Monday evening, Victoria will get its first look at a four-masted ship under full sail since the 1958 visit of the Nippon Maru from Japan.

The Chilean brigantine schooner Esmeralda, here on a Centennial goodwil visit, is tentatively scheduled to slip from her berth at Esquimalt harbor about 8 p.m. Monday.

Her captain, Cmdr. Daniel Arellano MacLeod, hopes to get all sail on her if there's anything of a breeze. The ship uses auxiliary power only in a flat calm; during a 45-day passage from Chile to Esquimalt, she used power on only three days.

Cmdr. MacLeod promises to make as close a sweep to the Dallas waterfront as possible, as Esmeralda sails on for a visit to the Seattle Fair.

Final open-ship hours aboard Esmeralda are from 2 berthed at the government to 6 p.m. Sunday. She is jetty on the Naden side of Esquimalt Harbor, and can be reached through the main gate on Admiral's Road.

MONTE ROBERTS

In case you have been wondering whatever happened to Floogelism in this election, what happened was, it almost became a lost cause.

But not quite.

A final, last-ditch, pre-election meeting last night breathed new life into the Floogelistic movement.

The meeting was called to discuss the public's opinion of Floogelism, as expressed in the Public Opinion Polls.

Cause for general concern was due to the fact the Public Opinion Polls failed to reflect a very high opinion of Floogelism.

In fact, one very well-known poll, the Gallop Poll, asked this question:

Would you vote for Floogelism if it were the last party on earth?

Only a very small percentage of those interviewed, namely 0.00 per cent, reported in the affirmative.

The other Public Opinion Polls were not much different. The Trotter Poll reported 00.0 per cent intended to vote for Floogelism; the Pacer Poll said 0.0.0; and the Walker report said OOOH.

Thus you can see the supporters of Floogelism who met last night were in no mood for premature victory celebrations.

In fact, the whole movement was in grave danger of winding up when the founder, who was also chairman of the meeting, gave forth with a brilliant idea.

"Wait!" he cried. "All is not lost. The advance polls show that none of the voters are going to vote for us.

"But how about the non-voters?"

A gasp of admiration ran through the Floogels present at the meeting. How about, indeed, the non-voters?

"There are always at least a couple of million non-voters," the founder and chairman went on. "And there is no reason why Floogelism can't claim each non-vote of each non-voter for its very own.

"That way," cried the founder and chairman, "Floogelism will at least hold the balance of power.

"And," he added darkly, "if its really close, we can count on the spoiled ballots to sweep us to victory."

Thus, Floogelism redivivus. If you wish to help, do as you please, but don't vote.

And if you DO have to vote, the least you can for Floogelism and the resurgent forces of confusion is spoil your ballot.

Week-Long 'Autorama' June 25

Fourth annual Quarter Milers Autorama, slated for June 25-30, will be a week long this year compared to last year's two-day show.

Length of the show has been extended for a special centennial program, which includes the Victoria Lions "Klondike Week."

Based on a 100 years ago theme, the Klondike week features games such as "stake a claim" with gold nuggets as prizes.

The Centennial Autorama will be outside the Victoria Curling Rink as well as inside this year, and the Victoria Centennial Orchestra will entertain nightly.

Other features of the show include kids' rides, Miss Autorama, and a contest to win two cars for a dime.

The show will run Monday to Friday from 6 p.m. to midnight and Saturday from 10 a.m. to midnight. Proceeds are for the drag strip building fund and Lions' charities.

Laing to Support City Candidate

Foster Isherwood, Liberal candidate for Victoria, will wind up his election campaign at a public meeting to be held at St. Louis College, starting at 8.15 tonight.

Arthur Laing, former provincial leader and Liberal candidate for Vancouver South, will speak on Mr. Isherwood's behalf.

FINED $75

Youth Leads Policemen Wild Chase

A fleeing car led pursuing police vehicles a merry dance through the downtown and Gorge area of the city late Friday night before the driver was caught.

At 10.40 p.m. Oak Bay police radioed the licence number of a car involved in a hit and run accident a short time earlier.

At 10.50 p.m. a city juvenile officer spotted the car at Government and Belleville and gave chase.

WAGON DODGED

The young driver deftly swerved around the wagon and took off again—still pursued by the juvenile officer in his car and a police motorcycle. His route wound through Pembroke, Mills, Bay, Rock Bay, Gorge, Dunedin, Sumas, Jutland, Cecelia and Manchester.

Just a short while later police found the car at the rear of a house on Sumas.

The driver, 18-year-old Andrew Ramage, 682 Sumas, appeared in city police court today and admitted a charge of criminally negligent driving.

He was fined $75 and his licence was suspended by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

"Somehow he completed his journey without an accident," prosecutor Angus Smith said.

LEAFLET DROP RULED OUT

Victoria's New Democratic Party has been denied permission to drop pamphlets on the city from an airplane, but they will try to distribute them aerially anyway—perhaps by dropping them from one of the downtown office buildings.

Failing that, they will be passed out by hand, a party spokesman said.

Thousands of these leaflets, proclaiming the NDPs stand against all nuclear weapons, were prepared for the drop, but the party couldn't find a pilot who would fly them, due to regulations forbidding the jettisoning of any kind of material except in an emergency.

ASK The TIMES

Q. What is the greatest number of 18-hole rounds of golf played in a day? R.A.

A. In 1938, Stanley Gard (Australia) played 14 rounds plus four holes, at North Brighton Golf Club, N.S.W. His worst round was 92 and his best 78.

3-Way Split for B.C. Predicted

By FRANK RUTTER

One of the longest, toughest federal election campaigns has come to a close.

Rutter

It wasn't until quite late that the public began to demonstrate an open interest, but it was hard slogging for the politicians and the newsmen tagging along back and forth across the country.

The usual way for a newsman to predict the result is to back in with an apology, then pick 'em anyway. I apologize.

There are 22 seats in B.C. It looks like a seven-seven-seven split between Conservatives, Liberals and New Democrats, with one (if they're lucky) for the Social Crediters; and if they're not lucky it will go Tory or NDP.

Correspondents across Canada—from papers of different political connections—seem agreed upon one thing: it will be a minority government after Monday's voting.

That means we go through the whole thing again within a matter of months.

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal David Groos, Friday night, finally got even with a pair of hecklers who have been bothering all candidates in this election campaign.

They are members of the Socialist Party of Canada.

Groos was explaining at a Brentwood all-candidates' meeting that he would replace a Tory plan for eight new frigates with bigger, faster ships that could catch nuclear subs.

"Can you explain the difference between weapons of peace and weapons of war?" asked one of the two Socialists.

Replied Davie: "That's a good question coming from a fellow who doesn't stand up when they play God Save the Queen.

Even the other candidates joined the crowd's lusty applause.

Provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan has come up with a gimmick.

He is showing a new Tory leaflet with the now-famous foot prints which instead of Follow John says Carry On With John. Bob doctored it up a bit. He inked holes in the soles of the feet "for those on unemployment insurance and social welfare."

Latest thing in campaign jewelry: green and white enamel earrings with the NDP insignia being worn by local supporters.

Panic hit the Victoria Social Credit campaign office Friday when the police phoned with orders to rip off posters which overzealous workers had stuck on mail boxes.

Geoff Mitchell's campaign staff told him it was a waste of time canvassing the Cadboro Bay-Ten Mile Point area. All Tories, they said.

But he went around this week on his own and says he was surprised at the anti-government reaction.

Liberal David Groos found the same, but after getting 105 people to a meeting there Thursday night, biggest little crowd of the campaign, he hopes he's got the benefit of the change.

The spotlight will turn on B.C. again immediately after the election.

Whoever wins will get a bombardment from Premier Bennett on starting the Columbia River power project.

There'll be a few bombs going off at the next B.C. session over the $100 homeowner grant too. Some people believe that session may come this fall before the regular January date in 1963.

AROUND THE ISLAND

Legion Building Fund Launched

GANGES—A building fund to extend the present Legion Hall here has been started with a donation of $500.

More space is required to accommodate increased membership and to provide a permanent home for Legion-sponsored Sea Scouts and Wolf Cubs.

Money will be raised during the summer, and building plans will be based on the report of a special money-raising committee in September. Committee members are A. L. Campbell, H. C. Giegerich, Dr. E. E. Groff, T. J. Sharland and F. L. Jackson.

NANAIMO — More than 3,000 people from all parts of Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland are expected to attend a Jehovah Witnesses' convention here July 13 to 15. Witnesses are calling on every hotel, motel, rooming house and apartment within an area of 50 miles to obtain accommodation.

NANAIMO (CP) — Mrs. Rae Helmsing was fined $30 and costs Friday after pleading guilty to driving without due care and attention as a result of an accident in which former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell was injured.

The magistrate also suspended Mrs. Helmsing's driver's licence for 14 days.

Mr. Coldwell was riding in a car driven by Port Alberni NDP candidate Thomas Barnett when it was in collision with Mrs. Helmsing's car. Both Mrs. Helmsing and Mr. Coldwell were treated at hospital for superficial injuries and released.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Samuel Smythe of Vancouver, was admitted to hospital here for injuries received in a head-on crash on Sayward Road about six miles north of here shortly after 11 p.m. Friday.

PALMER TIED FOR LEAD IN U.S. GOLF

OAKMONT, Pa.—Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus were tied for the lead one under par coming down the home stretch at press time in the U.S. National Open golf tournament.

Bob Nichols was one stroke off the pace at even par, and Phil Rogers was in with a one over par 285.

'Forward To Victory' —John D.

(Special To The Times)

HAMILTON — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night wound up his national campaign for a new mandate for his Progressive Conservative government with this call: "Forward to victory on Monday next."

The prime minister rang down the curtain on the election drive he started unofficially April 26 in Moose Jaw and set formally into action May 5 at London, Ont.

The Prime Minister left by air today for Prince Albert, Sask., his home riding, where he will await the results of Monday's general election.

He spoke for 52 minutes to about 2,200 persons in the Palace Theatre Friday night.

It was a typical, familiar speech—with some hecklers but no incidents.

FAR AND WIDE

Mr. Diefenbaker ranged far and wide, touching dollar devaluation, unemployment, Soviet imperialism, disarmament, the government's record in office and its Confederation platform for the future.

"We've got Canada rising in the most tremendous economic surge in history," he told his standing-room-only audience in the 2,007-seat theatre.

"Give us the opportunity in the days ahead to march forward together—to carry out our great program for Canadians."

Exuding confidence and smiling his delight at the Tory show of strength, Mr. Diefenbaker delivered a lively speech.

It was interrupted over 50 times by applause and cheers, a record for the prime minister during the eight weeks of campaigning that saw him make more than 150 speeches.

Outside the theatre in Hamilton there were picketers carrying aloft a paper mache caricature of the prime minister's head.

"See the John Diefenbaker show featuring many new promises," one placard read.

Another carried the message, "Put the right to work in your Bill of Rights, John." Another declared, "We want jobs, not sobs."

One read, "Grief with Dief".

New Issues Injected By Pearson

By ALEX YOUNG

BRANTFORD, Ont. — The Liberal election campaign ended with a bang Friday night.

Fireworks, brass bands and majorettes provided the obvious political climax to the eight-week battle for power of Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson.

But the most significant elements of the finale were the crowd he drew in his last election rally, in Tory western Ontario, and the new issues he brought by word into the dying campaign.

Between 5,000 and 7,000 people jammed Victoria Park, just so they could hear Pearson.

The riding has been Conservative since 1953.

The new issues were a warning by Mr. Pearson that re-election of the Conservative government would mean further devaluation of the dollar as well as a new tight money spell, resulting from devaluation.

"I ask you tonight at this wonderful final meeting of the campaign to work for this country so we can lift up our heads and work for the destiny and pride that is ours," Pearson said.

"After Monday we will begin to work to restore both."

One of the most newsworthy quotes of Mr. Pearson's day campaigning was his statement in Woodstock about how the campaign wasn't over until the last vote was counted on Monday.

"This isn't an election," he said with a smile, "that is going to be determined by President Kennedy or by Premier Khrushchev . . . although they seem to be the prime minister's chief supporters at the moment."

ON DEFENSIVE

Mr. Pearson said the Conservatives have been on the defensive from the beginning of the election; they started with a "vague" five-year plan, then switched to a new five-year plan, then began attempts to martyr themselves with their charges that the

CLERGYMEN ASK DELAY OF PLAN

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—A group of six Prince Albert ministers and priests issued a statement today calling on the Saskatchewan government to delay its compulsory medical care insurance plan.

The statement suggested that the government present a plan which is more in keeping with traditional Christian thought.

It said the medical care insurance act in its present form "allows for the possibility of the denial of any degree of freedom of choice not only to a doctor but to each citizen."

The group was accepting the challenge of M. J. Coldwell, former CCF leader, to "stand up and be counted" on the medical care issue in the province.

The statement said the clergy were in complete agreement with the desire of the government to provide a medical service but said there were sound reasons for doubt that the present act was best suited for the purpose.

His Vote Really Important

VANCOUVER (CP) — Distance is nothing to Dan Campbell, 83, when it comes to an important matter like casting a vote.

Mr. Campbell moved here from Whitehead, Sask., in May to stay with his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Knowler.

Then he found out he wouldn't get a vote in Monday's federal election unless he cast it in Whitehead. So he took a train there Thursday night.

"We tried to talk him out of it," said Mrs. Knowler. "But he'd voted there over the last 45 years and that was where he was going to vote.

"You might call him stubborn. We sure do."

AIRLINER BLAST

Passenger Bought Dynamite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics board said today that a dynamite explosion definitely ripped apart a Continental Airlines 707 jet over Centerville, Iowa, last May, killing all 45 persons aboard.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An unemployed cosmetics salesman bought explosives shortly before he and his blonde business partner were killed with 43 other persons aboard a Continental Airlines jet that blew apart over Iowa, according to an FBI report.

The report said Thomas G. Doty, 34, of Merriam, Kan.,—who was facing an armed robbery charge—bought the explosives at a hardware store in the Kansas City Mo., area.

Doty also was described as having studied the use of explosives in the past.

A dynamite-like explosive planted in the rear restroom ripped apart the Continental 707 jet about 39,000 feet over southern Iowa on the night of May 22.

Killed aboard the Chicago-to-Kansas City flight were Doty, Mrs. Geneva Fraley, Doty's petite business colleague in a planned home furnishings firm, and all 43 other persons aboard.

Doty was reported to have carried at least $275,000 in flight insurance, naming his pregnant wife Naomi as beneficiary. Mrs. Fraley was insured for $75,000.

Doty had been scheduled to make a court appearance three days after the crash on an armed robbery charge.

The FBI interviewed hundreds of persons in an effort to determine whether any federal law was violated.

Douglas Predicts 'Upset'

REGINA (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas put the seal on his national election campaign Friday night with a declaration that Monday's voting will produce "a political upset."

The former Saskatchewan CCF premier told an overflow audience of about 3,000 at a rally in his home riding that the Conservatives now are "almost certain to go down to defeat."

Earlier in a paid political telecast, he forecast there would be a change of government with the NDP playing "an important role" in the next Parliament. He did not estimate the number of seats the 218 NDP candidates would win.

Today, he was scheduled to put the finishing touches on his own personal campaign to win election in Regina constituency, where he has to overturn a large Conservative majority recorded in 1958.

Tonight he drives 70 miles southeast to Weyburn to speak at a rally in support of NDP candidate Cecil Bailey, who is seeking to replace former CCF-NDP House Leader Hazen Argue as MP for Assiniboia.

WILL ATTEND PICNIC

Mr. Douglas, 57, who used to represent the old Weyburn riding federally and also provincially, is to speak at a picnic Sunday afternoon at Fife Lake, about 60 miles south of Moose Jaw.

At Friday night's meeting he had to make two speeches because of the size of the crowd, as he did Thursday at Vancouver.

He first mounted a soapbox to deliver a 70-minute address before a crowd in the 2,200-seat Exhibition Auditorium's bullring. Several hundred persons stood along the walls and in the entrances.

Then he climbed onto a barrel in the adjoining stables section to give a brief second talk to about 500 persons, who had listened to his first address by loud-speaker relay.

The principal rally also was attended by Saskatchewan Premier Woodrow Lloyd, members of his cabinet and provincial CCF members of the legislature.

Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's administration "now is almost certain to go down to defeat as one of the

By The Canadian Press

Canada's big political guns fired their last salvos of the campaign Friday.

By Monday night it will be all over but the vote-counting to decide who will form Canada's next government.

Some 9,800,000 Canadians are eligible to pick the 264 MPs who will be chosen Monday from a record 1,012 candidates. Voting for a 265th member has been deferred until July 16 in one constituency, Stormont in Ontario, because of the death of the Liberal candidate there. Polls will be open Monday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. (Daylight time in B.C.)

From now on the sole campaign sounds to be heard will come only from the hustings. Partisan appeals on radio and TV—or even broadcast reports of such appeals — were stilled by law at midnight Friday night.

Every seat counts, but to form the government a party has to count on Ontario and Quebec—one or the other or both—for the bulk of its Commons representation.

With 84 seats at stake Monday in Ontario and 75 in Quebec, the two provinces combined will be electing 159 members to Parliament. A minimum of 133 seats is required by one party to form a majority government in the 265-seat Commons.

In 1957, when the Progressive Conservatives ended 22 years of Liberal rule, they were able to form a minority government by winning 61 of the Ontario seats while taking only nine of the Quebec constituencies.

It was only the fifth time in 24 general elections since Confederation that a party formed the government without carrying Quebec.

SWEPT COUNTRY

However, in the Conservative sweep of 1958 they won the majority of seats in all provinces except Newfoundland while capturing every seat in four provinces—Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Alberta. Meanwhile, the Liberals failed to win anything in two other provinces as well—Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

The 1958 voters gave the Conservatives 208 seats to 49 for the Liberals and eight for the old CCF. It was the largest representation ever accorded a Canadian government, the lowest number of seats to which the Liberals had been reduced and the second-lowest number for the CCF, Social Credit, which had hit a peak of 19 seats in 1957.

17 Seek Island Seats

By FRANK RUTTER

Record numbers are expected to vote Monday in Canada's election.

Vancouver Island will elect four members to Parliament.

There are 94,343 registered voters for the two Greater Victoria constituencies — 51,671 voters in Victoria and 42,672 in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Polls open at 8 a.m. local time, close at 7 p.m.

Business establishments must allow their employees at least three clear hours in which to vote.

MULTIPLE POLLS

There are 264 polls in Victoria; 174 in Esquimalt Saanich.

Victoria returning officer Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre says he expects to have his ballots counted and a result known by 9.30 p.m.

In Esquimalt-Saanich, with widely-scattered rural polls the result won't be known until at least 10 p.m., probably later, says returning officer Jack Davies.

There are 17 candidates for the four Island seats: Conservative, Liberal, New Democratic Party and Social Credit each have a man in Victoria, Esquimalt-Saanich and Nanaimo and Comox Alberni; the Communists are running a candidate in Comox.

All eligible voters are supposed to have received from returning officers a printed list of electors and location of their local polling station.

Only people whose names are on the list can vote.

Thompson Blasts Taxation

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The national leader of the Social Credit party ended his active campaigning for Monday's election with some broadsides Friday night at the Conservative and Liberal parties.

Robert Thompson flew to Ontario for a one-day visit to the Niagara Peninsula, where party officials believe Social Credit has its best opportunity to elect a member from this province.

He joined Herbert Heppner, national secretary of the party and candidate in Lincoln riding, and other standard-bearers for a motorcade-tour through communities in Lincoln and neighboring Welland constituencies before coming on to a final rally here.

Although visibly tired, he stepped out of character with an hour-long denunciation of the campaign tactics of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson, interspersed with a call for fiscal reform and an end to spiralling taxation. The audience of some 500 almost filled the high school auditorium where he spoke.

Mr. Thompson took particular exception to an announcement earlier in Welland by Mr. Diefenbaker that tolls on the

They Expected Gold and Rubies

JAMESTOWN, Va. — The Mayflower descendants may hoot and holler—decorously, of course—but many of the passengers on that famed excursion boat were children when the Jamestown people sailed over.

"The fleet fell from London," as the Jamestown historian put it, on December 20, 1606, "to find out a safe port" along the coast of Virginia, a land of mystery dubbed by Sir Walter Raleigh twenty years before. Raleigh who had named it in honor of England's virgin queen, Elizabeth I, watched the new fleet glide along the Thames from his cell in the Tower of London. In auld England politician's heads rolled like bowling balls on a surban Saturday night.

Sutton

The Plymouth people who came later were looking for religious freedom, but the fleet that fell from London in 1606 expected to find gold in the sand and rubies stacked under the trees.

At least that's what they had been told by the travel agents of the Virginia Company, which chartered the tour. After a snappy voyage from England that took four months and six days, the shipboard reporter wrote, "wee descried the Land of Virginia ... wee entered into the Bay of Chesupioc."

Rubies were scarce in Virginia in those days, but arrows and Indians were plentiful. The colony set about building a protective settlement. Of the party of 105, fully half were listed as "gentlemen," which meant they could wear brass buttons on their clothes and didn't have to work. The gents lolled about watching the laborers build the fort.

James Towne or James's Cittie, as it was also called, never became a metropolis, but it was the first permanent English settlement in North America, and capital of the colony for 92 years. Its original site on Jamestown Island has been preserved as a joint venture of the National Park Service and the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, locally known as the APVA.

The only standing ruin of 17th Century Jamestown is the Old Tower believed to be a part of the first brick church built in 1639. On its foundations the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America built a memorial church. In opened in 1907 in time for the 300th anniversary of the colony's founding. When it comes to preserving history there is nothing like a Colonial Dame.

For the 350th anniversary of Jamestown in 1957, the State of Virginia, aided by the British government, established Jamestown Festival Park, across an isthmus from the original settlement.

Here the three ships, the Susan Constant, the Godspeed and the Discovery ride at their moorings along the wharf, none of them larger than a tug. They come complete with sailors got up in gob's garb of the day, and can be boarded, but I wouldn't book passage in one for a voyage across a flooded street.

Chief Powhatan's Lodge has been reproduced too, and it rather resembles a straw Nissen hut. Thirty-six feet long, it is made, like today's modern apartment houses, of marsh grass and hemp thread, and is staffed by Rappahannock Indians descended from one of Pcwhatan's own tribes.

Today's Rappahannocks smoke cigarettes and wear lipstick if they are squaws. Following the current vogue they affect wigs, although these are worn by the braves. The wigs are shaped in the style of the Alogonquins, shaved on the right side so the bowstring would not tangle with the coiffure.

The first fort is reproduced too, the buildings constructed of thatch and clay and staffed by English soldiers in brimmed helmets, halberds and "slops" an early form of knickerbockers that seem to have gotten out of hand. Slops were cut full and loose so the pant legs could be stuffed with straw, a helpful bit of armor when soldiers went into battle.

In the church the laborers sat in the rear pews, the gentlemen up front, but it was not a gentleman's life. The laws were strict. In 1626 two local types were fined and punished for "drinking and quarrelling ... at unlawful and unseasonable howers of the night to the disturbance of the whole plantatione."

Hillcrest Back At Work Monday

Logging operations at Hillcrest Lumber Co. Ltd. Mesachie Lake claim west of Duncan will start up at full blast Monday morning for the first time since Jan. 2.

A formula offered to 88 loggers, who have stayed away from work because free transportation was cut off at the beginning of the year, was accepted in a noon-hour vote today.

The formula was worked out at a conference in Vancouver Friday, called by Percy Clements, newly elected president of IWA Local 1-80 in Duncan, and attended by other IWA officials and company representatives.

Terms of the formula were almost identical with those offered parties in the dispute by deputy labor minister William Sands two weeks ago.

New Bid for Peace In Scorched Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—New fires broke out in Algiers in the Secret Army scorched-earth campaign today even as Europeans were reported making a final compromise peace bid to Moslem nationalists.

Word of the peace contact came as a surprise. The Secret Army said in ordering a new campaign of destruction Thursday that secret contacts with the Moslems had failed.

Few believed the Moslems would agree to the Secret Army demands for additional guarantees for Algeria's European minority. But well-informed sources in Paris said an all-night session in Rocher Noir, the Algerian administrative capital, brought the possibility of a Moslem amnesty for the Secret Army when Algeria becomes independent.

In return for a general amnesty, the Secret Army would halt its scorched-earth policy aimed at destruction of buildings and facilities the Moslems will inherit when they achieve independence.

Centennial Flashback . . .

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

June 16

Capt. Schaff of the schooner Nonpareil reports that the Indians who were sent north from here because of the smallpox are faring very badly. He says that when an Indian develops a pock mark he is immediately put ashore from the canoe and left with a small allowance of bread, fish and water, facing certain death.

So far this year, some 4,000 prospectors have entered British Columbia to try their luck in the gold fields, and nearly all are convinced the Cariboo is the richest country in the world.

About 39 drunken Siwashes started a mass fight in the ravine back of Johnson Street, attacking each other with knives and broken bottles, while about 300 newly arrived immigrants watched in amazement. After about an hour, policeman Smith stepped in and stopped the fighting.

Colorful Program For Seattle Seafair

SEATTLE — One of the major highlights of Seattle's World's Fair, will be Seafair from July 27 through Aug. 5.

The 13th edition of these marine hi-jinx is capped by the 59th running of the $35,000 Gold Cup Race for unlimited hydroplanes. Billed as the "world series of boat racing," the Gold Cup is the richest prize in one of the world's most hazardous sports. Juggernauting around a three-mile course at speeds up to 180 miles per hour, an anticipated field of over 25 huge thunder boats throw a high spray and provide countless thrills in their quest for fame and riches.

Nineteen entries from Detroit, Nevada, Indiana, California and Washington have been received in challenge to defending champion Miss Century 21 of Seattle.

The big Seafair Parade will be held on Saturday morning, July 28, with "Festivals, U.S.A.," serving as the theme for spectacular floats expected from all over the United States.

A regional water ski tournament, an international sailing championship, street dances, mock pirate invasions, arrival of the U.S. Fleet, and hundreds of other satellite events, all with a marine flavor, comprise the busy calendar.

2,040,000 Rode B.C. Ferries In Two Years

The B.C. ferry system has carried 2,040,000 passengers on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen route since service started two years ago Friday.

Figures released by the system show that 640,000 automobiles were carried in the two years. The present hourly service is setting new records every day as the tourist season moves toward its peak.
